

HONG KONG SECURITY ANALYSIS REPORT

AI-Assisted Open Source Intelligence Assessment

Analysis Period: November 03, 2026 - November 10, 2026

This report was produced using open-source intelligence analysis. The assessment is grounded in publicly available reporting and should be cross-referenced with primary sources. RSS feed articles are listed in the annex for reference.

Executive Summary

Hong Kong's security landscape during the period of November 03 to November 10, 2026, was primarily shaped by significant cybersecurity challenges and heightened diplomatic tensions surrounding its National Security Law. Cybersecurity incidents saw a notable 15% increase in Q3 2026, with phishing remaining the predominant threat, prompting a major government-led cybersecurity drill to bolster resilience. The sentencing of pro-democracy activist Joshua Wong to 10 years under the National Security Law on November 5, 2026, drew strong condemnation from a coalition of ten Western nations, including several EU members, which Hong Kong's government vehemently rejected as foreign interference. Despite these diplomatic frictions, discussions are underway for a new financial services dialogue between the EU and Hong Kong, indicating a complex relationship balancing human rights concerns with economic cooperation. The early release of several National Security Law convicts also marked a notable development in the city's legal and security framework.

Key Security Developments

- Cybersecurity Incidents See Significant Increase

The Hong Kong Computer Emergency Response Team Coordination Centre (HKCERT) reported on November 5, 2026, a 15% increase in cybersecurity incidents in Q3 2026 compared to the same period in the previous year, totaling 4,404 incidents. Phishing remained the most prevalent threat, accounting for approximately 61% of all security incidents, followed by botnet incidents at 17% and vulnerable system incidents at 11%. This surge indicates a persistent and evolving cyber threat landscape for Hong Kong organizations.

- Warning Issued on Widespread Credit Card Misuse

In its Q3 2026 security incident statistics released on November 5, 2026, HKCERT highlighted a specific phishing campaign that led to unauthorized credit card transactions. Police received over 700 reports of suspected credit card misuse in mid-September 2026, resulting in losses of approximately HK$14.7 million. The incident underscores the need for enhanced payment security measures across customer devices, transaction verification, and third-party platforms.

- Major Cybersecurity Attack and Defence Drill Concludes

Hong Kong authorities successfully concluded the "Hong Kong Cybersecurity Attack and Defence Drill 2026" on October 31, 2026, following a three-day exercise that began on October 29. The drill, spearheaded by the Digital Policy Office, expanded its scale to include 51 defensive "blue teams" from 28 government departments, 23 public organizations, and newly introduced private enterprises. It employed real-world combat scenarios to identify system vulnerabilities and test defense mechanisms, aiming to enhance the city's overall digital protection and cyber resilience.

• Joshua Wong Sentenced to 10 Years Under National Security Law

On November 5, 2026, pro-democracy activist Joshua Wong Chi-fung was sentenced to 10 years in prison by Hong Kong's High Court for conspiracy to collude with foreign forces under the Beijing-imposed National Security Law. Wong, who is now 30, had pleaded guilty in September, with the court describing his offense as one of a "grave nature." This sentencing marks a significant development in the ongoing application of the National Security Law against prominent opposition figures.

• International Coalition Condemns Wong's Sentencing

On November 6, 2026, a coalition of ten countries, including the United States, United Kingdom, France, Germany, Japan, Italy, Australia, Canada, the Netherlands, and New Zealand, issued a joint statement. They called for an immediate end to "unjust prosecutions" under Hong Kong's national security law, expressing serious concern over its use to target individuals for political expression. The European Union also criticized Wong's sentence.

• Hong Kong Government Rejects Foreign Interference in Judicial Affairs

The Hong Kong Special Administrative Region Government, on November 7, 2026, strongly condemned and expressed firm opposition to the joint statement issued by the ten countries. It asserted that the statement "deliberately distorted facts and smeared the Hong Kong SAR," constituting a blatant interference with its judicial power and internal affairs. China's Foreign Ministry echoed this stance on November 5, 2026, firmly supporting Hong Kong in safeguarding national security and urging relevant parties to respect China's sovereignty and the rule of law.

• Early Release Granted to National Security Law Convicts

On November 2, 2026, Leon Tong Ying-kit, the first person convicted under Hong Kong's National Security Law, along with three other individuals (former Apple Daily publisher Cheung Kim-hung, paralegal Wayland Chan Tsz-wah, and activist Andy Li Yu-hin) jailed in related high-profile cases, were granted early release. This development follows the enactment of the Safeguarding National Security Ordinance under Article 23 in 2024, which allows for early release if the Commissioner of Correctional Services is satisfied that national security will not be compromised.

• HKCERT Warns of Critical PHP Vulnerabilities

HKCERT issued a reminder to businesses and organizations about emergency security updates for two critical PHP vulnerabilities, collectively known as "PHP2Shell" (CVE-2026-109618 and CVE-2026-109619). These vulnerabilities could allow remote attackers to execute unauthorized code, emphasizing the ongoing need for prompt patching and system updates to mitigate exploitation risks.

- Border Security Measures Enhanced for Peak Travel

On October 25, 2026, Hong Kong's Chief Secretary for Administration, Eric Chan, inspected the Shenzhen Bay and Huanggang checkpoints, directing the Security Bureau to ensure safe, efficient, and orderly operations. This proactive measure was taken in anticipation of heavy passenger traffic during upcoming peak periods, with instructions to open additional inspection counters and vehicle lanes to ease congestion.

- Hong Kong Police Implement AI Facial Recognition on CCTV

On November 6, 2026, the Hong Kong Police Force announced the enablement of AI facial recognition on CCTV. The force stated that the use of this technology would respect privacy rights and require authorization by an inspector or above, with collected data being retained for a maximum of 180 days. This move signifies an advancement in surveillance capabilities within the city's security infrastructure.

Cyber Threat Landscape

The cyber threat landscape in Hong Kong during this period was characterized by a significant increase in incidents and a focus on common attack vectors. HKCERT reported a 15% rise in cybersecurity incidents in Q3 2026, reaching 4,404 cases, with phishing remaining the primary threat, accounting for 61% of all incidents. This included a notable phishing campaign in mid-September 2026 that led to over 700 reports of suspected credit card misuse and losses of approximately HK$14.7 million, indicating financially motivated criminal activity. The "Hong Kong FinTech Week x StartmeupHK Festival," held from November 2–6, 2026, was identified as a high-risk period, with assessments indicating that both state-aligned and financially motivated threat actors were likely to increase their operational tempo to target this major international convergence of fintech, Web3, and AI leadership. Potential attacks during this period included data theft, credential harvesting, spear-phishing campaigns against high-value attendees, and ransomware attacks against event organizers and participating institutions.

HKCERT also issued a critical alert regarding two PHP vulnerabilities, CVE-2026-109618 and CVE-2026-109619, collectively known as "PHP2Shell," which could allow remote attackers to execute unauthorized code. This highlights the ongoing exploitation of known software weaknesses. The government's response included the successful conclusion of the "Hong Kong Cybersecurity Attack and Defence Drill 2026" on October 31, which involved 51 "blue teams" from government, public, and private sectors, aimed at enhancing overall digital protection and incident response capabilities.

Background: Threat actors known to target Hong Kong include Lazarus Group (North Korea-linked), APT40 (China-linked), APT3 (China-linked), Earth Lusca (China-linked), LOTUS PANDA (China-linked), BRONZE HIGHLAND (China-linked), TEMPER PANDA (China-linked), and Aoqin Dragon (China-linked). TraderTraitor and QTFY were named in news in the last 30 days prior to this period.

Geopolitical Impact and Regional Dynamics

The period from November 3 to November 10, 2026, saw Hong Kong at the center of renewed geopolitical tensions, primarily stemming from the application of its National Security Law. The sentencing of pro-democracy activist Joshua Wong to 10 years in prison on November 5, 2026, for collusion with foreign forces, triggered a strong collective rebuke from ten Western nations, including the United States, United Kingdom, France, and Germany. This international condemnation underscores the persistent divergence between Beijing's assertion of sovereignty and national security and Western concerns over human rights and democratic freedoms in Hong Kong. The Hong Kong government's swift and firm rejection of this criticism, characterizing it as interference in internal affairs and judicial independence, reinforces Beijing's narrative and its unwavering stance on the city's governance.

This diplomatic friction highlights the broader strategic landscape where Hong Kong remains a flashpoint in the relationship between China and major Western powers. While China firmly supports Hong Kong's actions in safeguarding national security, the international outcry risks further alienating Hong Kong from global democratic norms and potentially impacting its standing as an international financial center, despite its economic rebound in recent years. The US Department of Defense's historical report from 2020, mentioned in a November 2026 article, which suggested the deployment of probable People's Armed Police forces in Hong Kong in August 2019, serves as a reminder of Beijing's willingness to exert direct security influence, further fueling international scrutiny over the city's autonomy.

Despite these political strains, Hong Kong continues to host significant international events, such as the "Hong Kong FinTech Week x StartmeupHK Festival" (November 2–6, 2026). This event, attracting global financial leaders, demonstrates Hong Kong's enduring role as a financial hub and its efforts to maintain international engagement. However, the identification of this event as a high-risk period for cyberattacks by both state-aligned and financially motivated actors indicates that geopolitical rivalries and criminal enterprises continue to leverage Hong Kong's interconnectedness, posing risks to regional stability and the interests of international businesses operating within the city.

EU Relations and Implications

Hong Kong's relations with the European Union during this period were marked by a clear divergence on human rights and rule of law, juxtaposed with ongoing efforts for economic cooperation. The EU, alongside other Western nations, expressed criticism regarding the 10-year sentencing of Joshua Wong on November 5, 2026, under the National Security Law. This aligns with the European Parliament's earlier resolution in September 2026, which urged targeted sanctions on Hong Kong officials under the EU Global Human Rights Sanctions Regime and called for the repeal of the National Security Law and Safeguarding National Security Ordinance. These actions reflect the EU's consistent concern over the erosion of rights and freedoms in Hong Kong, as highlighted in its 28th annual report to the European Parliament and the Council in September 2026.

Despite these significant frictions, the EU's relationship outlook with Hong Kong was assessed as "Stable" in August 2026, and cooperation projects continue in sectors such as Trade & Investment, Education & Skills, and Development Cooperation. Notably, senior officials from the EU and Hong Kong are in talks to launch a financial services dialogue in November 2026 in Brussels, with a focus on green finance and sustainable innovation. This indicates a pragmatic approach from the EU, seeking to maintain economic ties and cooperation in areas of mutual interest, even while expressing strong political disapproval of Hong Kong's security policies. The cybersecurity developments, particularly the increased phishing incidents and the identified high-risk period during FinTech Week, pose potential implications for EU businesses and investments in Hong Kong, necessitating enhanced digital security measures for EU-funded cooperation projects and companies operating in the city.

Military and Defense Analysis

During the period of November 03 to November 10, 2026, there were no reported significant military activities, exercises, defense acquisitions, or strategic shifts directly involving Hong Kong's local defense forces or the People's Liberation Army (PLA) Hong Kong Garrison. The focus remained primarily on internal security and cybersecurity resilience.

The Inter-departmental Counter Terrorism Unit (ICTU), comprising members from six disciplined services, continued its efforts to enhance public awareness and response capabilities against terrorism. This was evidenced by the ongoing Counter Terrorism Education Thematic Exhibition at the Hong Kong Museum of History, which opened in October 2026 and aims to deepen public understanding of the global counter-terrorism landscape and Hong Kong's strategies. This initiative underscores a proactive approach to internal security and public education rather than external defense posturing. While a 2020 US Department of Defense report, referenced in a November 2026 article, suggested the deployment of probable People's Armed Police forces in Hong Kong in August 2019, this serves as historical context regarding Beijing's potential security influence rather than a current military development within the reporting period. Overall, Hong Kong's defense posture during this week was characterized by a steady state, with an emphasis on internal security, counter-terrorism preparedness, and cyber defense, rather than overt military modernization or strategic shifts.

Outlook and Forecast

In the short-term (1-3 months), Hong Kong is expected to continue navigating a complex security environment marked by persistent cyber threats and ongoing international scrutiny over its national security policies. The increased volume of cybersecurity incidents, particularly phishing attacks, suggests that organizations will remain under significant pressure, necessitating continuous investment in cyber defense and employee training. The "Ethical Phishing Email and SMS Campaign 2026" and HKCERT's free cybersecurity webinar series for SMEs, both ongoing, indicate a sustained government effort to bolster cyber resilience.

Critical flashpoints include further prosecutions under the National Security Law and the Safeguarding National Security Ordinance, which could trigger renewed international condemnation and diplomatic tensions. The early release of some National Security Law convicts, while potentially a de-escalatory signal, will be closely watched for its implications on future cases and the broader application of the law. The ongoing financial services dialogue with the EU, set to take place in Brussels in November, represents a critical opportunity for Hong Kong to balance economic engagement with addressing international concerns, though significant breakthroughs on human rights issues are unlikely.

Indicators to monitor include the frequency and sophistication of cyberattacks, particularly against critical infrastructure and financial institutions, and the government's response to these threats. Any new legislative actions or high-profile court cases related to national security will also be key indicators of the city's evolving political and legal landscape. Furthermore, statements and actions from major international bodies and governments, particularly the EU and the Five Eyes allies, regarding Hong Kong's autonomy and human rights, will shape the city's diplomatic standing.

Strategic recommendations include strengthening public-private partnerships for cybersecurity intelligence sharing and incident response, particularly given the identified risks to the financial sector. Hong Kong should also continue to engage in dialogue with international partners, including the EU, to articulate its legal framework while demonstrating a commitment to transparency and due process, where possible. Internally, continued public education on cyber hygiene and counter-terrorism awareness, as promoted by the ICTU, remains crucial for enhancing overall societal resilience.

Structured Assessment

json

{

"threat_level": "Elevated",

"hotspots": [

{

"label": "Hong Kong Financial District",

"detail": "High concentration of financial institutions and events like FinTech Week make it a prime target for cyberattacks.",

"lat": 22.2793,

"lng": 114.1628,

"intensity": 3

},

{

"label": "High Court of Hong Kong",

"detail": "Location of high-profile National Security Law proceedings, generating diplomatic tensions and international scrutiny.",

"lat": 22.2787,

"lng": 114.1678,

"intensity": 4

},

{

"label": "Shenzhen Bay/Huanggang Checkpoints",

"detail": "Key border crossings requiring enhanced security and management due to anticipated heavy passenger traffic.",

"lat": 22.485,

"lng": 113.949,

"intensity": 2

},

{

"label": "Hong Kong Museum of History",

"detail": "Site of the Counter Terrorism Education Thematic Exhibition, indicating ongoing focus on public counter-terrorism awareness.",

"lat": 22.2968,

"lng": 114.1772,

"intensity": 1

},

{

"label": "Cyberport",

"detail": "A hub for technology and cybersecurity initiatives, including drills and incident response efforts, making it a focus for cyber defense.",

"lat": 22.254,

"lng": 114.130,

"intensity": 2

}

]

}

```
```

ANNEX: COLLECTED ARTICLES BY SOURCE

Source: HK Free Press

• Housing provider apologises after scheduling fire drill for Wang Fuk Court survivors on anniversary of deadly blaze (2026-11-10 04:20)

A Hong Kong public housing provider has apologised and rescheduled a fire drill at an estate mainly occupied by survivors of the Wang Fuk Court fire following backlash over the exercise being scheduled on the first anniversary of the deadly blaze. A Threads user identifying herself as a former resident of Wang Fuk Court, now [⋯]

• US slams jailing of Macau pro-democracy ex-lawmaker (2026-11-10 03:48)

The United States has said it “strongly condemns” last week’s sentencing of pro-democracy activist and former lawmaker Au Kam San in the Chinese territory of Macau. Au was convicted of subversion and other offences, and sentenced on Friday to 12-and-a-half years in jail in the former Portuguese colony, which reverted to China in 1999. It [⋯]

• Dozens rescued after Ocean Park observation tower breaks down again (2026-11-10 03:00)

Around 40 people were trapped near the top of Ocean Park’s 72-metre revolving observation tower on Monday, with one woman reporting feeling unwell. According to a Monday Fire Services Department Facebook post, visitors stranded atop the Ocean Park Tower were escorted by staff down stairs in the centre of the tower. Meanwhile, a team of [⋯]

• Explainer: Hong Kong’s national security crackdown – month 76 (2026-11-09 23:45)

October saw national security trials go on in Hong Kong while a political commentator defended himself in court over the charge of revealing details of a meeting with national security police and a retiree convicted of sedition received a mandatory hospital order. Meanwhile, more initiatives have been rolled out to promote national security awareness, including [⋯]

• Hong Kong man unanimously acquitted of raping female friend at Sai Kung campsite (2026-11-09 11:38)

A 24-year-old man has been acquitted of raping a female friend at a Sai Kung campsite three years ago, with the jury unanimously finding him not guilty. Fung Cheuk-kei appeared at the High Court on Monday morning following an eight-day trial for two counts of rape before a seven-member jury – including four women and [⋯]

• Who is Alice Huang, the Chinese tech executive accused of spying on Nvidia CEO Jensen Huang? (2026-11-09 06:55)

Tech executive Alice Huang is the woman accused of spying for China during an affair with Jensen Huang, head of US artificial intelligence chip titan Nvidia, according to media reports. Public details are sparse about the woman, also known as Huang Le, who had reportedly been a top figure at a Singapore-based data centre company [⋯]

• Hong Kong must reform ticketing and venue rules to attract touring mega-acts, think tank says (2026-11-09 06:28)

Hong Kong must step up its ticketing systems and ensure promoters can secure venues to attract touring artists, a think tank has said, after finding that most Western artists' tours skipped the city in recent years. Out of 95 Western artists' concert tours between 2023 and 2026 analysed in a report published on Monday by [⋯]

• 3 hikers injured after being struck by paraglider in Ma On Shan Country Park (2026-11-09 03:45)

Three hikers have been injured after a paraglider lost control while descending in Ma On Shan Country Park on Sunday. Police received a report at around 12.30pm from a woman who said she and two others were struck by a paraglider near Ngong Ping – a popular paragliding spot – in Ma On Shan Country [⋯]

• Nvidia announces probe into CEO Jensen Huang after he acknowledges affair with alleged Chinese spy (2026-11-09 02:44)

Chip giant Nvidia's board announced Sunday it opened a probe into Chief Executive and co-founder Jensen Huang after he acknowledged an affair with a woman US officials say was working for Chinese intelligence. Late last month, The New York Times reported that US intelligence officials concluded that the woman, a Chinese executive linked to a Singapore-based [⋯]

• Hong Kong to see cold snap from Tuesday with lows of 16°C following hottest October on record (2026-11-09 01:09)

Hongkongers will experience a cold snap this week following the hottest October on record. The city will see lows of 19 degrees Celsius on Monday, with temperatures on Tuesday ranging from 16 to 23 degrees Celsius. A strong cold front will cross China's southern coast, bringing dry and cool weather to the territory: "Under the [⋯]

• 'Main culprits,' ignored complaints, and needed reforms: Takeaways from the independent probe into the Tai Po fire (2026-11-08 23:40)

Almost a year after a deadly blaze killed 168 people and left thousands homeless at Tai Po's Wang Fuk Court, an independent inquiry has produced a comprehensive report into the tragedy, identifying the "culprits," making wide-ranging recommendations, and mourning the lives lost. The two-volume report, spanning more than 1,000 pages, details the findings from an [⋯]

• Top US, China officials raise trade ‘concerns’ as APEC approaches (2026-11-08 05:26)

Top officials from Washington and Beijing held “frank” talks on their countries’ testy trade relationship on Friday, ahead of an Asia-Pacific summit in China this month where their leaders are due to meet. Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent and US Trade Representative Jamieson Greer held a call with Chinese Vice Premier He Lifeng and discussed economic […]

• Taiwan says closes representative office in Papua New Guinea, blames China (2026-11-07 05:48)

Taiwan said Friday it has decided to close its representative office in Papua New Guinea and withdraw its staff, blaming Chinese coercion of the South Pacific nation for the decision. “In the future, we will allocate relevant resources to friendly nations and other regions with cooperative potential that warrant continued engagement, in order to further […]

• HKFP Lens: The Cathay Camera Club’s Monocolour Exhibition (2026-11-07 01:30)

The Cathay Camera Club has brought together 27 photographers for a new exhibition called Monocolour. “Twenty-seven photographers take a considered approach to capturing colour. The aim is to bring the viewer a deeper understanding of the historic, emotive, cultural, and pragmatic roles that colour plays in our everyday lives,” organisers said. The club was founded […]

• Court rejects ex-press union head Ronson Chan’s bid to take police obstruction appeal to top court (2026-11-07 00:00)

A Hong Kong court has rejected a former press union head’s bid to lodge a final appeal against his conviction for obstructing police, for which he was jailed for five days. Deputy High Court Judge Lily Wong on Friday refused to grant Ronson Chan, a former chair of the Hong Kong Journalists Association (HKJA), a […]

• Joshua Wong sentencing: Local gov’t, police, officials hail 10-year jail term amid condemnation from foreign gov’t’s, NGOs (2026-11-06 10:16)

Jailed Hong Kong pro-democracy activist Joshua Wong was sentenced to 10 years’ imprisonment on Thursday after pleading guilty to conspiring to collude with foreign forces, his second conviction under a Beijing-imposed national security law. See also: Joshua Wong sought leniency to be freed in his 30s, mitigation letter reveals HKFP rounds up local and international […]

• Security chief Chris Tang says gov’t will facilitate Wang Fuk Court fire anniversary events if ‘lawful’ (2026-11-06 08:44)

Authorities will assist people wishing to commemorate the victims of the Wang Fuk Court blaze on the tragedy’s anniversary later this month, on the condition that such activities are “lawful,” Hong Kong security chief Chris Tang has said. Tang made the remarks when addressing reporters at an event on Thursday, some three weeks ahead of […]

• ‘6 years in jail has reshaped my view of life’: Joshua Wong sought leniency to be freed in his 30s, mitigation letter reveals (2026-11-06 07:44)

Jailed Hong Kong activist Joshua Wong has said in a mitigation letter submitted to court before his sentencing on Thursday that his six years in prison reshaped his outlook on life, asking for the utmost leniency so he could walk free in his thirties. High Court judge William Tam sentenced the activist to 10 years’ […]

• Au Kam San: The teacher-turned-lawmaker who called ‘bluntly’ for democracy in Macau (2026-11-06 06:30)

Former Macau lawmaker Au Kam San was once a leading figure in the Chinese casino hub’s fight for democracy, but will spend the next decade behind bars after he was found guilty on Friday of “subversion”. Au, who was sentenced to 12 years and six months in jail, was also accused of “building links with […]

• Police say linking mall cameras to AI facial recognition network complies with Hong Kong privacy laws (2026-11-06 04:47)

Equipping Hong Kong’s CCTV network with AI facial recognition software and connecting it to shopping mall security cameras would not breach local privacy laws, police have said. Police have said that the AI facial recognition feature will be added to the city’s SmartView surveillance system as early as this month, with four private shopping malls […]

• Hong Kong national security police arrest man over allegedly importing ‘seditious’ books (2026-11-06 04:13)

Hong Kong national security police have arrested a man over allegedly importing “seditious books” in the latest law enforcement action following a crackdown on independent bookstores earlier this year. Police said in a statement on Thursday that they had arrested a 34-year-old man in Mong Kok. He was suspected of “importing a publication that has […]

• Macau sentences ex-lawmaker to 12.5 years in first national security trial (2026-11-06 03:51)

A court in the Chinese territory Macau convicted on Friday ex-lawmaker and democracy campaigner Au Kam San of several offences including subversion, sentencing him to 12 years and six months in prison. Au, 69, is the first person convicted under national security laws widened in 2023 in Macau, the former Portuguese colony and casino hub […]

• Hong Kong installs HK$5m ‘anti-terrorism’ crash bollards outside Causeway Bay dep’t store (2026-11-06 01:25)

Hong Kong authorities have installed “anti-terrorism” collision bollards outside a department store in Causeway Bay, one of the city’s busiest shopping districts – a project with a HK$5 million price tag. The bollards, which were still wrapped in foam sheeting on Thursday morning, were initially proposed in January by the police, the Transport Department, and […]

• Elderly woman jailed for 20 days, fined HK$3,000 over slapping child in Kwun Tong mall (2026-11-05 23:12)

An elderly woman has been jailed for 20 days and fined HK$3,000 over a fight in a Kwun Tong shopping mall, in which she was filmed slapping a child. Leung Lai-ha and co-defendants Xu Yang and Ng Ka-wun appeared at Kwun Tong Magistrates' Courts on Thursday. They faced charges of fighting in a public place […]

• 'Truly reflective of his offence': Police welcome 10-year prison sentence for activist Joshua Wong amid int'l outcry (2026-11-05 10:07)

The National Security Department of the Hong Kong Police Force has welcomed the 10-year prison sentence handed to Joshua Wong, saying that it was a "proper sentence" to reflect the offence committed. Steve Li, chief superintendent of the National Security Department of the Hong Kong Police Force, told reporters on Thursday outside the High Court […]

• China dismisses accusations of 'squeezing out' other economies (2026-11-05 07:35)

China's vice premier brushed off "completely unfounded" concerns that his country was "squeezing out" other economies as he opened a major business fair on Thursday aimed at enticing importers. The United States and European Union regularly accuse Beijing of heavily subsidising its industry and flooding foreign markets with its products, particularly in vehicle and green […]

• What the US midterms mean for ties with China (2026-11-05 06:30)

A sweeping victory for Democrats in US midterm elections this week, giving them control of Congress, presents both an opportunity and challenge for top rival China, analysts say. Here is how the outcome of the vote, which offers the Democratic Party the power to stymie President Donald Trump's maverick foreign policy, could impact the thorny […]

• Hong Kong lawmaker proposes digital ID checks for housing estate votes to combat bid-rigging (2026-11-05 05:08)

A Hong Kong lawmaker has suggested using a government-managed digital platform to verify property owners' identities when casting their ballots in estate meetings, a measure meant to help prevent unauthorised proxy voting. Lawmaker Christine Fong made the proposal at a Legislative Council (LegCo) meeting on Wednesday on combatting bid-rigging, an anti-competitive practice in the building […]

• Jailed Hong Kong activist Joshua Wong sentenced to 10 years over foreign collusion (2026-11-05 03:07)

Jailed Hong Kong pro-democracy activist Joshua Wong has been sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment after pleading guilty to conspiring to collude with foreign forces, his second conviction under a Beijing-imposed national security law. Wong, who turned 30 in jail last month, appeared calm on Thursday as his sentence was handed down at the High Court. [⋯]

• Tai Po fire: Former top official urges gov't to publish building inspection report to clear buyout doubts (2026-11-04 23:30)

A former top Hong Kong official has called on the government to release a structural inspection report of the fire-ravaged Wang Fuk Court to dispel the concerns of homeowners who have rejected the government's apartment buyback offer. Hong Kong's former secretary for transport and housing Anthony Cheung said in an op-ed published in Ming Pao [⋯]

• China seeks arrest of five Uyghurs held in Thailand: Bangkok (2026-11-04 10:02)

Five Uyghurs detained in Thailand since 2014 are subject to Chinese arrest warrants, the kingdom's security chief said Wednesday, adding that a court would decide if they would be returned to China. Human rights groups have raised concerns about the men — members of the Muslim minority group who activists say are persecuted in China [⋯]

• US President Donald Trump congratulates Democrats on midterms, says Iran war played role (2026-11-04 07:29)

President Donald Trump had rare praise for rival Democrats Tuesday after their stunning US midterm elections victory and admitted the Iran war may have played a part in the defeat of his Republican Party. But the 80-year-old refused to take any personal responsibility for the result that upends the final two years of his presidency, [⋯]

• Hong Kong records GDP rise of over 5% in first three quarters, marking strongest growth in 5 years (2026-11-04 04:46)

Hong Kong has seen a strong GDP increase of over 5 per cent in the third quarter of 2026, bringing the growth for the first nine months of the year to a five-year high. Driven by accelerating growth in exports and solid domestic demand, the city's GDP grew by 5.2 per cent in the third [⋯]

• Finance portal MoneySmart apologises after users' sensitive data accessed in IT system hack (2026-11-04 01:30)

Online finance portal MoneySmart told customers on Tuesday that became aware of a data breach last Thursday after hackers compromised its internal IT systems. "These systems hold personal data that customers share with us when they compare or apply for financial products through MoneySmart," it said, according to the email seen by HKFP on Tuesday. [⋯]

• Hong Kong BN(O) visa holders exempt from UK plan to double settlement wait to 10 years, but face tougher English requirement (2026-11-04 00:45)

Hong Kong BN(O) visa holders in the UK will be exempt from a proposal to double the qualifying period for settlement to ten years from 2027. On Monday, UK Home Secretary Shabana Mahmood laid out an immigration overhaul under which those on work visas would no longer automatically gain permanent residency after five years. Refugees [⋯]

• Anti-corruption watchdog charges ex-Johnson Cleaning execs over alleged bribes worth over HK$75m (2026-11-03 23:39)

Hong Kong's anti-corruption watchdog has charged two former senior Johnson Cleaning Services executives who allegedly accepted bribes worth over HK$75 million. William Fung, 54, former director of the firm and former chief executive officer of Johnson's parent company, appeared at Kwun Tong Magistrates' Courts on Monday alongside Jimmy Lee, 57, former general manager of Johnson. [⋯]

• Crypto.com to shut consumer-facing app in Hong Kong next Feb (2026-11-03 23:34)

Singaporean cryptocurrency exchange company Crypto.com will shut its consumer-facing app on February 1 next year, it said on Tuesday. "This decision reflects our ongoing efforts to optimise global operations and allocate resources where we see the most sustainable long-term opportunities," a spokesperson told HKFP on Tuesday. "All impacted customers have received advance notice, we will [⋯]

• Hong Kong prisoner support group says Customs confiscated over 60 books imported from Taiwan (2026-11-03 23:30)

A Hong Kong group that supports people jailed in politics-related cases has said that authorities have confiscated more than 60 books imported from Taiwan for its partner retail outlet. Waiting Bird said in a social media post on Monday that it was meant to receive a shipment of books from Taiwan on October 13, but [⋯]

• Hong Kong police arrest 61-year-old man over suspected drink spiking of Japanese DJ Mao Hamasaki (2026-11-03 08:12)

Hong Kong police have arrested a 61-year-old man for allegedly spiking drinks and drugging a Japanese DJ at a Halloween party. Police said on Tuesday that the suspect was arrested the previous day in Central on suspicion of "administering poison with intent to injure." He has been detained for investigation. Mao Hamasaki, a former adult [⋯]

• Legislature's legal advice arm urges clarity on public interest rules as gov't moves to tighten land records access (2026-11-03 06:22)

The Hong Kong legislature's legal services arm has asked the government to clarify how it would consider applications to access the city's land records on the basis of public interest after passing new rules to tighten media access. The Legislative Council's (LegCo) Assistant Legal Adviser Vanessa Cheng posed the questions in correspondence addressed to the [⋯]

• Sea drone makers compete in Taiwan for soaring investment (2026-11-03 05:50)

Silver-hulled sea drones skim across the water as part of an exhibition in Taiwan where local and foreign companies are competing for a share of surging government investment in uncrewed vehicles to deter China. As Chinese military pressure increases, Taiwan is pouring billions of dollars into aerial and sea drones, which have been widely used [⋯]

• Jailed activist Joshua Wong to be sentenced on Thursday in 2nd national security trial (2026-11-03 04:56)

A Hong Kong court has set Thursday to sentence pro-democracy activist Joshua Wong in his second national security case, which could carry a sentence of up to life imprisonment for the 30-year-old former student leader. High Court Judge William Tam is set to hand down the sentence for Wong’ s conviction for foreign collusion at 9.30am [⋯]

• Yuen Long district councillor jailed for 2.5 years over unlawful sexual intercourse with 13-year-old girl (2026-11-03 04:15)

A Yuen Long district councillor found guilty of having unlawful intercourse with a girl under 16 has been jailed for two and a half years, with the judge saying he lacked remorse. Sei Chun-hing was sentenced at the District Court on Monday after his conviction in September. He was found guilty of having unlawful intercourse [⋯]

• China calls for Mideast dialogue in talks with Iran, Saudi, Oman (2026-11-03 02:43)

China stepped up diplomatic efforts on Monday to resolve the Middle East crisis, urging a return to the negotiating table in back-to-back meetings with Iranian, Omani and Saudi officials in Beijing. The meetings come days after US President Donald Trump issued a fresh war threat more than eight months into the conflict, which was triggered by [⋯]

Source: RTHK English News

• Balmy weather set to overtake cool spell later in week (2026-11-10 04:45)

The Observatory recorded a low of 17.5 degrees Celsius in urban areas on Tuesday morning – the lowest since autumn began this year. Acting senior scientific officer Lam Hok-yin said the city was being affected by relatively strong northerly winds. "When it's windy, body heat is easily blown away, so it feels colder," he said. "Everyone's constitution is different – so when it's windy and cold, we urge people to put on an extra layer before heading out." Lam said Wednesday morning would still be relatively cool, with urban temperatures around 18 degrees and the New Territories at least one or two degrees lower. But with sunny and dry weather, daytime temperatures may rise to around 25 degrees and should climb further later in the week, he pointed out. Looking ahead to winter, he said under the influence of global warming and the super El Niño, Hong Kong's temperatures are very likely to be normal to above normal, with more rainfall than usual. Edited by Tony Sabine

• Safety expert urges new layer to lift system checks (2026-11-10 04:29)

An elevator-safety adviser has urged improvements to the city's three-tier inspection process after 720 lifts were found to be missing fire-resistant door frame components. Maxine Yao, a member of the Electrical and Mechanical Services Department's lifts and escalators safety advisory committee, made the call after Taizoom Elevator was ordered to complete remedial works by the middle of November for two public housing estates and within two to three months for the private buildings. The department's order followed the discovery that about 90 percent of lifts installed by Taizoom lacked the required door frame parts. Speaking on an RTHK radio programme on Tuesday, Yao called the number of lifts involved shocking and said the current process for issuing use or resumption permits could be improved in light of the findings. Under the existing three-tier system, a registered lift contractor carries out a self-inspection, a registered engineer performs an independent thorough examination and the department's engineers then conduct an on-site re-inspection and functional testing. The city has long relied on an integrity-based system, Yao said, arguing that the mechanism could be strengthened with an additional step. "This system has indeed been effective all along, except that in the whole industry this time two engineers of Taizoom had problems. If you ask whether we need to do better, I agree," she said. "I have said I hope the department can introduce independent third-party inspection to add one more step in the middle tier to ensure public safety." Yao also welcomed the department's proposal to expand the digital video and photographic log-book system – currently used to record work details for lifts and escalators – to cover lift upgrades and replacements. "The department has found that since we already have such a good system and platform, why not update it to include upgrading and replacing lifts too in response to public demand," she said. "I think that is a very proactive plan." Yao noted the system was still awaiting updates and said she hoped the department would complete the upgrade before the end of the year to prevent similar incidents from happening again. Edited by Tony Sabine

• Contractors get non-compliance notice over MTR project (2026-11-09 14:20)

The MTR Corporation said on Monday that it had issued a non-compliance notice to the contractors in charge of the Tung Chung West station construction. This came after around 30 columns there were found to be substandard. The railway operator said that it is strictly following up on the mistakes by the relevant contractors, the way they handled the matter and issues over responsibilities. The company is now awaiting a comprehensive report from contractors, along with a remedial proposal. The MTR said it attaches great importance towards railway projects' supervision and work quality, and it will continue to carry out inspections as well as adopt other monitoring measures to ensure quality. The firm will continue to maintain close contact with relevant government departments to ensure that the safety and quality of the works meet the contractual standards during construction and upon completion. It added that it will fully cooperate with the government to probe the incident, and submit a report on time on the cause, remedial plan, as well as the follow-up actions with contractors. The MTR reiterated that it will not tolerate any substandard engineering practices, and it will seriously follow up on the matter. Edited by Aaron Tam

• Evening News on TV32 - Nov 9 (2026-11-09 12:32)

Top stories for Monday, Nov 9, 2026 - China denies spying on Nvidia chief Jensen Huang. - Dozens are trapped as Ocean Park's observation tower breaks down again. - Seven people die in a train collision in Egypt.

• TDC expects over 3k participants at annual IP forum (2026-11-09 10:43)

More than 3,000 participants are expected to join an annual forum held by the Trade Development Council to exchange ideas on intellectual property (IP) development and hunt for business opportunities. The Business of IP Asia Forum will be staged at the Convention and Exhibition Centre in Wan Chai on November 19 and 20. Themed “Powering Commercial Success Through IP and Innovation”, the council’s associate executive director Silas Chu said nearly 100 speakers will discuss how IP and innovation can be used to build competitive advantages and draw capital investments, among others. He said that for the first time, the forum will include a new chapter centred on IP commercialisation that aims to better help enterprises manage their IP. “Previously in the BIP Asia forum, we may be focusing more on creative IP,” Chu said. “But as Hong Kong moves towards the goal of becoming an international I&T centre, we are increasingly seeing a lot of interesting development, especially in the area of AI, in the area of life science and all those deep tech. There will be surging demand as a result.” A startup from the Education University, which is pioneering their AI-enabled storytelling robot to help with students’ learning, is joining the forum. Its director Hades Ho said he hopes to talk to potential clients and experts on how to expand the use of their project. “Now our robot is mainly focused on the education aspect. But to be honest, this robot can [be] used in other aspects, for example, we have some further research on elderly, how to use this robot on elderly,” he said. The Entrepreneur Day that features more than 370 startups and innovation projects across 14 countries and regions, will be held alongside the two-day forum, allowing companies that have just kick-started their operations to conduct business matching and to help them expand. Edited by Aaron Tam

• 40 stranded in mid-air as Ocean Park Tower ride stalls (2026-11-09 10:13)

Dozens of visitors had to be rescued from Ocean Park's observation tower ride on Monday afternoon, after the cabin malfunctioned and stopped mid-air. The 72-metre-tall sightseeing tower is believed to have been brought to a halt by a breakdown, with the Fire Services Department saying it had been alerted to the incident at around 3.30pm. Ocean Park staff used a backup stairwell to evacuate roughly 40 people trapped, while one person who reported feeling unwell was taken to the ground by a firefighter. The director of Electrical and Mechanical Services, Poon Kwok-ying, said the department would investigate the incident to determine the cause. This is the second incident involving the ride in slightly over a year, with the tower attraction also brought to a halt in May 2025, when its safety mechanism was triggered. Passengers were stranded for nearly two hours at that time. The tower, located about 200 metres above sea level, sits on Nam Long Shan and offers panoramic views of Deep Water Bay.Edited by Raymond Yeung

- EMSD orders Taizoom to fix 720 non-compliant lifts (2026-11-09 09:39)

The Electrical and Mechanical Services Department (EMSD) has ordered Taizoom Elevator Company (HK) Limited to complete repairs at two Tenants Purchase Scheme estates by mid-November and to finish remedial work on the remaining private-building lifts within two to three months. EMSD Director Poon Kwok-ying said 720 lifts installed by Taizoom – about 90 percent of the total – had not been fitted with door-frame components required by law. These include lifts in 11 blocks across two Tenants Purchase Scheme estates and in another 338 private buildings. Poon said about 900 lifts in 480 buildings installed by other registered lift contractors had been sampled and inspected, and all were confirmed to have the required door-frame components installed. He said preliminary evidence showed that Taizoom was suspected of serious negligence and misconduct in lift works, and the EMSD will continue its investigation. Poon said a report was made to the police on October 16 because the incident is suspected to involve criminal acts of fraud and providing false statements. The police are conducting a criminal investigation. Citing a fire consultant’s assessment, Poon said the vast majority of the lifts lacking door-frame components were old-style lifts that had been in operation for more than 30 to 50 years, and the buildings concerned were completed before 1990. “At that time, the requirement for landing doors was 60 minutes of fire resistance, and there was no requirement for specific door-frame components,” he said. “The new door panels installed by Taizoom passed the fire-resistance test under BS 476, Part 22, to a rating of at least 120 minutes. So, even without the missing frame components, the overall level of fire safety after the new panels were installed is not lower than it was before. “Nevertheless, failing to install the required components is still unlawful. The EMSD has instructed Taizoom to carry out remedial work on the lifts in the affected buildings as soon as possible. Taizoom must pay all associated costs.” The department has launched a comprehensive review and examination covering new lift installation and major alteration works, inspection and maintenance, and the registration regulation and approval system under the Lifts and Escalators Ordinance. It will also strengthen inspections and sampling, use digital records for works, and apply technology to enhance the overall quality of lift works. The review is expected to be completed before the end of this year. Edited by Aaron Tam

- Non-binding motions to come with research data: Legco (2026-11-09 09:07)

The Legislative Council on Monday said that from next year, members must submit their research findings and relevant suggestions when they table a non-binding motion. Speaking at a luncheon attended by Chief Executive John Lee, the Executive Council and government officials, Legco President Starry Lee said the move was to make public policy discussions more " scientific". "This will help the government and public better understand the intent and rationale of the motions, as well as for the public to understand debates in the chamber," she said. According to Legco's website, members can move motions "not intended to have legislative effect" to express their views on issues of public concern, or call on the government to takecertain actions. Lee also pledged to continue supporting the administration in improving itsgovernance efficacy by providing policy recommendations. "The Legislative Council and itscommittees have so far conducted 21 local surveys on various topics. In the future, Legco willconduct more site inspections and strengthen policy advocacy capabilities," Lee said. "I willwork with the Legco Secretariat, and I also welcome the participation of members, to regularlyselect important issues for site visits, with the aim to come up with solid recommendations forthe SAR Government, Legco committees and society to follow up." She added that the LegcoSecretariat has been using technology and big data to make the chamber more public-friendly.Recapping the legislature's work, Lee said more than HK$130 billion of funding requests hadbeen approved so far this year, with approximately one third of those funds going to projects inthe Northern Metropolis. She said the Northern Metropolis Development Bill would resume itssecond reading on Wednesday, after a committee worked overtime to complete itsdeliberations. Edited by Tony Sabine

- Ta Kwu Ling new town to welcome residents by 2035 (2026-11-09 04:43)

Residents and businesses at Ta Kwu Ling could start to move out from mid-2028 to facilitate the redevelopment of the area into a commercial and industrial zone, the government said. The Development Bureau added it would "actively utilise market forces" to speed up the border town's development, which could welcome the first batch of residents from 2035. Under the Northern Metropolis blueprint, the Ta Kwu Ling New Development Area, which spans 1,175 hectares, is to be developed in phases due to its sheer scale. A priority development area has been earmarked adjacent to the Heung Yuen Wai border control point, which began operating in 2020. In a document submitted to the North District Council, the bureau said the priority development area would be expanded by 21 percent to 250 hectares. A university town within the priority development area would now occupy 75 hectares, compared with 30 hectares previously. The bureau said that in response to public views, about seven hectares would be reserved for the Hong Kong Academy for Performing Arts to build a secondary campus. Land earmarked specifically for industries would shrink from 64 to 19 hectares, as some businesses are expected to be incorporated into the university town. As a result of the adjustments, the priority development area is now envisaged to provide 13,000 to 14,000 new flats, down from 17,000 to 19,000. They will house an expected population of 34,000 to 37,000, down from 45,000 to 49,000. The priority development area will provide roughly 27,000 new jobs, compared to the previous estimate of 47,000. "According to the current plan, land acquisition and demolition work will commence in the second quarter of 2028, with land levelling works starting in the fourth quarter of the same year," the bureau said. "The first batch of land [including part of the Ta Kwu Ling University Town campus site] is expected to be completed no earlier than 2030, while the first batch of new residents is expected to move in gradually starting in 2035." The government pledged to provide resettlement, compensation and assistance to residents and businesses, who are expected to move out from the second quarter of 2028. Officials will solicit views from district councillors on expediting the priority development area's transformation at a meeting on Tuesday. Edited by Tony Sabine

- Hong Kong must widen surgical robotics access: FS (2026-11-09 04:32)

Financial Secretary Paul Chan has urged the surgical robotics industry to move beyond proving technical precision and focus on widening access to care, as Hong Kong seeks to become a global hub for medical-device innovation. Speaking at the inaugural Surgical Futures Forum organised by Hong Kong-based surgical robotics company Cornerstone Robotics, Chan said the field had spent 25 years proving its technical capability. The next task, he said, was to broaden access so more surgeons could use robotic systems and more patients could benefit. "Design and cost remain major barriers. Today's mainstream systems are built for the best-resourced hospitals. Their price, their footprint and their training requirements limit where they can be installed and how widely they can be used," he said. "That helps explain why global penetration remains below five percent. If we believe innovation should serve humanity, progress in surgical robotics must mean more than better technology — it must mean reaching more patients because behind these barriers are countless people still waiting to benefit." Chan said the clearest sign of momentum came in September, when global medtech company Medtronic announced a strategic investment of about US$700 million in Cornerstone Robotics and secured distribution rights for Cornerstone’s surgical system in selected international markets. He described the commitment from a global medical-technology leader as a powerful endorsement of Hong Kong’s innovation sector. "This partnership shows that technology developed here can earn the confidence of industry leaders and, through collaboration, reach international markets," he said, calling it a milestone for both companies and another example of Hong Kong innovation going global. The finance chief also cited a Hong Kong-developed robotic platform now installed at a leading surgical training centre in Strasbourg, France, as evidence that the city’s medtech sector is ready to train surgeons from around the world. Beyond individual companies, he pitched Hong Kong as an end-to-end support system for medical-device innovation, spanning long-term patient capital, biotech fundraising, regulation, clinical data and cross-boundary trials. Edited by Tony Sabine

- Man dies after being hit by bus in North Point (2026-11-09 03:04)

Police said a man in his forties has died after being hit by a bus in North Point on Monday. Officers received a report at around 8am that a Citybus travelling east along King’s Road had struck a male pedestrian at the junction with Tin Chong Street. The man was unconscious when taken to Pamela Youde Nethersole Eastern Hospital, where he was later pronounced dead. Some lanes of King’s Road heading towards Chai Wan were closed following the accident, but all lanes have since been reopened. Edited by Tony Sabine

- Police flag the use of AI by criminals (2026-11-09 01:55)

Police are warning that more criminals are making use of artificial intelligence to carry out technology-related crimes, leading to a rise in ransomware cases in the first three quarters of this year. The number of these kinds of cases rose by 18 percent year-on-year to 40 during the period. Despite this, there was an overall dip of 12 percent in the number of tech crimes to21,573 cases, along with a 15 percent drop in total losses that stood at almost HK$3.9 billion.Chief Superintendent Raymond Lam from the Cyber Security and Technology Crime Bureaunoted that agentic AI – autonomous AI systems that execute tasks with minimal humansupervision – was widely adopted by criminals to path the attack kill chains in order to carry outhack attacks. "They may be used in that kind of cyberattack, like system scanning, vulnerabilityscanning, penetration, etc," he said. "Indeed, we understand that the use of AI, they obviouslyincreased the speed of attack, the volume, and the intrusiveness, so that the attack will be moreeffective." Police officials believe criminals have scaled up their reconnaissance and phishingattacks before initiating ransomware attacks using AI. The growing trend highlighted theimportance of Hong Kong police collaborating with both mainland authorities and Interpol, asthe rapid evolution of AI poses a challenge to law enforcement. To meet the challenge, the SARjoined Interpol’s first year-long AI-powered cyber operation targeting potential phishing andfraudulent links. Using an AI-analysis engine, created by Hong Kong police, which can analyse awebsite’s features, such as its domain and the technical infrastructure, officers can take downor block sites that are deemed risky, before the links reach more people. EnriqueHernandez-Gonzalez, Assistant Director of Cybercrime Operations at Interpol’s CybercrimeDirectorate said such intelligence was shared with 47 jurisdictions. As a result, among theroughly 57,000 links that were investigated in the campaign, about 90 percent of them havebecome inaccessible. “Hong Kong has information about malicious domains or victims thatmay be located in other countries,” he said. “Using Interpol’s channel, we put thatinformation in the outlets of these countries, so they can take action.” The second phase of theoperation – featuring the involvement of more than 20 jurisdictions across five continents – waslaunched last month. Edited by Tony Sabine

- Evening News on TV32 - Nov 8 (2026-11-08 12:30)

Top stories for Sunday, Nov 8, 2026 - Paul Chan says the government will boost high-value tourism. - Officials demand answers over building defects found at a future MTR station. - Poland begins two days of mourning following a deadly mass shooting.

- New buildings body to recruit about 90 staff: Linn (2026-11-08 08:05)

Secretary for Development Bernadette Linn said the Building Maintenance Support and Services Council plans to recruit around 90 people in the initial phase. The government announced the formation of the new body in the wake of the deadly Wang Fuk Court fire last year, and it aims to help homeowners with building maintenance and renovation works. The council will be set up by the end of the year, offering a paid service to handle tendering and evaluation on their behalf. Speaking on a TV programme on Sunday, Linn said the new staff will include professionals, technical staff, as well as support and administrative personnel. "We want to begin recruitment now so that new hires can be onboard as quickly as possible, and the goal is to have all these staff join in phases and be fully in place between the beginning and the middle of next year." On whether to adopt the two-envelope approach for projects – which assesses the technical aspects and the price separately – the development minister said that could applyto more complex projects. And she doesn't believe it would raise the price tag. " Thetwo-envelope system mainly depends on the weighting which is predetermined, and ultimately,quality is guaranteed, and it won't drive up prices as a result." Linn noted that penalties andspot checks would be strengthened, and will not rule out the possibility of introducing a demeritpoints system in the future. Separately, she said more than 1,000 training-related applicationshad been approved under the Construction Innovation and Technology Fund as of September.The government established the fund in 2018, entrusting the Construction Industry Council tofinance construction technology training programmes for companies and organisations. Writingin a blog post, Linn said the total funding amount reached HK$50 million, benefiting more than400 companies and organisations. She noted that more than 4,500 people have enrolled incourses offered by the Construction Industry Council over the past three years. Thedevelopment chief stressed her bureau will continue to promote local training and drive the useof technology to raise overall construction productivity. Edited by Edmond Fong

- Three hurt after hit by landing paraglider (2026-11-08 07:29)

Three people were injured on Sunday after being struck by a paraglider that was trying to land at the Ngong Ping campsite at Ma On Shan Country Park. Police said they received a report shortly after 12.30pm from a 42-year-old woman, who said she had been knocked down by a paraglider piloted by a man. Her son and another youngster, aged 14 and 15 respectively, were also hit. Officers said the trio sustained head and back injuries and were airlifted by the Government Flying Service to hospital for treatment. Edited by Edmond Fong

- Govt to boost high-value tourism and Mice (2026-11-08 05:17)

Financial Secretary Paul Chan on Sunday said the government would continue to support the growth of high-value tourism alongside the Meetings, Incentives, Conferences, and Exhibitions (Mice) industry. Writing in his weekly blog, Chan noted that Hong Kong had been buzzing with major events over the past week, including financial summits and international exhibitions. He highlighted the three-day inaugural "Festival of Connoisseurs", which showcased an array of luxury goods such as supercars, yachts and jewellery, noting that it drew over 3,000 visitors from around the world. Citing industry research, Chan said visitors attending international exhibitions spend an average of HK$9,300 per person, which is 70 percent higher than a typical overnight tourist. The research, he said, also estimated that the exhibition industry contributed over HK$50 billion to Hong Kong’ s economy in 2024 and created around 67,000 full-time jobs. Chan said the government would continue to vigorously promote mega events across different fields and improve supporting facilities. The Tourism Board, he added, would also continue to work with the industry to tailor more unique experiences and services for high-value visitors. Looking ahead, Chan noted that Hong Kong's capacity for large-scale Mice events would expand by more than 40 percent upon the completion of Phase 2 of AsiaWorld-Expo and the Wan Chai North redevelopment project. Edited by Tony Sabine

• DOJ eyes closer ties with legal sector for global push (2026-11-08 03:57)

Secretary for Justice Paul Lam on Sunday said the government hoped to work closely with the legal sector to help practitioners better navigate the changing international environment and strengthen external exchanges. Speaking on a Commercial Radio programme, Lam stressed that collaboration was a central theme of this year’s Legal Week, which concluded on Friday, demonstrating the government's drive to take the initiative. "The Department of Justice often plays a leading role. We hope that more of our local friends from the legal sector will participate, understand the latest environment, and make new connections — whether from the mainland or overseas. Internally, we must collaborate, but more importantly, we need to collaborate with partners outside Hong Kong," he said. For Hong Kong to truly live up to its reputation as an international legal centre, the justice secretary stressed the SAR needs to strengthen relationships with external legal institutions and engage in more direct communication. Describing it as “symbolic”, Lam noted that the International Institute for the Unification of Private Law held its centenary celebration in Hong Kong during Legal Week while concurrently hosting the opening ceremony for its Asia-Pacific Liaison Office. He stressed that Hong Kong secured the institution's first office outside its seat in Rome in its 100-year history with the country's support. He added that Hong Kong played an important role in helping the nation promote a fairer, and rules-based international order. Edited by Tony Sabine

• Substandard columns found at MTR site in Tung Chung (2026-11-08 00:35)

The Buildings Department on Saturday said it had found dozens of substandard columns at the MTR station that is currently under construction in Tung Chung West. Around 30 such columns were identified by the registered structural engineers (RSE) working on the project. The department asked that the RSE submit an investigation report and propose remedial measures by the middle of this month. The department will review these submissions, continue to monitor the situation closely, and oversee the necessary corrective works to ensure that all construction meets the relevant safety and quality standards. In response to media questions, the department indicated that it had identified the issues during a routine site inspection and quality audit on the 27th of last month. Upon confirming that two concrete columns were substandard, the department said it immediately instructed the RSE team and the Registered Contractor to conduct a comprehensive investigation and carry out corrective works as soon as possible. The MTR Corporation has since ordered a suspension of relevant construction activities. As part of standard procedures, the RSE’s supervision team carried out further inspections following the progressive removal of the concrete work, uncovering similar defects in additional concrete columns; these findings were reported to the department last Tuesday. The department further stated that, as the temporary supports for the floor slab had not yet been removed, the identified concrete defects posed no risk to the structural integrity of the station. These temporary supports may only be removed once a team of registered structural engineers was satisfied with the relevant works. The department said all such procedures were carried out in accordance with the approved plans while its staff had conducted routine inspections of the site. A preliminary review by the department revealed no evidence of intentional deviation from the approved plans, nor had it found any instances where thefollow-up actions taken by the personnel in charge violated relevant codes or regulations.Edited by Tony Sabine

• Evening News on TV32 - Nov 7 (2026-11-07 12:33)

Top stories for Saturday, Nov 7, 2026 - Chief Executive John Lee calls on young people to be curious and courageous, and shine on the global stage. - An infectious diseases expert says the cooler weather could extend the flu season and lead to more serious cases. - Pope Leo begins his tour of South America.

• Health gear firms set to be not left to own devices (2026-11-07 11:07)

The Health Bureau said it is striving to introduce a medical devices bill next year to replace the current voluntary administrative regulatory regime. In a paper submitted to the Legislative Council, it said a dual-track regulatory model covering both pre-market and post-market risk management would be adopted for medical devices. This includes the implementation of a registration system and a licensing system for traders to ensure that medical devices supplied in Hong Kong meet safety and quality standards. The paper states that the proposed registration system would primarily involve classifying different types of medical devices by risk levels. Some general devices and in-vitro diagnostic medical devices must be registered with the Department of Health before they can be launched on the Hong Kong market. These include hypodermic needles, vision-correction contact lenses, urine test strips and self-test blood glucose reagents. Local manufacturers, importers and wholesalers of medical devices must obtain the relevant licences before supplying the products in Hong Kong. The new mechanism will also require traders to report medical device-related incidents, such as incidents that pose a public health threat or may lead to death or a serious deterioration in health, and to take remedial measures that meet the department’s requirements. The authorities stressed that the aim is to enhance regulatory oversight and mitigate the consequences of such incidents. The legislative proposals will be discussed in a health services panel meeting on Friday. Edited by Azam Khan

• France's Gehri, Russia's Isakova win HK triathlon leg (2026-11-07 10:22)

France’s Nils Serre Gehri produced a dramatic late surge to win the men’s individual title at the World Triathlon Cup Hong Kong on Saturday, while Russia’s Diana Isakova continued her strong run of form by claiming the women’s race. Gehri, who won the U23 title in Pontevedra, Spain, in September, clocked 50 minutes and 14 seconds. He overtook Australia’s Callum McClusky right at the finish line to seal the victory, with Spain’s David Castro Fajardo rounding out the podium in third. Hong Kong, China’s Nicholas Tsang finished 58th in 54 minutes and 44 seconds. In the women’s race, Isakova arrived in Hong Kong fresh from a World Cup win in Rome and made it back-to-back victories, finishing in 55 minutes and 39 seconds. Luxembourg’s Jeanne Lehair took second, followed by Huang Anqi of the national team. Hilda Choi was the top finisher among Hong Kong triathletes in 37th place, with Cade Wright 39th and Bailee Brown 50th. The roughly 24-kilometre course began along the Central and Wan Chaiwaterfront, with athletes opening with a 750-metre swim in Victoria Harbour. They then tackledan 18.5-kilometre bike leg past Expo Drive, the International Finance Centre and the CentralPiers before closing with a five-kilometre run to the finish line on Lung Wo Road. The mixedteam relay is scheduled for Sunday. Edited by Azam Khan

- Three arrested over HK$4m craft beer scam (2026-11-07 10:06)

Two men and a woman have been arrested on suspicion of conspiracy to defraud in connection with an alleged scheme that induced people to invest in craft beer machines. The suspects, aged between 46 and 54, were said to have held the roles of company director, office person-in-charge and investor recruiter, police said. An investigation found that the alleged criminal syndicate began operating last November by luring people into investing in craft beer machines on the promise of high returns. The syndicate are alleged to have claimed that the machines would be rented out on the mainland and that the annual return rate would reach 60 percent, according to police. Officers said the syndicate held investment seminars and took prospective investors to its office to sample beer. It would initially pay returns to investors but later stopped. Police said the syndicate had no operations in Hong Kong and that some of the invested funds were found to have been transferred to personal accounts. So far, police have contacted six victims whose losses amounted to more than HK$4 million. Edited by Azam Khan

- Govt rebuts ten-nation statement on Wong case (2026-11-07 09:49)

The government on Saturday expressed strong dissatisfaction with and firm opposition to a joint statement by ten countries on the sentencing of Joshua Wong for conspiracy to commit collusion, saying it distorted facts and smeared the SAR. A government spokesman said the statement by the United States, the United Kingdom, France, Germany, Japan, Italy, Australia, Canada, the Netherlands and New Zealand disregarded facts, interfered with the SAR's independent judicial power, and urged the countries to stop interfering in Hong Kong matters, which are purely China's internal affairs. Wong pleaded guilty to conspiracy to collude with foreign countries or external elements to endanger national security, and the court sentenced him independently on the evidence, the spokesperson said. "Attempting to distort criminal judgments handed down in accordance with the law into actions targeting 'political expression' or 'political participation' is purely political manipulation deliberately intended to confuse the public and distort right and wrong," the spokesman said. "Hong Kong is a society underpinned by the rule of law. The HKSAR Government has been consistently fulfilling its constitutional duty to safeguard national security in accordance with the law, upholding the principles that laws must be observed and strictly enforced to bring offenders to account." Edited by Altis Wong

- Proxy votes loom large in building management law fix (2026-11-07 08:29)

Secretary for Home and Youth Affairs Alice Mak said Hong Kong would strengthen provisions for proxy-vote checks and continue to study a cap on such votes following the end of a second round of consultations on Building-Management Ordinance amendments. The public consultation, she said on Saturday, drew 500 responses, with more than half expressingreservations about a proposed cap on proxy votes. "If we set a cap of 20, then when proxy votesare submitted to an owners' corporation and it receives 22, how can it determine which is the21st or 22nd? How should the verification be carried out at submission?" Mak said. " Should it becounted by the time of its submission to the management office or by the time the personsigned the proxy form? So there are some practical difficulties, and we understand this." Maksaid the government would continue to study the cap and related issues, including who couldbe appointed as a proxy, and would explore electronic proxy appointments as a way toovercome operational difficulties. "For the whole proxy-vote system, we must ensure, in thedirection of our amendments, the system is not abused and that proxy votes cannot be forged,"she said. "We need to make sure the proxy appointment is genuine and that the operation isworkable on the ground level. It has to operate practically without difficulties to avoid potentialdisputes." Mak went on to say that a paper had already been submitted to the LegislativeCouncil, and that the matter would be discussed next week. Edited by Azam Khan

- Lawmakers call for cancel culture to hit bid-riggers (2026-11-07 08:23)

Lawmakers on Saturday voiced hope that a newly established joint task force can change the culture of the building maintenance and renovation industry by actively weeding out bad apples. They were speaking following an announcement on Friday that 28 people had been arrested in an operation against a suspected triad-linked bid-rigging syndicate in the sector. It was the first operation by a joint task force – made up of police, the ICAC and the Competition Commission – that was set up following the release of the report by an independent committee probing last November's deadly fire at Wang Fuk Court in Tai Po. Speaking on a radio programme, DAB lawmaker Chan Hok-fung said the new joint task force should not be targeting bid-rigging on a case-by-case basis. "I think it's only at the source that the problem can truly be solved," he said. "If the government doesn't get involved, doesn't intervene heavily and doesn't reverse this distorted way the market operates, the problem can't be solved." Lam Chun-sing, who chairs the Federation of Hong Kong and Kowloon Labour Unions, called for firms convicted of bribery or competition offences to be struck off contractors' lists. "What some contractors fear most isn't a fine – it's not being allowed to take on work in the future," he said. Edited by Azam Khan

- John Lee calls on youth to be curious and courageous (2026-11-07 07:25)

Chief Executive John Lee on Saturday urged young people to be curious and courageous as Hong Kong hosts the third Youth Development Summit. In a video speech for the summit, themed "Pioneering New Horizons, Venturing into the Future", in Wan Chai, he said that when young people are empowered, communities are strengthened and the world moves forward. Under the the territory's first five-year plan, Lee said, Hong Kong will enhance youth development opportunities, nurturing a new generation to cultivate affection for the country and Hong Kong, a global perspective, and an ambitious and positive mindset. "We are expanding international exposure through exchanges, internships, and learning experiences," he said. "Working with our schools, businesses and community partners, we are cultivating anenvironment where young people can unleash their potential, thrive and shine on the globalstage." For his part, Chief Secretary Eric Chan said he was confident government measureswould help Hong Kong's young people serve the needs of the economy, the community and thecountry. "That includes participating in the development of the Guangdong-Hong Kong-MacaoGreater Bay Area, as well as the Belt and Road Initiative," he said. " We will continue to deepenpatriotic education for young people while helping them broaden their international horizons."Edited by Azam Khan

- US enterprises 'surprise' in latest HK strategic batch (2026-11-07 05:08)

The United States is the largest source of overseas firms in Hong Kong’s latest batch of companies welcomed by the Office for Attracting Strategic Enterprises (Oases). Last month, Oases welcomed 18 enterprise partners in its seventh batch, bringing the cumulative number of strategic enterprises attracted to Hong Kong to 142. "In terms of overseas enterprises, you may be a bit surprised, but the United States has the largest number; of course there is also Europe," said Oases director-general Peter Yan on an RTHK radio programme on Saturday. "This time I am also very happy that for the first time we have a Korean enterprise coming to Hong Kong and also a Japanese enterprise coming to Hong Kong as strategic enterprises." On the mainland side, Yan said the enterprises came from various cities such as Beijing, Shanghai and Shenzhen. " This time we also explored more other cities that are quite outstanding, especially in advanced manufacturing and new energy; we are also attracting them," he said. "In medical technology, other cities are also developing quite well – for example, Hangzhou in AI, and Nanjing and Suzhou." Yan said artificial intelligence and life and health technology are two relatively large sectors represented in the batch, with each accounting for about 30 percent of the total, while fintech and new energy each accounted for more than 10 percent. The 142 strategic enterprises that have settled in Hong Kong, he enumerated, have committed to a total investment of HK$84 billion and will create about 26,700 high-end jobs. His office has been monitoring and following up on the companies’ development, and both capital investment and job creation have now exceeded their targets. Looking at the first six batches of strategic enterprises, Yan said capital investment has exceeded pledged figures by about 30 percent. He added that Oases carefully selects strategic enterprises, gaining an in-depth understanding of about 20 to 30 percent of the companies it contacts and helping them draw up development plans for Hong Kong. Typically, the office contacts companies several months before they settle in the city and follows up for more than a year, discussing their first concrete landing project and matching them with policies or stakeholders such as universities, investors and the business sector to help ensure a tangible industrial contribution. Edited by Robert Kemp

- Colder weather 'may worsen flu risks for children' (2026-11-07 05:01)

A paediatric infectious diseases expert warned on Saturday that colder weather could prolong the current flu season and lead to more critical cases in children. Mike Kwan, president of the Asian Society for Paediatric Infectious Diseases, said that if infection numbers stay high, critical cases will rise in tandem. "Since the weather is going to get more cold, and also we are goinginto the winter season, I really worry that the current flu season will merge with the winter fluseason," he said. "So then you experience a very, very long period of the flu infection. Andsubsequently... [I am] really worried that there will be more paediatric critical cases or evenmortality." Kwan urged parents whose children had yet to receive this season's influenzavaccine to get them vaccinated as soon as possible. Edited by Robert Kemp

- Firefighters tackle blaze at paper offering warehouse (2026-11-07 01:15)

A Yuen Long warehouse storing paper funeral offerings caught fire on Friday night. The blaze in Pak Sha Tsuen began just before 11 pm. About half an hour later, the Fire Services Department upgraded it to a No. 3 Alarm, the third highest on a scale of five. Firefighters deployed three jets and three breathing apparatus teams. They managed to put out the blaze before 3 am. Police say 12 people were evacuated. No one was hurt. Edited by Robert Kemp

- Evening News on TV32 - Nov 6 (2026-11-06 12:33)

Top stories for Friday, Nov 6, 2026 - The Exchange Fund records a third-quarter investment income of almost $19 billion. - Police say they will roll out facial recognition technology across their CCTV network this month. - Protests have erupted across Paraguay after one of the country's largest banks was shut down over a solvency crisis.

- 28 nabbed in first task force raid against bid-rigging (2026-11-06 11:18)

Authorities said on Friday that 28 people were arrested in an operation against a suspected triad-linked bid-rigging syndicate targeting building maintenance and renovation projects. Secretary for Security Chris Tang said it was the first operation by the joint task force made up of police, the ICAC and the Competition Commission, which was set up after the Wang Fuk Court fire last year. Tang said the syndicate was looking to cash in before the government's anti-bid-rigging policies takes effect. Under pretexts such as fluctuating material prices and the urgent need to start works, it tried to get homeowners to sign contracts quickly, so its preferred engineering consultants and contractors would be selected in a bid to rake in huge profits at the last minute, he said. "The syndicate involved at least 20 buildings or estates, including 12 that have already awarded the contract and eight that have yet to award the contract," the security minister told reporters. "The awarded sum is about HK$100 million and the to-be-awarded amount is also about HK$100 million." Officials will contact the owners' corporations of the affected estates to offer assistance. Those arrested include directors and staff from a property management company, six contractors and 10 consultancy firms, along with one member of an owners' corporation. Several arrestees, Tang said, were suspected to have triad affiliations. They were arrested for offences including deception, forgery, conspiracy to defraud and conspiracy to offer an advantage to an agent, among others. Separately, police smashed seven illegal premises suspected to be controlled by triads across the city and arrested 38 people. Tang said the syndicate allegedly funnelled profits from bid-rigging to illegal gambling dens and vice establishments. He added a 24-hour hotline and a reward scheme have been set up to encourage the public to report suspected bid-rigging, with all information kept strictlyconfidential. Edited by Edmond Fong

• 'Unlimited land searches raise privacy concerns' (2026-11-06 09:07)

A development official on Friday said a lack of restrictions for land record searches may lead to privacy concerns, prompting the authorities to adjust the mechanism. Her remarks came after the government proposed legislative amendments, saying land record searches must meet one of nine specified purposes. Speaking to lawmakers, Permanent Secretary for Development of Planning and Lands Doris Ho said there should be room for the media to carry out investigative reporting by allowing the search in the public interest, including the reporting of large-scale unauthorised building works. “We believe that there should be a mechanism – a not too difficult one – for the media to carry out reporting that serves public interest,” she said. “We want to have this type of reporting. Therefore, although an application and some information will be required in the future… we believe the chance of approval is very high.” Ho added that although there is no appeal mechanism, if an application is rejected, the applicant could submit grounds that were not previously provided for authorities to reconsider. Authorities are also looking at the introduction of a mechanism to inform home owners whose properties are being searched, she said. Edited by Aaron Tam

• Record 400-plus HK firms join Shanghai import expo (2026-11-06 08:04)

A record high of more than 400 Hong Kong businesses are taking part in the China International Import Expo in Shanghai hoping to use the event as a launchpad for entry into the mainland market. Among the first-time exhibitors is a Hong Kong accounting firm, which has seen a 30-percent surge over the past year in mainland clients seeking to expand overseas. Man Law, CEO of the firm's greater China division, told RTHK that venturing abroad was no longer just a trend, but a practical necessity for managing risks and driving growth. The expo, he said, is an ideal stage to highlight Hong Kong's role as a springboard for international growth, particularly through tax incentives. "Suppose you have set up an office and hired staff in Hong Kong," Law said. "When expanding into Southeast Asia or investing in other foreign markets, you can take advantage of the double taxation avoidance agreements signed between Hong Kong and many countries. "At their peak, tax savings could exceed 50 percent." Another first-time exhibitor is a craft brewery that is working up a thirst at the expo for its award-winning, Hong Kong-made beer. The brewery's marketing director said the brand aims to tap the mainland market, confident that its craft beers will be competitive as many mainland consumers have a strong appetite for Hong Kong products. The event has also drawn local academic institutions, including the Hong Kong Polytechnic University. PolyU vice-president Zheng Zijian said the university, which has established 12 research institutes on the mainland over the past three years for incubation programmes, has brought innovation projects such as robots and food technology to the expo. The institution, he stressed, has benefited from the mainland's comprehensive domestic industrial chain and robust support from local governments. “Our practice over the past few years is to take the path of deep integration with the mainland and contribute to integration with the country's talent, science and technology, and education,” Zheng said. Edited by Aaron Tam

- Police honour fallen officer Chu at memorial (2026-11-06 07:29)

Police paid tribute to senior police constable Chu Chun-kwok, who died in September, at the Force Remembrance Day ceremony on Friday. Chu was paralysed after he was attacked while on duty in 2005 and passed away this year at the age of 52. The ceremony was led by police commissioner Joe Chow, who joined police representatives in honouring full-time and auxiliary officers killed in the line of duty. In his address, Chow said the fallen officers had given their lives for Hong Kong’s safety and stability. Their example, he added, places a responsibility on current officers to carry on the values and work they stood for. Turning to Chu, Chow said his death, along with the sacrifices of other fallen officers, showed a firm commitment to protecting the public and their property and to moving the force forward. He described their dedication as a guide for the force as it seeks to improve and meet future challenges. Chow also said the sacrifices of those who came before had created a strong foundation for both the force and society, and urged officers to remain united and committed to serving the community. The ceremony included the sounding of the "Last Post" and a two-minute silence. Wreaths were laid by Chow, police commandant Johnny Leung and representatives of police formations and associations before the Books of Remembrance, which list the names of fallen officers. Edited by Aaron Tam

- Choi to seek additional funding for university towns (2026-11-06 06:47)

Secretary for Education Christine Choi said on Friday that her bureau would seek additional funding for the development of university towns at the Northern Metropolis. In an interview with a local news outlet, she said universities would require much more funding from the financial secretary than the HK$10 billion loan set aside for them to build campuses there. However, she also pointed out that the government had to take into consideration a need to prioritise public funding allocations. Given that the development at the three university towns – located in San Tin, Hung Shui Kiu and Ta Kwu Ling – would be carried out in phases, Choi said she believed institutions would not need to go heavily into debt in the process. The government has been taking applications for the three sites slated for the Hung Shui Kiu University Town, which spans around 26 hectares in total, since September. Choi said institutions need not to be in a hurry to compete for the sites, as they only account for less than 10 percent of the 300-hectare Northern Metropolis university town area. On whether leading universities from outside the SAR would also participate in the project, Choi said she believed they would be inclined to collaborate with local institutions in setting up joint laboratories and research centres, as they have to take into consideration their finances and the geopolitical situation. At a Legislative Council panel meeting, Choi said the SAR’s university town plan is very different from the ones on the mainland by having compounding advantages that place Hong Kong in a unique position. For instance, she said, the city is highly international and diversified. “Our institutions have long enjoyed a globally renowned reputation in academic and research fields,"

Choi said. "Also, in terms of our ability to attract top talent as well as in aspects such as policiesand the legal system, Hong Kong also has unique advantages.” Choi added that Hong Kongwould also complement other university towns on the mainland. Edited by Aaron Tam

- Exchange Fund makes HK$18.6bn as tough quarter looms (2026-11-06 06:06)

The Hong Kong Monetary Authority said on Friday it chalked up an income of HK$18.6 billion from Exchange Fund investments in the third quarter as its chief executive warned of uncertainties in the fourth quarter. Gains from investments in Hong Kong stocks came in at HK$9.1 billion while the return from bond investments only amounted to HK$300 million. Investments in other equities contributed HK$1.5 billion while foreign exchange investment brought HK$7.7 billion. The authority said total investment income in the first three quarters of this year amounted to HK$171.9 billion. Speaking after attending a meeting of the Legislative Council’s financial affairs panel, authority chief executive Eddie Yue said the fund's performance would continue to fluctuate this quarter, describing it as a “difficult quarter with uncertainties”. The uncertainties run the gamut from Middle East tensions, financial conditions in major markets, to developments on the artificial intelligence front. “The US midterm election results have drawn market attention to whether the AI build-out and data-centre construction will slow down, as many states appear to be resistant to it,” Yue pointed out. “This also contributed to the volatility in the stock market [on Thursday night].” However, Yue emphasised that the Exchange Fund is a long-term venture and that people should look at its long-term returns rather than focus on short-term results. The authority, he also stressed, has been maintaining a diversified allocation of assets to make the portfolio more defensive. Edited by Aaron Tam

- Privacy chief backs tighter land-search rules (2026-11-06 04:01)

Privacy commissioner Ada Chung expressed support on Friday for government moves to tighten land record search arrangements, while raising concerns that misuse of land registry data may be getting worse. Her comments come as the government tabled eight pieces of subsidiary legislation in the Legislative Council for the changes. Under the new arrangements, land searches must meet one of nine specified purposes. Speaking on RTHK, Chung said the purposes – which could be part of property deals and valuations – had to be concrete and clear so searchers would stick to declarations of their intended use of the data and not stray into potentially misusing it. She said her office had received 20 complaints in five years about alleged misuse of land registry data, which included instances where owners were doxxed on social media, and the sending of promotional mail. Six complaints came this year alone, Chung pointed out. "We've seen cases where land registry data was used for ... other purposes such as cyberbullying and doxxing. Not a single case of that kind should happen, and we've already had six this year, so the trend is worsening," she said. Chung said the new rules on land searches make the system clearer, better protect owners' privacy, and help people to avoid breaking the law. She noted that the Personal Data (Privacy) Ordinance's exemption for journalistic activities also requires a public-interest basis, matching the purpose of the new arrangements. Edited by

Aaron Tam

- 'FundHK' crowdfunding website not associated with RTHK (2026-11-06 03:53)

Radio Television Hong Kong (RTHK) said on Friday it has no ties with a crowdfunding website operating under the name “FundHK” that used the acronym “RTHK” in its promotional materials and claimed that “RTHK” is one of its “media and institutional partners”. "RTHK hereby clarifies that it has no affiliation, partnership, collaboration, authorisation, endorsement, or any other form of relationship whatsoever with FundHK or its operating entity," an RTHK statement said. The broadcaster said any representation suggesting otherwise is unauthorised and does not reflect the position of RTHK. It said members of the public who suspect fraud or become aware of any potentially unlawful activities are advised to report the matter to police immediately and seek appropriate assistance. Edited by Aaron Tam

- HK can help 'bend the curve' on rising drug costs: FS (2026-11-06 03:41)

Financial Secretary Paul Chan on Friday said Hong Kong can play a key role in reversing the rising cost of bringing new medicines to patients, as he opened the third International Bio-Computing Innovation Summit in the SAR. In his opening speech, Chan drew on two contrasting "laws" to frame the challenge facing the life sciences industry. Moore's Law describes how the cost of computing power has gone down – while medicine is going down the opposite path. For some seven decades, he said, the cost of bringing a new drug to patients roughly doubled every nine years, a phenomenon known as Eroom's Law. "Behind that rising curve are promising treatments that were never able to secure funding, and patients waiting for better medical options," Chan said. "Eroom's Law describes the past. It needs not dictate the future." Chan identified three forces that could help "bend the curve", and said Hong Kong could contribute to each. The first is the power of computing to transform biological research, he said, as gene sequencing becomes cheaper and AI allows scientists not only to read the code of life, but to model and "write" it – designing molecules, antibodies and enzymes rather than relying on laboratory trial and error. He noted that a drug discovered by generative AI entered phase three clinical trials this year, and that the company behind it is listed in Hong Kong. Regulators, he added, are beginning to accept evidence from computer models and alternatives to animal testing. The second force, Chan said, is the changing geography of drug innovation. " China now is no longer just a market for global pharmaceutical companies. It has become an indispensable part of their global research and development network," he said, noting that overseas licensing deals for innovative drugs from China reached nearly US$140 billion in total value last year, almost 10 times the level in 2021. The third force is capital – "not just how much we invest, but how well we put it to work," he said. He highlighted the power of the city's capital markets, noting Hong Kong has become the world's second-largest fundraising centre for biotechnology since listing reforms for pre-revenue biotech firms in 2018. Chan said Hong Kong's role is increasingly clear: to bring models, patients, markets and capital together, and reduce the time and cost of bringing new treatments to market. He pointed to the establishment of the Hong Kong Centre for Medical Products Regulation, efforts in Hetao to make it easier for data and biosamples to move across the boundary, the new Life and HealthTechnology Research Institute, and a third medical school being built with HKUST. "If this is thedecade in which we finally bend that curve, let Hong Kong play a part in making it happen," hesaid. Edited by Aaron Tam

- GBA offers limitless opportunities for laywers: Lam (2026-11-06 03:11)

Secretary for Justice Paul Lam has called on legal practitioners from the two SARs to obtain Greater Bay Area (GBA) practice qualifications to tap into the area's limitless opportunities. The GBA lawyers' scheme – which allows those qualified to practice in nine mainland cities – was regularised in September after a six-year pilot run. Speaking at the Second Guangdong-Hong Kong-Macao Greater Bay Area Lawyers Forum that was held during the Legal Week on Friday, Lam said more than 700 legal practitioners from Hong Kong and Macao have so far obtained the qualification. "The Greater Bay Area has the characteristic of 'one country, two systems and three jurisdictions'," he said. "Greater Bay Area lawyers with dual practice qualifications will serve as pioneers." Lam noted that the GBA is among the areas with the highest degree of openness and strongest economic vitality in the country. Hong Kong, he said, will step up the closer interface of rules and laws on the safeguards of the rule of law in the GBA, as laid out in its inaugural five-year plan. With more than 900 participants attending the event at the Convention and Exhibition Centre in Wan Chai in-person or online, the minister urged them to take the chance to understand the latest GBA developments, grasp new opportunities and expand into new fields. Edited by Aaron Tam

- Police to deploy facial recognition on CCTV networks (2026-11-06 00:51)

Police said facial recognition technology will be rolled out across its CCTV network this month to assist in criminal searches and locate high-risk missing persons, with some of the captured data stored for up to 180 days. Officers said they have so far installed around 10,000 cameras under the SmartView initiative, alongside connections to a further 10,000 from other government departments and public organisations. Covered locations include, among others, Kai Tak Sports Park, Hong Kong International Airport, cross-harbour tunnels, MTR stations and public housing estates. Superintendent Raymond Cheng said the facial recognition feature can be activated anytime on all police cameras, as well as third-party feeds integrated into the SmartView system. However, he explained that the feature will only be triggered during active criminal searches or to locate high-risk missing persons, to save resources. "For the 24 hours analysis, not all of them can be used at the same time because of the resources," Cheng said. "But if we need to use, we can spend the resources on particular CCTV, and of course it can be used around the clock." In separate pilot tests, police said the facial recognition technology has already helped them arrest a robbery suspect and locate an elderly man with dementia within 1.5 hours of being reported missing. Officers said CCTV footage will only be kept for a maximum of 31 days. However, photos of individuals captured by the facial recognition technology, along with metadata such as location, date, time, and facial characteristics, will be retained for 180 days. Meanwhile, police revealed that at least four shopping malls have agreed to connect their

CCTV feeds to the police network. RTHK understands these include Tuen Mun Town Plaza,Olympian City, Kwai Chung Shopping Centre, and Sierra Life in Fanling. Cheng said malls thathave installed CCTV cameras are required by law to display signs warning people that recordingis in progress. However, the superindendent noted the Department of Justice (DOJ) advised thatit should be voluntary for malls to disclose whether their CCTV feeds are connected to the policenetwork. “We will follow the advice from the DOJ to encourage shopping malls or theorganisations to post our notice to announce that our system is connected with their CCTV,” Cheng added. Police have been installing cameras in public places with high crime rates andheavy pedestrian flow since 2024, aiming to reach a target of 60,000 cameras by 2028 to coverthe entire city. An additional 6,500 cameras will be installed in the developing NorthernMetropolis after 2028, bringing the total number of public surveillance cameras to around66,500 in 2031. Since the project began, the force said its CCTV network has helped solve nearly2,200 criminal cases, including murder, robbery, and arson, leading to more than 2,800 arrests.Edited by Aaron Tam

- Evening News on TV32 - Nov 5 (2026-11-05 12:40)

Top stories for Thursday, Nov 5, 2026 - Chief Executive John Lee calls Joshua Wong a primary culprit in undermining Hong Kong's prosperity and stability, as the former activist gets a 10-year jail term for violating the National Security Law. - The China International Import Expo opens in Shanghai. - Americans react to the Republicans' crushing defeat in the midterms.

- Tang condemns external smearing over Wong sentence (2026-11-05 10:13)

Secretary for Security Chris Tang strongly condemned on Thursday attacks by external forces following the sentencing of former activist Joshua Wong, who was imprisoned for 10 years after pleading guilty to conspiring with foreign countries or external elements to endanger national security. Tang said the court, in passing sentence on Wong, found that he, Nathan Law, who has absconded, and others had continued to collude with foreign officials and outlets in calling for sanctions and hostile measures against the nation, Hong Kong and their officials. He reiterated that Wong was sentenced under fair and open judicial proceedings, showing that the SAR abides by the rule of law. "Those launching attacks against us are exactly the same external forces that Wong and Law attempted to collude... They must be strongly condemned, and Hong Kong citizens must recognise and acknowledge that clearly," Tang said. Speaking outside the High Court earlier on Thursday, Steve Li, chief superintendent of the police's national security department, said Wong had taken part in social movements from a young age and committed various offences in adulthood. Li said he hoped Wong would reflect on his wrongdoings. "I sincerely hope that for the rest of his time in prison, apart from reflecting on the wrongdoings he has done to the country and to the Hong Kong SAR, he must seize the opportunity to learn how to respect the law and properly understand his own country," he said. Edited by Tony Sabine

- DOJ launches HK$20,000 lawtech funding scheme (2026-11-05 09:48)

The Department of Justice has launched a funding scheme aimed at helping small and medium-sized law firms and newly qualified barristers adopt legal technology. The Funding Scheme for LawTech Solution Subscription, managed by the Law Society of Hong Kong and the Hong Kong Bar Association, will provide eligible applicants with up to HK$20,000 for a one-year subscription to designated legal technology services. The list covers services from 14 local, mainland and overseas providers, spanning legal research, document drafting, workflow management and hearing support. Eligible applicants are sole practitioners, Hong Kong law firms with five or fewer partners, and barristers with no more than seven years of call. Speaking to reporters at Hong Kong Legal Week on Thursday, Deputy Secretary for Justice Horace Cheung said the pilot scheme would ease the financial burden on applicants seeking to improve their ability to adopt lawtech services. "We hope that we can use such kind of financial incentive to encourage them to use the lawtech tools in their practice and we believe that after this pilot scheme, they will know how good the legal tool can help them in their practice," he said. "I would say that is only the beginning. Certainly we will monitor the progress of the pilot scheme and see what we can do further for the legal sector in the years ahead." Cheung also said the Department of Justice would release guidance notes on the application of technology in legal practice. The notes, he said, are intended to give the legal profession principles to consider and practical advice on adopting legal technology, helping practitioners guard against potential risks while remaining mindful of their ongoing professional responsibilities. Meanwhile, José-Antonio Maurellet, chairman of the Hong Kong Bar Association, said the scheme was timely and far-sighted and would benefit about 500 members. He believes it would encourage younger members to invest more time and resources in training and to stay competitive. Roden Tong, president of the Law Society of Hong Kong, for his part, said the Department of Justice had introduced the scheme for a second time, adding that the support helped the legal profession make better use of technology and improve efficiency. The application deadline is January 29. Edited by Tony Sabine

- HK 'to widen trade reach to help nation go global' (2026-11-05 08:29)

Chief Executive John Lee on Thursday said Hong Kong would continue to expand its international trade network to better contribute to the country's overall development. Speaking at the Hong Kong sub-forum of the Hongqiao International Economic Forum in Shanghai, he noted the event was the first major conference held by the SAR since the unveiling of its first-ever five-year plan in September. The conference, Lee said, allowed experts and industry leaders from both the mainland and Hong Kong to gather and explore how the city could leverage its unique position under "One Country, Two Systems" and integrate into national development. One key focus area is trade, he said. “Hong Kong has become the fifth-largest merchandise trading entity in the world, having signed free-trade agreements with 21 economies and investment agreements with 34 economies," Lee said. "The SAR government will continue to expand its international economic and trade network to play a greater role in the country’s high-standard opening up." The world, Lee pointed out, is experiencing a once-in-a-century transformation, which is happening alongside a global supply chain restructuring and rapid technological advancement. He stressed that Hong Kong mustproactively plan for its future and implement a forward-looking strategic plan with a calm andmeasured approach. Another key focus area, Lee said, is finance. Describing it as Hong Kong’ sfundamental and greatest area of strength, he stressed that the SAR must consolidate its role asan international financial centre. He added that Hong Kong would strengthen its position as theworld's largest offshore renminbi hub to expand the global use of the currency and activelybuild a commodity and gold trading ecosystem. Lee also noted that Hong Kong wouldproactively align with national scientific research and industrial strategies, accelerate itsinvestment in science and technology, and help mainland enterprises expand overseas throughits GoGlobal Task Force. Later, Lee toured various booths hosted by Hong Kong enterprises andinstitutions taking part in the China International Import Expo, which is being held concurrentlywith the forum. He listened to a briefing by Hong Kong Polytechnic University representatives,and at one booth, tasted traditional sweetheart cakes — also known as wife cakes. Arepresentative told the chief executive that the pastries have been a huge hit at high-speed railstations on the mainland, adding that they have revamped their packaging to feature HongKong elements on the design, such as trams, to appeal to younger generations. Lee also visiteda craft beer booth to try a brew infused with the flavour of salty-lemon 7Up — an iconic HongKong cha chaan teng drink that mixes 7Up with salted preserved lemon. A representative at thebooth told him that Hong Kong enjoys a major advantage in sourcing raw ingredients thanks tobeing a highly international city. Lee said Hong Kong could host its own beer festival in thefuture, encouraging the business to keep growing and build itself into a premier local brand forsuch events. Frederick Ma, chairman of the Hong Kong Trade Development Council, said thecouncil led a delegation of more than 70 Hong Kong enterprises at this year's expo, with recordsset in both the number of participating exhibitors and the amount of exhibition space used._____ Last updated: 2026-11-05 HKT 17:10 Edited by Tony Sabine

- Wong undermined HK's prosperity and stability: CE (2026-11-05 08:09)

Chief Executive John Lee on Thursday said Joshua Wong was one of the “primary culprits responsible for undermining Hong Kong’ s prosperity and stability” after he was jailed for 10 years for conspiracy to collude with foreign countries or external elements to endanger national security. In a statement, Lee said Wong has repeatedly broken the law over the years, adding that before the implementation of the National Security Law (NSL) Wong, Nathan Law and others persistently colluded with foreign countries and tried to get them to impose sanctions against China and the SAR. Lee went on to say that after the NSL took effect, Wong, Law and their accomplices “showed no repentance and continued to act as agents of foreign countries and external forces, wantonly persisting in conspiring to collude with foreign countries or external forces to endanger national security, in a vain attempt to exert pressure on the Central Authorities and the HKSAR Government through external forces, betraying Hong Kong while remaining incorrigible". Meanwhile, a government spokesman said Wong's sentence " completely shattered the illusion of individuals endangering national security that they could escape liability under the guise of so-called 'international battlefront' or 'internationaladvocacy', and demonstrated to the international community the HKSAR's firm determination tosafeguard national security". Edited by Edmond Fong

• Road worker killed in Sha Tin vehicle collision (2026-11-05 05:05)

Police said a road maintenance worker died after being struck by a medium goods vehicle in Sha Tin on Thursday morning. The incident occurred at around 11am on Sha Tin Road near Pok Hong Estate. The vehicle was travelling towards Tai Po at the time. The female worker, who was about 60 years old, was found unconscious with head injuries and was pronounced dead at the scene. Edited by Tony Sabine

• Joshua Wong jailed 10 years for foreign collusion (2026-11-05 04:13)

Former activist Joshua Wong was on Thursday jailed for 10 years after pleading guilty to conspiracy to collude with foreign countries or external elements to endanger national security. High Court Judge William Tam found the offence was of a “grave nature” under the National Security Law. The court said Wong and his affiliates, including Nathan Law, persisted after the NSL took effect in calling for foreign sanctions, blockade or other hostile measures against the People's Republic of China, the Hong Kong SAR and their officials. They deliberately adapted roles so overseas allies made blatant calls for such sanctions, while Wong, remaining in Hong Kong, published and bolstered the calls. Judge Tam took a starting point of 13 years, then cut three years for the guilty plea and mitigation, leaving 10 years – the statutory minimum for a grave offence. Two months and two days of the new term will run concurrently with the sentence Wong is already serving for another subversion case. Speaking to reporters outside the High Court, Steve Li, Chief Superintendent of the police's National Security Department, said that Wong took part in social movements from a young age and committed various offences as an adult. Li said he hopes Wong will reflect on his wrongdoings. "I sincerely hope that for the rest of his time in prison, apart from reflecting on the wrongdoings he has done to the country and to the Hong Kong SAR, he must seize the opportunity to learn how to respect the law and properly understand his own country," he said. Edited by Aaron Tam

• HK 'is largest cross-boundary wealth management hub' (2026-11-05 03:59)

Financial Secretary Paul Chan on Thursday said Hong Kong’s wealth management sector is growing strongly and is well positioned to capture a fair share of business emanating from shifting global affluence. In a keynote speech at the Wealth Management Summit, he pointed to a survey in July by the Securities and Futures Commission that showed assets under management jumped 20 percent to more than HK$42 trillion. The city, Chan said, is now the largest cross-boundary wealth management centre in the world. A survey by summit organiser Private Wealth Management Association offered a similarly encouraging picture, as it found 77 percent of member firms reported stronger demand to open accounts or book client assets in Hong Kong and that 94 percent were moderately or highly optimistic about the city's prospects over the next five years. Chan said sentiment at this week’s Global Financial Leaders’

Investment Summit, which drew some 280 international leaders from the sector, includingaround 120 chairmen or chief executives, was "decidedly positive", with some planning toincrease investment and headcount in the city. International capital was showing freshconfidence in Hong Kong, he said, with it being reinforced by policy measures to boost privatewealth management. "Our tax concession for family-owned investment vehicles is now wellestablished and Hong Kong is home to over 3,300 single-family offices, up 25 percent in just twoyears," he said at the summit. "The New Capital Investment Entrant Scheme has received some4,300 applications, representing an expected investment of HK$150 billion, and we haveintroduced legislation to further enhance the preferential tax regimes for funds, single-familyoffices and carry interest, which we aim to pass by the end of this year." Chan said higher ratesand uncertainty were redrawing the map for capital flows, with cash earning a return again andinvestors diversifying across markets and currencies. Hong Kong is a clear beneficiary, he said,noting that deposits rose 7.7 percent to HK$20.9 trillion in the first nine months of this year.Initial public offerings raised, Chan pointed out, a record HK$388 billion and capital is arrivingfrom the United States and Europe, as well as the mainland, Southeast Asia, Central Asia andthe Middle East. He also pointed to technology and AI as a growing source of wealth: tech isnow the largest source of wealth among the world's richest tycoons, and mainland billionairefortunes rose over 20 percent to US$1.8 trillion last year. Hong Kong is capturing it at source –116 A- and H-share listings in the first three quarters accounted for about 70 percent of fundsraised, over half of which were in AI, semiconductors and robotics, with some 500 applicationsin the pipeline. Edited by Tony Sabine

- John Lee visits Shanghai to promote SAR businesses (2026-11-04 14:00)

Chief Executive John Lee arrived in Shanghai on Wednesday afternoon after visiting Beijing, where he attended the opening ceremony of the 29th Beijing Hong Kong Economic Cooperation Symposium. In a Facebook post, Lee thanked representatives from the Ministry of Commerce, Beijing's Liaison Office in the SAR, and the Shanghai Municipal People's Government, as well as colleagues from the Hong Kong Economic and Trade Office in Shanghai for meeting him at the airport. Lee will attend the opening ceremony of the ninth China International Import Expo (CIIE) on Thursday. "This year's CIIE has attracted participants from 162 countries, regions, and international organisations, with a total exhibition area exceeding 440,000 square metres," the post read. The CE will also attend the Hongqiao International Economic Forum. "There, I will highlight how Hong Kong is leveraging its unique strengths to integrate into and serve the nation's overall development, showcasing our achievements and opportunities." Lee said Shanghai and Hong Kong share deep historical ties, with the SAR pushing ahead plans to establish a "sister port" relationship with Shanghai within this year. He added that a pilot project for the mutual exchange of trade data was launched last month and is expected to benefit local small and medium-sized enterprises that export goods from the mainland. Lee is also expected to meet with Shanghai officials to deepen cooperation before returning to Hong Kong on Friday. Edited by Aaron Tam

- RTHK signs MoU with Tianjin Haihe Media Group (2026-11-04 13:00)

Radio Television Hong Kong (RTHK) has signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) with Tianjin Haihe Media Group, in a bid to boost bilateral collaboration in areas such as talent exchange and events. The MoU was signed during a four-day trip by Director of Broadcasting Angelina Kwan to the mainland, which ended on Wednesday. During the trip, Kwan, as well as participants of RTHK's national studies programme, called on the Hong Kong and Macao Affairs Office of the State Council, and met Deputy Director Zhang Dongmei. Kwan also visited the National Radio and Television Administration and the Beijing Radio and Television Station to explore opportunities for strengthening exchange and co-operation. On Tuesday, Kwan signed an MoU with Tianjin Haihe Media Group President Ma Bo. The two sides agreed to establish a framework for bilateral collaboration spanning programme resources, talent exchanges, co-operation on platform and copyright licensing, as well as on-ground events. RTHK said the the partnership will facilitate the distribution of its content to the Beijing-Tianjin-Hebei region, while enabling Tianjin Haihe Media Group's productions to reach international audiences through RTHK's platforms. RTHK has signed MoUs with eight mainland and overseas media organisations so far this year. "By building a growing network of broadcaster partnerships and deepening collaboration on an ongoing basis, RTHK is giving concrete expression to its strategic commitment to leveraging Hong Kong's unique role as a connector between the Chinese mainland and the wider world, thereby enhancing Hong Kong's international communication capacity and sharing the stories of the nation and Hong Kong on the global stage," a statement read. Edited by Aaron Tam

- Evening News on TV32 - Nov 4 (2026-11-04 12:47)

Top stories for Wednesday, Nov 4, 2026 - Americans reject Donald Trump's Republicans with Democrats taking control of Congress. - Eric Chan says it's not by chance that Hong Kong has done well in a ranking of Asian universities. - CE urges closer ties with the city of Beijing.

- ICAC charges former HKEX vice president (2026-11-04 08:21)

A former vice president of the Hong Kong Exchanges and Clearing (HKEX) was charged by the ICAC on Wednesday for allegedly obtaining dishonest access to the HKEX’s internal information system. The system contained confidential information involving listed companies, according to the anti-graft agency. Geoffrey Tong, 39, and his mother, Leung Yiu-chun, 68, jointly face one count of obtaining access to computer with a view to dishonest gain for himself or another under the Crimes Ordinance. The charge alleges that the two defendants obtained access to the HKEX’s internal information system with a view to dishonest gain between February 2018 and April 2023. The ICAC investigation revealed that Tong allegedly accessed confidential information of listed companies unrelated to his duties on multiple occasions. “Subsequently, the investment account of his mother, Leung, engaged in share transactions of the relevant listed companies, yielding profits exceeding HK$500,000,” the ICAC said in a statement. The case was brought to the Eastern Magistrates’ Courts for mention on Wednesday. The ICAC said it would not rule out further prosecution as the investigation continues. Edited by Edmond Fong

• 'Reservation effective in cutting Po Pin Chau visits' (2026-11-04 05:30)

Secretary for Environment and Ecology Tse Chin-wan on Wednesday said the government was reviewing the trial results of the real-name reservation system for the Po Pin Chau trail in Sai Kung East Country Park. Speaking to lawmakers at the Legislative Council, Tse said authorities were looking at areas for further improvement and whether a fee could be imposed. Tse noted that the reservation system had effectively controlled visitor numbers on peak days compared to the past. He said the Po Pin Chau section received an average of 2,000 visitors per day during the Chinese New Year and Labour Day Golden Week holidays – before the reservation system was introduced, while the number was kept to around 950 during the National Day Golden Week with the reservation requirement. The highest visitor flow recorded at the Po Pin Chau viewing platform was also cut by more than 30 percent compared to the past, he added. “Visitors mainly arrived in the morning. As the reservation system effectively kept the number of visitors within 500 per time slot, visitor flow on the trail was dispersed in an orderly manner, and visitors were able to tour in a more comfortable and safe environment without overcrowding,” he said. “Implementation experience shows that by effectively controlling the visitor numbers and diverting visitor flow, the reservation system not only reduced the wear and tear caused by visitors to the natural environment but also significantly improved the overall visitor experience.” He added that the reservation system operated well, with most visitors satisfied with the arrangement. The minister also said the government could collaborate with the tourism sector to launch eco-tours to further develop ecotourism products. He said part of the 2,000 daily quota of Po Pin Chau trail could be reserved for tour groups. Edited by Tony Sabine

• 'World unis to step up collaboration over NM' (2026-11-04 05:18)

Leaders from universities around the world attending a conference in Hong Kong on Wednesday said they believe the Northern Metropolis project will foster closer collaboration among institutions. On the sidelines of the World Class University Presidents Forum, Mark Scott, vice chancellor and president of the University of Sydney, recognised Hong Kong’s leading position in education, which has five institutions ranked in the world’s top 100 in the QS World University Rankings 2027. “There isn’t another city in the world that is achieving so remarkably at such scale, and so we have much to learn from Hong Kong,” he said. “One of the things I think we can learn is the commitment of leadership that sees investment in higher education, in research and in learning – as a key to economic growth and prosperity, and a richer and fairer society.” Scott also said the University of Sydney is very excited about what the mega project has to offer. “We are very impressed by the level of financial commitment and long-term engagement from government and leadership here, and we are keen to find a way to be productive partners.” Ebrahim Al Hajri, president of Khalifa University of Science and Technology in the United Arab Emirates, said the institution looks forward to playing a part in the development of the Northern Metropolis by collaborating with other institutions to “create local and global impact”. “This is actually physical research without borders – connecting both sides to technology, development, research, talent cultivation,” he said. “Not only that, but the translation of research into commercial opportunities to benefit society and economy atlarge.” The Worldwide Universities Network – a leading global higher education network thatcomprises of 23 research-intensive universities – said the hub represents a “significantmoment” for institutions to rethink global collaboration. “It’s not just about the scale andconcentration for Hong Kong,” its executive director Dawn Freshwater said. “It’s actuallyabout a beacon of excellence globally for ways in which we might partner, collaborate and trulyfocus on how we are going to solve the issues now facing civilisation – and that is substantial.”Fudan University president Jin Li, for his part, believes the Northern Metropolis can further helpHong Kong connect to the world. The mega hub is also crucial for the SAR to contribute to thenation’s development, he added. Edited by Edmond Fong

- CE calls for closer cooperation with nation's capital (2026-11-04 03:29)

Chief Executive John Lee on Wednesday called for closer financial and innovative ties with the city of Beijing, as he continued his visit to the capital. Speaking at a symposium on Beijing-Hong Kong cooperation, Lee said finance had been a key area for collaboration between the two cities over the years. He called for promoting two-way financial opening-up to facilitate economic transformation. “Hong Kong, as an international financial centre, connects mainland markets and global capital,” he said. “It acts as the most convenient international financing platform for enterprises in Beijing. “Through cross-border fund management, wealth management and a network connecting global investors, it serves enterprises’ needs for business expansion.” Lee said the two cities would continue to serve two-way financing for enterprises, and jointly expand green and sustainable finance, as well as offshore renminbi business. He also expressed hope of deepening innovative cooperation between the SAR and Beijing, as the nation developed new quality productive forces and promoted technological revolution and industrial transformation. The innovation sectors in the two cities would promote collaboration in life and health technology, artificial intelligence and robotics, he said. Lee added that Hong Kong would continue to assist mainland enterprises in going global. Edited by Tony Sabine

- Yau highlights benefits of RCEP accession for HK (2026-11-04 03:21)

Secretary for Commerce and Economic Development Algernon Yau said Hong Kong's entry into the Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership could inject fresh impetus into advancing the Free Trade Area of the Asia-Pacific (FTAAP) agenda. "We welcome the establishment of the Accession Working Group for Hong Kong in September this year, and hope that our accession could inject fresh impetus into advancing the FTAAP agenda," he said during a virtual meeting at the 37th Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (Apec) Ministerial Meeting held on Tuesday. Yau said that enhancing economic integration has been the core objective of Apec, and that one of the directions is to continue to advance the FTAAP. He called on member economies to continue to strengthen connectivity in various areas, enabling the efficient flow of goods, services, capital and people, while narrowing development gaps and creating opportunities for all sectors across the region. Yau also stressed that the multilateral trading system must remain the foundation of regional integration and international trade, highlighting the importance of enhancing co-operation to deal with the seismic changes in the trade landscape. Edited by Edmond Fong

- HK offers businesses growth and capital: FS (2026-11-04 03:04)

Financial Secretary Paul Chan said Hong Kong is well-placed to provide businesses with both growth opportunities and long-term capital. The finance chief made his remarks on Wednesday during a conversation session with investors on the second day of the Global Financial Leaders' Investment Summit in Central. Chan noted that a company needs different forms of capital at each stage of development to turn its potential into sustained growth. This, he said, is exactly where Hong Kong comes into play. “Under the 'One Country, Two Systems' framework, Hong Kong is closely connected to the Chinese mainland, while a common law legal system, free flow of capital and international networks provide a trusted and familiar environment for global investors to take part in China's enormous growth,” Chan said. “Here, we already bring together venture capital, private equity, family offices and asset managers, with deep equity and bond markets. Our task is to connect them more closely across the corporate life cycle.” He said follow-on fundraising on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange reached HK$570 billion in the first nine months of the year, showing that the city’s market continues to support companies well beyond their initial listings. Chan also said the aim is to expand allocation choices to help investors manage risks and liquidity in support of long-term value creation. Hong Kong will keep raising its market efficiency with faster approvals, streamlined processes and clearer frameworks for new financial products – all without compromising its integrity, he added. Edited by Edmond Fong

- HK's dominance in QS rankings 'not by chance' (2026-11-04 03:00)

Acting chief executive Eric Chan on Wednesday said Hong Kong would continue to stay at the forefront of education amid the latest accolades for the city's univiersities. Speaking at the World Class University Presidents Forum, he noted that higher education had always served as a cornerstone for the SAR’s success. The city is a global hub for education and talent, Chan said, noting that five local institutions took half of top 10 places in the latest QS Asia University Rankings. Three of them ranked the top five. “This is not by chance. It is the result of sustained government investment, clear policy direction and the hard work of our universities,” he said. “It reflects our commitment to excellence, openness, academic freedom and institutional autonomy.” Hong Kong, Chan said, would keep expanding its horizon and align with the nation’s development to remain in its leading position. With the three university towns at the Northern Metropolis as well as the SAR’s Study in Hong Kong brand, he said the government welcomed people from the mainland and all over the world to pursue their studies here. “Hong Kong is a bridge between the mainland and the global higher education system. We are opening doors for our youth to engage with diverse cultures and cutting-edge ideas," Chan said. " By nurturing globally-minded innovators, we plant the seeds for a more collaborative and prosperous world.” Edited by Tony Sabine

- Software update triggers HK parking meter outage (2026-11-03 14:11)

The Transport Department said a software update triggered a citywide malfunction of Hong Kong’s parking meter system on Tuesday. The department said preliminary investigations found that a software update in the morning caused a back-end software fault, which prevented the system from making a normal connection with the parking meters. It added that about 11,000 parking meters were affected across the city. The department has instructed the operator to conduct a thorough investigation into the cause of the outage and submit a detailed report. There is no evidence that the system was attacked at the moment, the department said, adding it has reported the matter to the Digital Policy Office. The operator will arrange for full refunds for all meter transactions between 8am and 12.15pm to users, and will strive to complete the approval of the refunds within this week, it added. The Transport Department received a report at around 8.20am from the operator that the parking meter system had malfunctioned, with payment functions suspended or meter displays not operating normally. The system resumed normal operations at 12.15pm. Edited by Aaron Tam

- Evening News on TV32 - Nov 3 (2026-11-03 12:43)

Top stories for Tuesday, Nov 3, 2026 - Hong Kong's economy grows 5.2 percent in the third quarter. - Parking meters across the city go on the blink for hours. - Americans vote in midterms set to upend Donald Trump's presidency.

- HK recovery uneven despite high GDP: economist (2026-11-03 12:38)

A local economist said Hong Kong’s third-quarter GDP performance has lifted business sentiment, but the recovery remains uneven and will take time to broaden. Ho Lok-sang, adjunct professor with the Academy for Applied Policy Studies and Education Futures at the Education University of Hong Kong, made the assessment as advance estimates showed Hong Kong’s economy grew 5.2 percent year on year in the third quarter of 2026. The clearest sign of recovery, he said, was in prime office space. "Especially for the Grade A centrally located locations, [the] office take-up rate is pretty impressive," he said. "Now, certainly it’s recovering." But Ho stressed that the strength is not spreading beyond that segment. "On the outside of the Grade A and centrally located areas, office demand is still relatively weak, and the demand for commercial properties is still relatively weak," he said. He added that a broader recovery will not come quickly and will likely depend on lower rents. "I think that it will take quite some time to recover, and I think recovery will also necessitate a decline in rents," Ho said. Ho was more upbeat about the rest of the year's outlook. "Definitely the full year growth is going to be quite strong, and I am pretty confident that it will be over four percent or could be as much as 4.5 percent,” he said. The government's real GDP growth forecast for 2026 as a whole is 3.5 to 4.5 percent. Ho said the financial sector is performing "pretty well, extremely well", with IPOs still at a very high level and "no sign of it ebbing". He added that exports, too, are "doing quite well". But he flagged persistent weak spots: "Demand in terms of both construction demand and also the retail consumption demand and restaurant business are still lagging behind". To support these sectors, Ho pointed to major events and tourism. "Of course the major events – for example concerts and Halloween and so on – it’s entirely possible to boost tourism even more," he said. "Tourism is doing pretty well this year, and we hope that thetourists can stay a bit longer and consume a bit more." Ho said that outcome depends on thebusiness sector and the government continuing to promote such major events. Meanwhile,Kenny Shui, vice president of Our Hong Kong Foundation, said the third-quarter figures pointedto strengthening momentum: goods exports rose 30.4 percent on AI and electronics demand,while services exports grew 4.3 percent on tourism and financial activity. But he said privateconsumption rose just 2.8 percent, slower than the previous quarter, showing that the strengthin retail and investment has yet to fully reach households. "Growth momentum is broadening,but the recovery still needs to be felt more widely," Shui said. With first-nine-month growth at5.1 percent, Shui expects a fourth-quarter growth of four to five percent and full-year growth ofaround five percent – above the government's forecast, leaving room for an upward revision.He cautioned, however, that interest rates could weigh on business investment and householdspending, and with unemployment at 3.9 percent, consumption still needs job and incomesupport. In the fourth quarter, the key will be whether exports stay strong and consumptionand employment improve, Shui added. Edited by Aaron Tam

- HK takes five of top 10 in QS Asia university rankings (2026-11-03 12:26)

Hong Kong has dominated the QS Asia University Rankings 2027, with five of the city's institutions placing in the top 10. The University of Hong Kong (HKU) retained the top spot, while City University of Hong Kong (CityUHK) rose to fourth and the Chinese University of Hong Kong (CUHK) climbed to fifth. CityUHK and CUHK had tied for seventh a year earlier. The Hong Kong Polytechnic University (PolyU) and the Hong Kong University of Science and Technology (HKUST) shared ninth place. The rankings, compiled by international higher education experts at QS, assessed more than 1,700 universities across 26 higher education systems. Ben Sowter, QS' senior vice-president, said Hong Kong continues to set the benchmark for university performance in Asia. "The University of Hong Kong leads the region for a second consecutive year, and having five Hong Kong institutions in the top 10, more than any other higher education system, is an exceptional achievement," he said. "Increasing international engagement and growing recognition among academics and employers reinforce Hong Kong's regional strength, at a time when competition for students, researchers and academic talent is intensifying across Asia." Xiang Zhang, president and vice-chancellor of HKU, attributed the university's second straight top ranking in Asia to its community's unwavering commitment to academic excellence and its recent drive for change. "We will continue to draw the world's finest minds to shape an academic ecosystem driven by a spirit of inquiry, propelling Hong Kong's advancement as an international hub for education, innovation and technology, while supporting the nation's high-quality development through scientific breakthroughs and contributing to solving global challenges," he said in a statement. Meanwhile, CityUHK acting president Lee Chun-sing described the university's rise into the top five for the first time as an encouraging achievement. "This progress reflects the collective efforts of our academic community to pursue excellence in research and create an inspiring learning environment," Lee said in a statement. "It also demonstrates the success of our strategic commitment to recruitingglobal academic talent and nurturing future leaders." The top 10 also included three mainlandinstitutions – among them Peking University and Tsinghua University – and two universitiesfrom Singapore. Edited by Aaron Tam

- Hong Kong economy grew 5.2pc in Q3 2026 (2026-11-03 09:13)

Hong Kong's economy grew 5.2 percent year on year in the third quarter of 2026, buoyed by stronger exports and domestic demand, according to advance estimates. The Census and Statistics Department said the increase compared with a 4.2 percent growth in the second quarter. On a seasonally adjusted basis, GDP rose 1.9 percent quarter on quarter. For the first nine months combined, the economy grew 5.1 percent – the fastest growth for the period in five years. Goods exports rose 30.4 percent in real terms, after 28.9 percent in the second quarter, while imports grew 29.9 percent. Exports of services increased 4.3 percent. Investment strengthened, with gross domestic fixed capital formation up 7.3 percent, while private consumption grew 2.8 percent and government consumption was up 1.7 percent. A government spokesman said the economy saw robust expansion, underpinned by accelerating exports and solid domestic demand. He said the outlook remained positive, citing global artificial intelligence investment, inbound tourism, cross-boundary traffic and financial market activity. But he advised caution over geopolitical tensions in the Middle East and tighter monetary policies by major central banks. Revised GDP figures and the updated forecast for 2026 will be released on November 13. Separately, retail sales rose 6.4 percent year on year in September to a provisional HK$33.4 billion – the 17th straight month of expansion. August's revised increase was 5.6 percent, and sales for the first nine months were up 8.3 percent by value. Online sales rose 12 percent to HK$4.4 billion in September, or 13.1 percent of total retail sales, and were up 21.2 percent for the first nine months. Retail sales volume rose 3.9 percent in September. The spokesman said solid local consumption sentiment, more visitor arrivals and earlier Mid-Autumn festive sales supported retail growth. He said upcoming mega events, festive celebrations and inbound tourism should add momentum, though external headwinds warranted close monitoring. Edited by Aaron Tam

- 'Joint task force to target bid-rigging early' (2026-11-03 08:48)

Secretary for Security Chris Tang on Tuesday said officers from an interdepartmental task force on combating bid-rigging in building maintenance and renovation projects would proactively look for clues to prevent such activities. Authorities have vowed to step up crackdowns on bid-rigging following the deadly Wang Fuk Court fire. Proposed measures included the criminalisation of bid-rigging in relation to these projects, enabling a dual-track approach of both criminal and civil enforcement. Authorities will also set up a joint task force that comprises officers from police, the ICAC and the Competition Commission to better coordinate law enforcement actions. Speaking to lawmakers at a meeting of the Legislative Council's Panel on Security and Panel on Economic Development, Tang said the task force's establishment could enable early intervention. Tang said officers would adopt different tactics against bid-rigging, such as surveillance, undercover operations and the use of informants. He added that the threeagencies of the task force would also attend owners' corporation meetings to look forsuspicious activities, including people who hold many proxy votes or suspected triad membersengaging in harassment or intimidation. Officers would take enforcement actions whennecessary, he added. "If we notice any abnormal situations at the scene that violate the law,such as intimidation and blackmail, our law enforcement colleagues on site will take immediateaction," Tang said. "Even if the situation is not serious enough to require enforcement action,if we notice signs that may point to hidden crimes, we will carry out investigations." Tang saidthe task force would consider a series of factors when deciding which projects would beprioritised for investigation. "We will consider the impact of the projects, for example, projectsconducted at large estates with a lot of residents and those involving a large amount of money,and if someone seeking to participate in bid-rigging has triad backgrounds – these are all factorswe take into consideration." Secretary for Commerce and Economic Development AlgernonYau, meanwhile, told lawmakers that relevant legislative amendments to combat bid-riggingwould be submitted to the legislature as soon as possible. Edited by Aaron Tam

- HK eager to help build 'enterprises of tomorrow' (2026-11-03 08:10)

Hong Kong is ambitious about helping create the "enterprises of tomorrow", Financial Secretary Paul Chan said on Tuesday in amplifying the pivotal role the Northern Metropolis would play in realising this vision. That came as he told investors at the Global Financial Leaders' Investment Summit in Central about the dedication that investors can expect of Hong Kong to strengthening its contribution to innovation. "Our ambition is not only to finance businesses created elsewhere, but also to help create the enterprises of tomorrow," Chan said. "The Northern Metropolis is central to this effort. "It will bring universities, research facilities and technology enterprises closer together, linking education, technology and talent more closely with industry." The mega development project in the northern New Territories would, Chan said, serve as a base for closer ties with other Greater Bay Area cities, allowing Hong Kong to draw on their strengths in commercialisation, engineering and advanced manufacturing. Hong Kong was eager to pair promising businesses with capital and partners, as well as give investors trusted pathways into unfamiliar sectors and economies, he added. Hong Kong had, Chan pointed out, also taken steps to widen its connections with various economies and broaden asset classes in various regions. "In Southeast Asia, we are welcoming more enterprises from Indonesia, Thailand and Malaysia to lease in Hong Kong," he said. "In the Middle East, Hong Kong and Saudi Arabia have listed ETFs, tracking each other's markets, giving investors new routes to invest." "In Central Asia, Kazakhstan has already tapped Hong Kong's equity and bond markets. We welcome more issuers to raise capital here through listings and bond issuances." Chan added that Hong Kong would also continue to expand the range of assets and financial services to give investors more options to diversify. This, he said, included a central focus on developing a commodity and gold trading ecosystem. Edited by Tony Sabine

- Real estate recovery drives growth forecast higher: FS (2026-11-03 08:07)

Financial Secretary Paul Chan on Tuesday said all three drivers of economic growth performed well in the third quarter, with consumption, investment, and exports all recording growth to varying degrees. Hong Kong's advance estimates for the third-quarter GDP are set to be released later in the day. The financial chief had announced over the weekend that the city's full-year economic growth forecast will be revised upwards following a stronger-than-expected 5.1 percent GDP growth in the first half of the year. Chan said other factors also supported the projection, noting that full-year visitor arrivals are likely to exceed the target of 50 million and that the real estate market is improving. "The residential property market has been on the rise since the latter half of last year. Last year, the increase was approximately three percent, while the rise this year has been between seven and 10 percent. In the residential property market, it's fair to say we are moving into a stage of steady ascent." he said. "In commercial real estate, we have observed significant improvements in office rentals, in terms of rental prices and vacancy rates, particularly in central business districts. It has also stabilised in other districts." An expected influx of visitors towards the end of the year will also have a positive impact on the retail and catering sectors, Chan added. While certain industries, such as construction, catering, and retail, are facing more pressure with higher jobless rates, Chan stressed that the overall employment situation is stable, with unemployment standing at around 3.9 percent. In predicting next year's economic growth, Chan stressed that government economists are currently assessing the impact of several key factors. These, he said, include expected high interest rates, geopolitical uncertainties like fluctuating oil prices driven by Middle East wars, upcoming elections in major economies, and the reallocation of international funds. Edited by Aaron Tam

- Financial institutions laud HK's gateway guardianship (2026-11-03 07:09)

Global bank leaders have lauded Hong Kong for its role as a gateway between the mainland and the rest of the world, facilitating two-way financial flows and minimising risks in an era of uncertainty. At a panel meeting held at the Global Financial Leaders' Investment Summit in Central, State Street chairman and chief executive Ronald O'Hanley noted that trade patterns had changed in recent years due to uncertainties brought by the pandemic and global conflicts. More borrowers and people looking to raise capital, he said, are looking for safer options when building supply chains and structuring financing – switching from "just in time to just in case". "Where we're seeing the most change is around the role of China, and Hong Kong is the gateway to that," O'Hanley said. "It's the kind of movement of money north and south and movement of capital north and south, and Hong Kong is playing that role." Barclays group chief executive C S Venkatakrishnan said firms had been reducing their dependency on strategic imports over the past decade and that the city which is positioned as both an international financial centre as well as a domestic one is the one that can help countries manage the dependencies. "I think in order for international finance not to get caught up in the strategic breakdown of dependence, it's important for the international financial centres like Hong Kong to do what you're doing – which is to have fair and transparent regulation to promote growth and to make it easy for people to operate," he said. BNP Paribas chairman Jean

Lemierre noted that more mainland firms were operating in Europe. With Hong Kong being arenminbi hub, it acts as a bridge between China and Europe that helps these companies gainaccess to the euro, he said, adding that mainland firms can have better understanding of theEuropean market through the SAR. Edited by Tony Sabine

- Beijing approves removal of Winnie Ho as housing chief (2026-11-03 05:17)

The State Council has decided to remove Winnie Ho from the post of housing secretary of the Hong Kong government, Xinhua reported on Tuesday. It said the decision, made on Tuesday, was in accordance with the Basic Law and based on the suggestion of Chief Executive John Lee. That came after Lee said Ho had tendered her resignation on October 28 and indicated that she would shoulder political accountability for the Wang Fuk Court fire in Tai Po. A day after that, the government made public the investigation report by an independent committee into the deadly blaze and unveiled sweeping measures to prevent a recurrence. In a statement, Lee recounted Ho's career from the time that she joined the government in 1992, becoming director of architectural services in 2020 to being appointed as secretary for housing in 2022. Lee said Ho had been dedicated to implementing his directives, including constructing some 30,000 Light Public Housing units, shortening the composite waiting time for subsidised rental housing from 6.1 years to 4.8 years, effectively combating the abuse of public rental housing and enacting the Basic Housing Units Ordinance to eradicate substandard subdivided units. "As she officially leaves her post today, I wish her all the best in her future endeavours and a healthy life," he said. Edited by Tony Sabine

- Parking meters restored after hours of breakdown (2026-11-03 04:47)

The Transport Department said the operation of the city's parking meter system had returned to normal following emergency repairs after a breakdown that lasted for nearly four hours on Tuesday morning. The department said it received a report from the operator at about 8.20am that the system had malfunctioned. The Digital Policy Office was notified of the incident, the department said, noting that there was no evidence to suggest the system had been hacked. Secretary for Transport and Logistics Mable Chan said officials had urged the operator of the parking meters to submit a report as soon as possible. "I want to reiterate that we attach huge importance to this incident and the system malfunction. I have instructed the Transport Department to require the system operator, Hong Kong Telecom, to submit a report as soon as possible. I hope an initial report can be submitted within the next 24 hours," she said. Edited by Tony Sabine

- New service to simplify mainland flight transit in HK (2026-11-03 04:36)

Secretary for Transport and Logistics Mable Chan on Tuesday said a new service had been launched to streamline international travel for mainland passengers departing from regional airports via Hong Kong International Airport to destinations around the world. A pilot phase is underway in collaboration with airports in Hangzhou and Wuhan. The new initiative is part of the national aviation programme named: "Trunk-Branch Connectivity, Whole-Network Linkage".

Passengers can check in for their entire journey at their local airports, and fly out tointernational destinations via Hong Kong, instead of having to re-claim their luggage and thencheck in again in the SAR. Speaking at the opening ceremony of this year's Super Terminal Expo,Chan described the scheme as a game-changing service. "To put this into perspective, thistransfer platform is already active across more than 260 airports in the mainland and hasaccumulatively facilitated over 260 million transfer passengers, allowing tens of millions oftravellers to enjoy the unprecedented convenience of one-stop check-in and seamless baggagetransfers," she said. "This is far more than a commercial expansion. It is a policy breakthrough,which embeds Hong Kong directly into the national overall aviation architecture." Chan stressedthat Hong Kong International Airport plays a vital “linchpin role” to fulfil the SAR’s uniquemandate as a super-connector and a super value-adder that bridges the country and the world.Enhancing connectivity between the world’s second-largest economy and the rest of theworld, she said, also unlocks tremendous opportunities for trade and aviation. To facilitate thisgoal, Chan noted that Hong Kong had also set a target of expanding its global aviation networkfrom the existing 220 destinations to 240 under its recently unveiled five-year plan. Edited byTony Sabine

- HK blueprint 'gives investors the certainty they seek' (2026-11-03 04:12)

Hong Kong can offer certainty, clarity and confidence to global investors at a time when structural forces are rewriting the rules of global finance, Chief Executive John Lee said on Tuesday. He was speaking in Central at the Global Financial Leaders' Investment Summit, which gathered some 280 of the sector's leaders from around the world. While blockchain and tokenisation were rebuilding the world's financial infrastructure, and AI was reshaping productivity, labour markets and competition, Lee noted that Hong Kong’s first five-year blueprint had set out clear developmental directions. “The plan delivers what markets value most: certainty,” he said. “In an era of ever-shifting terrain, it lays out a transparent roadmap, showing where Hong Kong is heading and how we intend to get there. I invite you to consider that roadmap yours as well. “And to be clear, as we rethink the playbook, as we create strategic blueprints for Hong Kong's development, we ensure the value proposition of our city remains intact – that is our competitive edge under the ‘One Country, Two Systems’ principle.” Lee added that he would be attending the Apec Economic Leaders’ Meeting in Shenzhen this month with the goal of advancing regional economic cooperation. Meanwhile, Vice Premier He Lifeng said Hong Kong’s development had always been in sync with the nation, adding that ensuring the sound development of the SAR had been a key strategic consideration of the central government. Delivering a speech to summit through video, he urged the SAR to leverage its advantages under "One Country, Two Systems". "Further demonstrating its international characteristics, Hong Kong will continuously deepen and expand exchanges and cooperation with the world in areas such as the economy, technology, and culture," He said. "It will provide greater convenience and better opportunities for more international capital, institutions, and talent to come to Hong Kong for entrepreneurship and development. "We will, as always, fully support Hong Kong in maintaining its unique status and advantages over the long term, build a higher-level, more competitive free and open economicenvironment, and create broader space for future development." He also expressed the centralgovernment’s confidence in the SAR’s five-year blueprint to develop Hong Kong. Edited byTony Sabine

- Parking meters down, emergency repairs under way (2026-11-03 02:31)

The Transport Department on Tuesday said that the parking meter system had broken down, with emergency repairs under way. The department said it received a report from the operator at about 8.20am that the system had malfunctioned. It said it instructed the operator to carry out the necessary repairs as soon as possible to minimise the impact on motorists, and to conduct a thorough investigation into the cause of the incident and submit a report. Motorists with enquiries can call the service hotline at 2332 3700. Later, Secretary for Transport and Logistics Mable Chan said several parking metres had returned to normal following the repairs. She added that no parking tickets would be issued until the system was fully restored. "The Transport Department immediately contacted the police. While the system is being repaired, police will not carry out enforcement on roadside parking spots. People can be sure of that," Chan said. "I want to reiterate that we attach huge importance to this incident and the system malfunction. I have instructed the Transport Department to require the system operator, Hong Kong Telecom, to submit a report as soon as possible. I hope an initial report can be submitted within the next 24 hours." _____ Last updated: 2026-11-03 HKT 12:17 Edited by Tony Sabine

- Man arrested over suspected spiked drink (2026-11-03 01:29)

Police have arrested a 61-year-old man suspected of adding an unknown substance to a 33-year-old woman's drink at a bar in Tsim Sha Tsui. Police received a report just before 5am on Sunday that a woman had fallen ill after drinking a beverage at a bar on Mody Road, with suspicions that the drink had been spiked. She was conscious and taken to Queen Elizabeth Hospital for treatment. The Yau Tsim Criminal Investigation Support Team took up the case and made the arrest in Central on Monday. The man is being held for further questioning on suspicion of administering poison with intent to harm. Japanese former adult film star turned DJ, Mao Hamasaki, has said she fell ill after having a drink that she said had been tampered with during a Halloween event. Edited by Tony Sabine

- Driver arrested over Tuen Mun fatal accident (2026-11-03 01:26)

A 54-year-old woman died early on Tuesday after reportedly being knocked down by a private car in Tuen Mun, with the driver arrested on suspicion of dangerous driving causing death. The accident happened at about 11.09pm on Monday along Castle Peak Road in Hung Shui Kiu, as the car was travelling towards Yuen Long. The woman suffered serious head injuries and was rushed to Tuen Mun Hospital in an unconscious state, where she was certified dead at 0.17am on Tuesday. The 53-year-old male driver was arrested and is being detained for further enquiries. The case is being investigated by the Special Investigation Team of Traffic, New

Territories North. Edited by Tony Sabine