Executive Summary

Indonesia's security landscape from March 14 to March 21, 2026, was marked by significant developments in defense modernization, heightened internal security operations, and active diplomatic engagement amidst global geopolitical tensions. The nation is pressing forward with ambitious military expansion plans, including a substantial increase in army battalions and a strategic shift towards a blue-water navy, while simultaneously navigating complex defense acquisitions with South Korea, France, and Türkiye. Cybersecurity threats continue to escalate, with a notable surge in ransomware and AI-powered attacks, prompting a focus on digital resilience and the security of the new capital, Nusantara. Internally, security operations in Papua intensified against armed groups, alongside a controversial proposal to expand the military's role in counter-terrorism, drawing international scrutiny.

Key Security Developments

- Defense Acquisitions and Arms Deals

Indonesia is reportedly moving towards a preliminary agreement to purchase 16 South Korean KF-21 Boramae supersonic fighter jets during President Prabowo Subianto's state visit to South Korea from March 31 to April 2, 2026. This potential deal, a reduction from an earlier plan to acquire 48 aircraft, aims to boost South Korea's defense industry and revive momentum in the joint KF-21 development program. Concurrently, Indonesia is set to receive the first batch of three Dassault Rafale fighter jets from France between February and March 2026, as part of a total order of 42 aircraft, with further deliveries scheduled for April 2026. The nation also signed a contract for 48 Turkish Aerospace Kaan fighters in July 2025. The acquisition of these diverse fighter jets highlights Indonesia's urgent need to update its aging combat fleet, which includes 33 Lockheed Martin F-16s with an average age of 38.5 years.

- Military Activities and Exercises

The Indonesian National Armed Forces (TNI) implemented Alert Level 3 across several units ahead of the Eid al-Fitr 2026 celebrations, effective March 14, 2026. This measure is intended to maintain operational readiness, ensuring all combat operational elements are prepared through personnel inspections, specific unit checks, and main weapon system assessments. On March 14, 2026, Indonesia and Japan bolstered security ties through cooperation on patrol boats and regional exercises. Furthermore, global navies united for shared security and regional stability during Exercise Milan 2026 on March 10, 2026.

- Defense Policy and Strategic Shifts

Indonesia is undertaking a massive Army expansion plan, aiming to create 750 new battalions of combat troops by 2029, with 150 units slated for activation annually starting in 2026. These battalions are intended for deployment in every district nationwide, raising concerns among critics about creeping militarization and deeper military encroachment into civilian affairs. This expansion signifies a strategic pivot from the "Minimum Essential Force" (MEF) doctrine, which prioritized maritime and aerial modernization, towards a land-centric "Optimum Essential Force" (OEF). In parallel, the Indonesian Navy (TNI-AL) is transitioning towards an assertive "blue-water hegemony" under the "Dynamic Resilience" doctrine, involving the acquisition of high-tonnage multipurpose combat ships, I-class frigates, and Scorpène Evolved submarines.

- Diplomatic Relations

On March 12, 2026, Indonesia and China reaffirmed their commitment to strengthening bilateral ties, focusing on economic and technology cooperation, particularly in artificial intelligence, trade, and investment. Indonesia reiterated its firm adherence to the One-China principle and expressed support for China's role as host of APEC 2026. Meanwhile, the United States issued a heightened travel advisory for Indonesia on March 14, 2026, citing terrorism threats, frequent natural disasters, and volatile protests in Papua. Amidst global turmoil, President Prabowo Subianto emphasized Indonesia's commitment to a free and active foreign policy and non-alignment, stating the nation would not join any military pact.

- Security Incidents and Threats

Papua continued to be a flashpoint for security incidents. On March 15, 2026, TNI soldiers in Nabire, Central Papua, neutralized a wanted member of the West Papua National Liberation Army-Free Papua Organization (TPNPB-OPM), Hurbianus Mirip, who was involved in acts of violence and murder since 2025. Additionally, on March 17, 2026, TNI forces evacuated 21 residents affected by security disturbances in the Far East Aifat District, Maybrat Regency, Southwest Papua. These operations follow tightened security in February 2026 after shooting incidents targeting aircraft and personnel near Freeport Indonesia's operations in Mimika regency and Koroway Airport. Papua also faces ongoing challenges with drug smuggling, leading to intensified border surveillance and inspections, particularly at the Skouw crossing in Jayapura city.

- Cybersecurity

Indonesia is experiencing a significant escalation in cybersecurity threats in 2026. Ransomware attacks surged by 45%, becoming the top threat, while phishing scams rose by 38%, and IoT device exploits increased by 52%. AI-powered attacks saw a 60% increase, enabling more targeted intrusions, and data breaches escalated by 48%, particularly in e-commerce and financial sectors. In response, Indonesia is emphasizing the importance of strengthening a cybersecurity culture amidst these rising digital threats. The government is also prioritizing advanced defense and cybersecurity systems for the new capital, Nusantara, in East Kalimantan, to ensure resilience against both conventional and digital threats. There is an ongoing push to fast-track a Cybersecurity and Resilience Bill to address these surging threats.

- Maritime and Border Security

Indonesia's Maritime Security Index (IKL) stood at 60 out of 100 in January 2026, indicating ongoing efforts to enhance maritime safety and enforcement capacity. The Indonesian Maritime Security Agency (Bakamla) links improvements in this index to potential investment, emphasizing stronger patrols, inter-agency coordination, and cooperation with foreign coast guards. Indonesia is also actively seeking membership in the Combined Maritime Forces (CMF), a 47-nation naval partnership based in Bahrain, to conduct counter-piracy and maritime security operations in the Indian Ocean and Gulf of Aden. This move aims to bridge the operational gap left by other initiatives and sustain long-range operational credibility.

- Counter-terrorism

A draft Presidential Regulation (Ranperpres) on the Indonesian Military's (TNI) role in combating terrorism has drawn a warning from UN special rapporteurs. The UN expressed concerns on February 20, 2026, that the proposed expansion of the military's role is excessive, lacks clear legal basis and accountability mechanisms, and poses a significant risk to human rights.

- Defense Industry Developments

The Indo Defence 2026 Expo & Forum is scheduled to take place from November 18-21, 2026, in Jakarta, serving as a key platform for global industry leaders and policymakers to showcase the latest defense, aerospace, maritime, and security technologies. Domestically, PT PAL Indonesia is leading the industrialization of naval modernization, having secured licenses for four Arrowhead 140 frigates, with two already under construction in Surabaya. Indonesia is also leveraging trilateral financing frameworks, primarily involving Qatar and Türkiye, to accelerate the acquisition of high-end NATO-standard platforms.

Geopolitical Impact and Regional Dynamics

Indonesia's security developments during this period reflect a nation asserting its strategic autonomy and enhancing its defense capabilities amidst a complex regional and global environment. The pursuit of advanced fighter jets from multiple sources (South Korea, France, Türkiye) demonstrates a diversification strategy, aiming to avoid over-reliance on any single power while modernizing its aging air force. This approach, coupled with the ambitious blue-water navy transition, signals Indonesia's intent to project power and secure its vast maritime interests, particularly in the context of the South China Sea where it is exploring maritime security cooperation with the Philippines and Vietnam.

The heightened alert status of the TNI following the US-Israeli strikes on Tehran on March 1, 2026, and President Prabowo's emphasis on national vigilance underscore Indonesia's awareness of global flashpoints and their potential to impact regional stability. Indonesia's commitment to a free and active foreign policy, rejecting military pacts, positions it as a non-aligned player seeking friendship with all nations, which is crucial for maintaining diplomatic space between major powers like the US and China. The reaffirmed economic and technology cooperation with China, particularly in AI, trade, and investment, highlights the enduring importance of this relationship, even as Indonesia strengthens ties with other partners.

The proposed deployment of 8,000 Indonesian troops to Gaza as part of an international stabilization force, conditioned on Palestinian independence, showcases Indonesia's growing role in humanitarian diplomacy and its desire to contribute to global peace efforts, particularly in the Middle East. This move also positions Indonesia as a significant voice among Muslim-majority nations. The expansion of security cooperation with Australia, Japan, and Papua New Guinea further illustrates Indonesia's proactive engagement in regional security architecture, aiming to enhance collective security and stability in the Indo-Pacific.

Military and Defense Analysis

Indonesia's military is undergoing a significant transformation, marked by an ambitious expansion of its land forces and a strategic shift in its naval posture. The plan to establish 750 new Army battalions by 2029, with 150 annually starting in 2026, represents a substantial increase in force presence across the archipelago. While officially aimed at national resilience and safeguarding vital assets, this land-centric expansion raises concerns about the military's increasing involvement in civilian affairs and a potential shift away from its professional defense mandate. The approved 2026 defense budget of IDR 187.1 trillion (approximately US$11.8 billion) supports these modernization efforts, though fiscal constraints remain a challenge.

The Indonesian Navy (TNI-AL) is actively pursuing a "blue-water navy" capability, moving beyond a reactive littoral defense to project power into the Western Indian Ocean and the South China Sea. This is evidenced by the acquisition of high-tonnage multipurpose combat ships, I-class frigates, and Scorpène Evolved submarines, with PT PAL Indonesia playing a key role in domestic industrialization through projects like the Arrowhead 140 frigates. The diversification of fighter jet acquisitions (KF-21, Rafale, Kaan) aims to modernize the air force's aging fleet and enhance its air defense capabilities. However, the reduction in KF-21 orders from 48 to 16 units suggests ongoing financial considerations and a pragmatic approach to defense spending.

Outlook and Forecast

Short-term trends (1-3 months): In the immediate future, Indonesia will likely finalize the preliminary agreement for the 16 KF-21 fighter jets during President Prabowo Subianto's visit to South Korea in late March/early April 2026. The first batch of Rafale jets is also expected to arrive, contributing to the modernization of the air force. Internal security operations in Papua are expected to continue, particularly around critical infrastructure and against armed groups, potentially leading to further localized engagements. The government will likely face continued international scrutiny regarding the proposed expansion of the TNI's role in counter-terrorism, requiring careful diplomatic navigation. Cybersecurity threats, especially ransomware and AI-powered attacks, will remain elevated, necessitating urgent implementation of the Cybersecurity and Resilience Bill and enhanced digital defenses for critical infrastructure, including the new capital, Nusantara.

Critical flashpoints and risk areas:

- Papua: The ongoing conflict with armed groups in Papua remains a critical flashpoint. Increased military presence and operations, coupled with human rights concerns, could lead to further instability and international attention.
- Cybersecurity Infrastructure: The rapid increase in sophisticated cyberattacks, particularly ransomware and AI-driven threats, poses a significant risk to Indonesia's critical national infrastructure, government services, and economic stability.
- South China Sea: While Indonesia maintains a non-claimant stance, its enhanced maritime security posture and cooperation with regional partners like the Philippines and Vietnam indicate a growing focus on maritime order in the South China Sea, which could lead to increased interactions in disputed zones.
- Middle East Tensions: Indonesia's decision to place troops on high alert due to the Middle East conflict and its proposed deployment to Gaza highlight its exposure to broader geopolitical instabilities, which could have unforeseen consequences.

Indicators to monitor:

- Progress of KF-21 and Rafale deliveries and integration: This will indicate the pace of Indonesia's air force modernization.
- Developments in Papua: Monitor reports on security incidents, human rights, and the effectiveness of government strategies.
- Cybersecurity incident reports: Track the frequency, sophistication, and impact of cyberattacks on Indonesian entities.
- Legislative progress of the Cybersecurity and Resilience Bill and the TNI's counter-terrorism regulation: These will shape Indonesia's legal and operational frameworks for digital and internal security.
- Statements and actions regarding South China Sea maritime cooperation: Observe the evolution of Indonesia's engagement with regional partners on maritime security.
- Updates on the Gaza deployment: Monitor the status and conditions of Indonesia's participation in the international stabilization force.

Strategic recommendations:

- Balance military expansion with civilian oversight: Ensure that the ambitious Army expansion plan is accompanied by robust civilian oversight mechanisms and clear mandates to prevent mission creep and uphold human rights, particularly in sensitive regions like Papua.
- Accelerate cybersecurity reforms: Prioritize the swift passage and effective implementation of the Cybersecurity and Resilience Bill, coupled with significant investment in national cybersecurity infrastructure, talent development, and public awareness campaigns to counter evolving digital threats.
- Strengthen regional maritime diplomacy: Continue to foster and expand maritime security cooperation with ASEAN partners and other regional players to enhance collective security, promote rules-based order, and manage potential flashpoints in the South China Sea.
- Diversify defense technology transfer: While acquiring advanced platforms, Indonesia should actively pursue technology transfer agreements to build its domestic defense industry capabilities and reduce long-term reliance on foreign suppliers.
- Maintain diplomatic flexibility: Continue to uphold a non-aligned foreign policy, allowing Indonesia to engage constructively with all major powers while safeguarding its national interests and contributing to regional and global stability.
