The chief executive is also expected to speak at the special session of the UN General Assembly where he will rally for additional support for the country's candidacy for a non-permanent seat on the UN Security Council for 2027 to 2028. By getting a seat in the council, the Philippines will have a voice in the discussions concerning global safety and security, Malacañang previously said. The president is likewise scheduled to meet with UN Secretary General António Guterres to discuss the situation in the Middle East to reiterate the importance of promoting peace and supporting the protection of civilians affected by tensions in the region. This is Marcos' sixth visit to the US since 2022.

MANILA, Philippines — Pasig City Mayor Vico Sotto called on residents to recognize the contributions and leadership of women as the country observes National Women's Month, in a video greeting shared by the Pasig Public Information Office on Saturday. Sotto highlighted the national theme "Lead Like the Babaylans, Filipinas," which underscored the role of women in shaping the country's identity. He also stressed the importance of continuing to acknowledge women's capabilities and contributions across different sectors of society. "Happy National Women's Month Pasigueños! Under this year's national theme of Lead Like the Babaylans, Filipinas, we recognize and we remember the role of women's leadership in our national identity," Sotto said. Sotto said the city government was implementing policies aimed at protecting women and ensuring their participation in governance, including the Safe Spaces Ordinance and representation in local special bodies where women have a voice in policymaking. “Pasigueños, let us continue to recognize the contributions and capabilities of women in various fields and in our society,” he added.

- China’s maritime militia presence in South China Sea hit record high in 2025, says US-based monitor (2026-03-08 02:53)

MANILA, Philippines -- China’s maritime militia were deployed in record-high numbers across the South China Sea in 2025, with vessels increasingly concentrated around key disputed reefs near areas of tension with the Philippines, according to a Washington-based research project that monitors maritime disputes and activities in Asia. Satellite imagery analysis by the Asia Maritime Transparency Initiative (AMTI) found a daily average of 241 militia vessels operating across monitored reefs in 2025, slightly higher than the 232 recorded in 2024. The figure represents the highest level observed since the group began systematic monitoring in 2021. The “Spratly Backbone Fishing Fleet” composed of professional units and civilian vessels belonging to China was detected across all reefs monitored by the initiative, though activity continued to shift toward Mischief Reef and Whitsun Reef, which together accounted for nearly half of the total observed vessels. Researchers said tracking militia vessels remained challenging because most ships did not broadcast positions through automatic identification system (AIS) platforms. Instead, AMTI relied on commercial satellite imagery collected throughout 2025 to count ships congregating at key reefs. The study expanded its dataset to 12 reefs with the addition of Johnson Reef, where satellite imagery revealed a moderate seasonal concentration of vessels east of the feature during the past year. Most ships identified were believed to belong to the Spratly Backbone Fishing Fleet, which is numerically larger than the professional militia component. For the study, researchers counted only vessels between 45 and 65 meters in length, a size commonly associated with Chinese militia trawlers and rarely seen among other fishing fleets or the China Coast Guard. Satellite imagery was analyzed roughly four times each month at each reef, with gaps between observations filled using interpolation to allow comparison across locations. Seasonal patterns remained consistent with previous years. Vessel presence was lowest from January to mid-February before rising after the Lunar New Year. Two major surges were observed across most features—one in June and another in late November. At Mischief Reef, militia presence showed four separate peaks exceeding 200 vessels, reinforcing its role as a key staging point for monitoring disputed areas near the Philippines, including Sabina Shoal and Second Thomas Shoal. Whitsun Reef displayed a similar seasonal trend, with vessel numbers peaking in the spring before declining during the summer and early fall and rising again later in the year. Other features recorded increased militia activity compared with previous years. Iroquois Reef showed higher peaks and a stronger baseline presence throughout 2025, while Thitu Reef experienced increases in both average and peak vessel counts despite reduced coast guard activity in the area. Gaven Reef maintained peak levels similar to those seen in 2024 but had a higher average daily presence. In contrast, Fiery Cross Reef recorded a sharp drop in militia activity. After averaging 32 vessels per day in 2024, the reef had almost no observable militia presence in 2025, suggesting a possible redeployment of Chinese vessels rather than an overall reduction in militia operations. The research also compared militia deployments with patrols by the China Coast Guard. Despite a record-high coast guard presence around Scarborough Shoal, militia vessels remained relatively few in the area. Analysts said this pattern suggests that Beijing relied more heavily on smaller but more capable professional militia units and coast guard ships to patrol highly contested areas, while larger numbers of Spratly Backbone vessels remain anchored at safer locations such as Mischief and Whitsun reefs. According to the AMTI, the 2025 data mirrors patterns seen in 2024 but with slightly higher overall militia presence and a redistribution of vessels across eastern areas of the Spratly Islands, according to the study. Researchers added that the shift may reflect Beijing's evolving strategy as international scrutiny has increasingly identified the fleet as part of China's maritime militia rather than a traditional fishing force.

- Service with a smile: Filipino workers help make cruising memorable (2026-03-08 00:29)

SINGAPORE — When the Adventure, Disney Cruise Line's newest ship, opens its doors to tourists for the first time on March 10, 2026, hundreds of Filipinos will be among the more than 2,000 personnel who will ensure that their stay on board will be pleasant and memorable. The Adventure, Disney's biggest cruise ship, has Singapore as its home port. It is the first DCL ship to target the Asian market. The 16-story vessel, which can be considered a floating theme park, can carry over 6,000 guests. One of the Filipino employees interviewed by The Manila Times considers herself lucky to be working on the cruise ship. Although work hours can be long, she said the crew, a mix of various nationalities, cruises along well, reporting to their posts with cheer, always gracious and ready to assist guests. Filipino personnel abound on the Adventure. In the restaurants, pools, shops, recreation rooms or staterooms, one can bump into them at every turn. One employee who hails from Northern Luzon said that he believed Filipinos' innate sense of hospitality and service with a smile, in addition to their mastery of the English language, make them the preferred crew for the cruise industry. He said they worked long hours but Disney compensates well. No figure was given on how many Filipinos have been hired by DCL to work on the Adventure, but by the looks of it, seems like a majority. And if you're a Filipino cruising for the first time, that makes all the difference. Seeing a compatriot who is willing to go the distance can make one's vacation truly more fun and memorable.

MANILA, Philippines – A low-pressure area (LPA) has been spotted outside the Philippine Area of Responsibility (PAR), but is unlikely to affect the country, the state-run weather agency said on Sunday. Weather specialist Veronica Torres of the Philippine Atmospheric Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (Pagasa) said in a 5 a.m. briefing that the LPA, which was estimated to be 1,710 kilometers east of northeastern Mindanao, also has a slim chance to enter PAR. “In fact, it was not seen to intensify into a tropical depression in the coming days,” Torres said. She said two weather systems – the northeast monsoon, locally known as ‘amihan’, and the easterlies – have been prevailing in most parts of the archipelago. These weather systems have been bringing scattered and isolated rain showers and thunderstorms, but hot and humid weather is likely during late morning until mid-afternoon, according to the Pagasa forecaster. In particular, Metro Manila, Ilocos Region, Occidental Mindoro, the rest of Central Luzon, and the rest of CALABARZON (Cavite, Laguna, Batangas, Rizal, and Quezon) would likely have partly cloudy to cloudy skies with isolated light rains due to the effect of amihan, the national weather bureau said. The rest of the country, meanwhile, could experience partly cloudy to overcast skies with isolated rain showers or thunderstorms due to the easterlies – winds that carry warm and humid weather, it added.

MANILA, Philippines — The Department of Migrant Workers (DMW) and the Overseas Workers Welfare Administration (OWWA) announced another batch of Filipinos returning from the Middle East, amid the ongoing conflict in the region. On Sunday morning, OWWA, on its Facebook page, said that 65 overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) and three dependents arrived in the country from Dubai, United Arab Emirates via Emirates Flight EK 334, which landed at Ninoy Aquino International Airport (NAIA) Terminal 3. Late on Saturday, the DMW said that 19 OFWs returned to the country safely from Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, through coordination with the Migrant Workers Office (MWO) in the city. According to the DMW and the MWO, they were supposed to return home last March 3, but their flight was delayed because of the conflict.

MANILA, Philippines – A low pressure area (LPA) has been spotted outside the Philippine Area of Responsibility (PAR) but is unlikely to directly affect the country, the state-run weather agency said on Sunday. Weather specialist Veronica Torres of the Philippine Atmospheric Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (Pagasa) said in a 5 a.m. briefing that the LPA, which was estimated to be 1,710 kilometers east of northeastern Mindanao, has also a slim chance of entering PAR. “In fact, it was not seen to intensify into a tropical depression in the coming days,” Torres said. She said two weather systems – northeast monsoon or “amihan” and the easterlies – have been prevailing in most parts of the archipelago. These weather systems have been bringing scattered and isolated rains and thunderstorms but hot and humid weather will be felt especially during late morning until mid-afternoon, according to the Pagasa forecaster. In particular, Metro Manila, Ilocos Region, Occidental Mindoro, the rest of Central Luzon and the rest of Calabarzon (Cavite, Laguna, Batangas, Rizal and Quezon) will likely have partly cloudy to cloudy skies with isolated light rains owing to the effect of amihan, the national weather bureau said. The rest of the country, meanwhile, will be experiencing partly cloudy to overcast skies with isolated rain showers or thunderstorms due to the easterlies – winds that carry warm and humid weather – it added.

MANILA, Philippines—The Department of Health (DOH) on Saturday reported a 65 percent decrease in rabies cases compared to the same period last year. According to its latest data, only 17 cases were reported from January 4 to February 21 this year, down from 49 cases reported during the same period in 2025. Despite the decline, the agency urged pet owners to have their pets vaccinated annually to prevent the spread of rabies, especially as March is observed as Rabies Awareness Month.

MANILA, Philippines—The Department of Health (DOH) on Saturday urged parents to have their children vaccinated against the human papillomavirus (HPV) as early as age 9. In a radio interview, the DOH said free HPV vaccinations are available for young girls and stressed that the vaccine is most effective for those who have not yet had sexual contact. Health Secretary Teodoro Herbosa noted, however, that despite the availability of free vaccination, only about 70 percent of parents have agreed to have their daughters immunized. “We need to convince more parents to have their young girls be vaccinated,” he said.

- DOST-FNRI warns vitamin A deficiency threatens health (2026-03-07 16:36)

MANILA, Philippines—The Department of Science and Technology-Food and Nutrition Research Institute (DOST-FNRI) on Saturday warned that the lack of essential nutrients—such as vitamin A—in diets threatens eyesight, weakens the immune system, and affects brain development. In its latest report, the agency noted that 3 in every 100 Filipinos have vitamin A deficiency (VAD), a problem they called “hidden hunger.” This, they claim, highlights the need for stronger nutrition education among Filipino families and improved access to vitamin and mineral supplementation for vulnerable groups—particularly pregnant women and children. “When intake is too low, children become more vulnerable to infections and, in severe cases, may suffer from visual problems. Among pregnant women, adequate vitamin A is important for maternal and child health,” the DOST-FNRI said in a statement.

- ICC rejects bid to free Duterte (2026-03-07 16:21)

(UPDATE) THE Appeals Chamber of the International Criminal Court (ICC) confirmed the continued pre-trial detention of former president Rodrigo Duterte, rejecting a defense appeal that sought his release on health grounds, as prosecutors separately asked judges to clarify the conduct of lawyers representing him in the case. In a unanimous judgment dated March 6, the five-judge Appeals Chamber upheld the Jan. 26 ruling of Pre-Trial Chamber I that ordered Duterte to remain in custody while facing charges of crimes against humanity linked to killings during his anti-drug campaign. The decision came as the Office of the Prosecutor filed a separate request asking the chamber to clarify rules governing the actions of Duterte's defense lawyers, particularly their communications with individuals connected to the case, including victims or potential witnesses. The developments mark the latest procedural steps in the ICC proceedings against Duterte, who has been detained in the court's facility in The Hague, the Netherlands, since March 2025. Health-based release rejected Duterte's lawyers had appealed the Pre-Trial Chamber's decision maintaining his detention, arguing that his deteriorating health and alleged cognitive impairment constituted a "changed circumstance" that justified his immediate release under Article 60(3) of the court's statute. The defense relied in part on a medical report prepared by doctors it commissioned, which it said showed Duterte's health condition significantly reduced the risks cited by judges when ordering his detention. Those risks include the possibility that the accused might flee, obstruct proceedings, intimidate witnesses, or continue committing crimes if released. However, the Appeals Chamber ruled that the Pre-Trial Chamber did not commit legal or factual errors when it declined to rely on the defense-commissioned report. Judges noted that the report did not contain new medical findings and that the doctors who authored it did not conduct a fresh examination of Duterte. The ruling said the report itself acknowledged that "no independent clinical re-examination was conducted," and instead relied on earlier assessments by an independent medical panel appointed by the court. The Appeals Chamber said those court-appointed experts provided the most reliable and up-to-date information regarding Duterte's health condition. While the panel's reports constituted new medical information considered during the detention review, the judges said the findings did not amount to a change in circumstances significant enough to alter the earlier ruling keeping Duterte in custody. The Appeals Chamber also agreed with the Pre-Trial Chamber's approach of refusing to rely on medical reports submitted by parties to the proceedings in order to preserve the neutrality of expert evidence. The judges rejected the defense's argument that disregarding the report violated Duterte's fair trial rights or the principle of equality of arms between prosecution and defense. According to the ruling, the defense had multiple opportunities to present arguments and observations regarding Duterte's health condition, and the chamber had adequately explained the basis for its decision. Having dismissed all arguments raised by the defense, the Appeals Chamber confirmed the earlier decision ordering Duterte's continued detention while the case proceeds toward the confirmation of charges stage. Defense conduct questioned At the same time, prosecutors asked the Pre-Trial Chamber to clarify issues related to the conduct and authority of Duterte's defense counsel in dealings with individuals connected to the case. In a filing titled "Request for Clarification regarding Defense Counsel," the Office of the Prosecutor sought judicial guidance on whether members of the defense team may contact victims or potential witnesses and under what conditions such communication would be allowed. The request followed instances in which individuals connected to the case were reportedly contacted by lawyers associated with Duterte's defense. Prosecutors said the chamber should clarify the limits of such communication to ensure that contacts with victims or witnesses do not interfere with the proceedings or undermine safeguards protecting participants. The filing also asked judges to clarify the scope of authority claimed by individuals communicating on behalf of Duterte's defense, including whether those individuals are formally recognized as part of the defense team before the court. According to prosecutors, judicial guidance is necessary to avoid confusion among victims and other participants about the status and authority of lawyers reaching out to them in relation to the case. Duterte was arrested in March 2025 after the ICC issued a warrant accusing him of crimes against humanity for murder. Prosecutors later filed a document containing charges alleging that he is criminally responsible for murder and attempted murder committed between November 2011 and March 2019. The prosecution alleges the killings formed part of a widespread and systematic attack against civilians during anti-drug operations carried out while Duterte served first as mayor of Davao City and later as president of the Philippines.

- Tiangco asks: What's going on with Zaldy Co? (2026-03-07 16:19)

(UPDATE) NAVOTAS Rep. Toby Tiangco has urged Congress to conduct a public hearing in aid of legislation to speed up the serving of an arrest warrant against Zaldy Co, the fugitive ex-congressman at the center of the flood control bribery scandal. The anti-graft court, the Sandiganbayan, has issued three arrest warrants against Co, but he remains at large outside the country. In a statement on Saturday, Tiangco said he filed House Resolution 808, which urges the House leadership to convene the Committee of the Whole to conduct a public inquiry in aid of legislation regarding the status of the arrest warrant against Co and to recommend legislative measures, if necessary. Tiangco questioned whether the authorities are still looking for Co, with many asking if there is "no sense of urgency" to find and hold him accountable. He further said there is a need for "clear-cut guidelines" for enforcing arrest warrants when a subject is outside Philippine jurisdiction, citing the conflicting positions of the Department of Interior and Local Government (DILG) and the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) in implementing Co's warrant of arrest. "DILG earlier said DFA is the agency primarily responsible for ensuring that Co will be successfully prosecuted before our court. The DFA, however, clarified that the enforcement of legal processes against Co involves a 'whole-of-government approach.' Whose agency should be responsible for cases such as this?" Tiangco said. Tiangco also stressed the need to determine whether legislative gaps allow individuals with substantial resources to evade legal processes and hide in foreign jurisdictions with which our country has no extradition treaty. "There appears to be a compelling need to determine whether existing laws sufficiently define institutional cooperation and accountability on the service and execution of warrants and bringing before our jurisdiction politically exposed persons who leave Philippine territory," Tiangco said. He said the inability to immediately enforce an arrest warrant against a high-profile individual allegedly hiding abroad raises serious questions about which government agency bears responsibility for the execution of the warrant, coordination with foreign jurisdictions, and engagement with international law-enforcement agencies. Officials from the Department of Justice (DOJ); the secretary of DILG; the secretary of DFA; the head of the National Bureau of Investigation (NBI); the chief of the Philippine National Police (PNP); the head of the Bureau of Immigration; and the ambassador of Portugal to the Philippines will be invited to the hearing. "Given the magnitude of the alleged flood control anomalies, there is a compelling need for the cooperation and active involvement of multiple agencies to effect legal process against fugitives from justice," Tiangco said. Meanwhile, the Sandiganbayan's Sixth Division has denied Co's motion for reconsideration to nullify his declaration as a "fugitive from justice." In a decision written by division chairman Associate Justice Sarah Jane Fernandez and released on March 5, the court denied Co's motion for being filed beyond the reglementary period, noting that his motion should have been filed within a non-extendible period of five calendar days. Co, in his motion, received his copy of the resolution on Feb. 3, meaning he only had until Feb. 9 to file his motion, but he filed it on Feb. 18, which is beyond the five-day period. Even if he filed the motion within the reglementary period, the court said it would still deny Co's petition for lack of merit, stating that there is nothing in his motion that would warrant the reversal of the resolution. Aside from Fernandez, the other justices who concurred in the resolution were Associate Justices Kevin Narce Vivero and Lord Villanueva.

- Oil prices surge as Mideast war rages (2026-03-07 16:18)

NEW YORK — Crude prices surged Friday on mounting fears about oil supply disruption during the Middle East war, while equities retreated on poor US hiring data. The conflict, in which nearly every country in the Middle East has sustained damage from missiles or drone strikes, has left ships that carry roughly 20 million barrels of oil a day stranded in the Persian Gulf, unable to safely pass through the Strait of Hormuz, the narrow mouth of the gulf that is bordered on its north side by Iran. The disruption and damage to key oil and gas facilities in the Middle East have led to an interruption in the supply of oil and gas. Oil prices surpassed $90 a barrel Friday, with American crude settling at $90.90, up 36 percent from a week ago, and Brent, the international standard, climbing 27 percent over the course of the week to land at $92.69. The international benchmark oil contract, Brent North Sea crude, surged to $92.69 per barrel, up 8.5 percent for the day and nearly 30 percent for the week, after US President Donald Trump said only the "unconditional surrender" of Iran would end the Middle East war. The main US contract, West Texas Intermediate, soared more than 12 percent to over $90 per barrel, topping off the biggest weekly gain on record. Maritime traffic has all but dried up through the Strait of Hormuz, through which a fifth of the world's crude oil and liquefied natural gas supplies run. Market reaction to the conflict had been tempered by hopes that it would be short, but Trump's demand for Iran's capitulation increases the prospect of a long conflict. Trump's comments "dashed hopes that the conflict will be averted quickly, and the oil price has continued its push" higher, said XTB Research Director Kathleen Brooks. The prospect of high energy prices for a sustained period has fanned fears of a fresh spike in inflation that could hit the global economy while curbing the ability of central banks to cut interest rates to prop up growth. "The longer that key energy infrastructure and shipping routes in the region are affected, the greater the chance of a significant inflationary impact," said AJ Bell Investment Director Russ Mould. Attacks on oilfields were reported in southern Iraq and in the northern autonomous Kurdistan region, which forced a US-run oilfield to cease production. Kuwait has also begun cutting production due to a lack of storage capacity, the Wall Street Journal reported. Earlier this week, Trump pledged to protect ships through the Strait of Hormuz, but shipping companies have exercised caution in the region. Trump's pledge helped "reduce some of the risk premium in oil markets," but will have "limited impact unless Iran's extensive disruption capabilities are first neutralized," said a note from analysts at JPMorgan Chase. War's fallout The fallout is ratcheting up what consumers and business will pay for gasoline, diesel and jet fuel, with some drivers already feeling it at the pump. "It's crazy. It's not needed, especially at a time when people are already struggling, but not unexpected from all this turmoil that's going on," said Mark Doran, who was pumping gas in Middlebury, Vermont, on Friday. "I don't think there's been an end in sight to any Middle East conflict that's been started by us, so the fact that they say that there's going to be an end that quickly is not believable, and the Middle East is, you know, a place that the US is not going to solve." On Monday, President Donald Trump said the US expected its military operations against Iran to last four to five weeks but has "the capability to go far longer." And on Friday, Trump appeared to rule out talks with Iran absent its "unconditional surrender." "The more news we get, the more it seems like this is going to last a really long time," said Al Salazar, head of macro oil and gas research at Enverus. In the US, a gallon of regular gasoline rose to $3.32 on Friday, up 11 percent from a week ago, according to AAA motor club. Diesel was selling for $4.33 a gallon Friday, up 15 percent from a week ago. The price shocks were felt even more heavily in Europe and Asia, markets that rely more heavily on energy supplies from the Middle East. Diesel prices doubled in Europe, and jet fuel prices rose by close to 200 percent in Asia, according to Claudio Galimberti, chief economist at Rystad Energy. Energy prices climbed throughout the week as Iran launched a series of retaliatory attacks, including a drone strike on the US Embassy in Saudi Arabia, and the conflict widened. Iran also hit a major refinery in Saudi Arabia and a liquefied natural gas (LNG) facility in Qatar, halting flows of refined products and taking about 20 percent of the world's LNG supply offline. "We keep seeing news of vessels being hit or refineries or pipelines, so the list is very long," Galimberti said. As a result, roughly 9 million barrels of oil per day are off the market because of facilities being hit or producers taking precautionary measures, he said. "Right now, with all of this shut in, we are in a situation of extreme deficit." The US is a net exporter of oil, but that does not mean it is immune to increases in the price of oil or gasoline, or that its producers can just make up the difference. Oil is traded on global markets, so even the oil produced in the US has risen in price based on what's happening in the Middle East. And for many American oil producers, "if you put more wells in the ground, there's about a six-month lag before you get that production uplift," Salazar said. In addition, the US can't simply turn all of its crude oil into gasoline. That's because most of the oil produced in the US is light, sweet crude, and refineries on the East and West coasts are primarily designed to process heavier, sour crude. As a result, the US exports some of its crude oil and imports some refined products such as gasoline. US job losses Meanwhile, data showed the US economy had unexpectedly lost jobs in February, while unemployment also edged up. The world's biggest economy shed 92,000 jobs last month, down from revised job growth of 126,000 in January, said the Labor Department. New data released Friday also showed US retail sales had fallen by 0.2 percent in January. Conserving energy

In the Philippines, Vice President Sara Duterte called on everyone to save energy costs amid rising fuel and commodities prices due to the war in the Middle East. “Many of us are worried. The prices of basic commodities continue to rise, and alongside the increase in fuel prices, the hardship will become even more severe. Parents are counting every peso, and many of us are anxious about what will happen next,” Duterte said in a video statement on Saturday. “I want you to know — you are not alone. We are all going through this struggle. We will all feel the weight of rising prices, especially for food. But there is still something we can do as citizens and as a community. And there is even more that the government must do,” she added. She urged local government units to prohibit non-essential activities that consume fuel, such as festival parades, as well as providing early notices to consumers and businesses regarding price hikes.

(UPDATE) BACKED once more by the Filipino diaspora packing the stands, Alexandra "Alex" Eala staged an impeccable comeback to enter the BNP Paribas Open third round. The Filipino tennis ace came back from a 4-5 game deficit in the 12th game of the third set, turning back Ukrainian Dayana Yastremska, 7-5, 4-6, 7-5, at the Indian Wells Tennis Garden Stadium 3 Saturday afternoon in Manila. Aided by Yastremska's three double faults late in the 12th game, Eala withstood a rally and clinched the match when the Ukrainian hit a long return. After hugging Yastremska and clasping hands with the umpire at center court, the emotional Eala yelled in celebration, riling up the already boisterous Filipino crowd. Winning the 2-hour and 43-minute duel, Eala repeated over world no. 52 Yastremska whom she first defeated at the Eastbourne Open quarterfinals last year, 6-1, 6-2. "It was incredible," Eala said in the post-match court interview. "This is my first time in Indian Wells." Seeded 31st in the tournament, world no. 32 Eala set up a rematch against fourth seed and world no. 4 Coco Gauff in the round of 32, likely on Monday. Eala fell to Gauff at the Dubai Tennis Championships, 0-6, 2-6. Gauff defeated Uzbekistani Kamilla Rakhimova in their round of 64 clash, 6-3, 7-6(5). Before facing Gauff, Eala competes in the doubles event with American partner Iva Jovic. Eala and Jovic take on the American-Latvian pair of Hailey Baptiste and Jelena Ostapenko on Sunday morning, Manila time.

- Anne Curtis rejects Bong Suintay's apology for 'vulgar analogy' (2026-03-07 16:16)

(UPDATE) ACTRESS and TV host Anne Curtis on Saturday rejected the apology issued by Quezon City 4th District Rep. Bong Suintay, who said during a congressional hearing that he imagined he saw her at a hotel and wondered, his heart full of desire, what might happen. Curtis broke her silence through a lengthy social media post days after Suintay referenced her in a "sexualized analogy" during a March 3 House Committee on Justice hearing. “Hi. It took me a while to speak up. I was focused on what mattered most, being reunited with my family, who were stranded in the Middle East and getting home safely,” Curtis began. “I am home now, and now I'm ready to say what needs to be said. Not for revenge or drama, but because remaining silent would be wrong ... for me, and for every woman watching,” she said. The actress said she was shocked when she learned that her name had been used during the hearing. “A vulgar, sexualized analogy. My name disgustingly used without my consent, in the wrong context, and more importantly, without an ounce of respect. My initial reaction was one of shock. I was hurt, disturbed by how perverted it was, and angry,” she said. The controversy erupted after Suntay referenced Curtis while discussing impeachment complaints against Vice President Sara Duterte. In defending Duterte’s earlier statements, the lawmaker argued that “imagination” or thoughts cannot be criminalized and used a hypothetical scenario involving the actress to illustrate his point. The remarks were stricken from the record, and quickly drew backlash online and from public figures, particularly as they came at the start of Women’s Month. In her statement, Curtis said the issue extends far beyond the single incident. “What happened to me isn’t rare. It happens to women every day ... in offices, in group chats, in rooms where men think no one is listening, or worse, in rooms where they know everyone is and simply don’t care,” she said. She added that what made the situation especially troubling was that the remark came from a public official. However, she said she would not focus on the lawmaker himself but on the culture that allows such comments to persist. “Mr. Suntay, I won’t spend much time on you. Not because what you did was small, but because this was never really about you. Since you used me as an example, let me use you as one too. You’ve become the poster boy of something much bigger: a culture that still thinks it’s acceptable to talk about women this way. Worse, one that tolerates it from our leaders,” she said. “As they say, misogyny dressed up as a joke is still misogyny. ... You hold a seat paid for by taxpayers. Women are taxpayers. I am a taxpayer. We are not props in your commentary,” she added. Curtis said she does not accept the apology issued by Suntay following the backlash. “I do not accept your non-apology. But I also will not carry this as a personal wound,” she said. However, she said she accepted the apology from the lawmaker’s wife, expressing empathy as a spouse and mother. “I do, however, accept your wife’s apology. Because as a wife and a mother myself, I know exactly what she must be feeling — that particular kind of embarrassment, that helplessness, that quiet grief of watching someone choose so poorly in public,” Curtis said. “To her, and to your children: this is not your shame. Please know that. And I hope everyone reading this extends them the same grace,” she continued. Curtis said the incident underscores the broader issue of sexism that women continue to face in everyday life. She also urged the House Ethics Committee to address the matter. “To the ethics committee: I hope you do not let this pass. The integrity of public office depends on the standards it upholds,” Curtis said. She added that she is now exploring possible legal action. “I will be seeking legal advice and will consider all my options looking forward,” Curtis said. Curtis thanked supporters who spoke out in defense of women following the incident. “To everyone who used their voice to stand up for us and fight for our respect, both men and women, thank you. And if anyone is wondering why Women’s Month still matters — this is exactly why,” Curtis said.

(UPDATE) THE Department of Migrant Workers (DMW) and the Overseas Workers Welfare Administration (OWWA) announced the return of more Filipinos, amid the widening conflict in the Middle East brought about by US and Israeli attacks on Iran. On March 6, the OWWA first announced the return of 349 Filipinos, including 44 overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) from Dubai on Emirates Airlines Flight EK 334. And on Saturday morning, both agencies said 442 Filipinos, including 81 OFWs, arrived in the country via Emirates Flight EK336. The DMW previously welcomed 333 Filipinos, including OFWs, in its first two batches of returnees from the Middle East. The total number of Filipinos who have returned from the Middle East now stands at 1,124. The returning Filipinos were given assistance upon their arrival at Ninoy Aquino International Airport Terminal 3 in Pasay City. Advisory The Philippine Embassy in Riyadh has advised Filipinos in Saudi Arabia to remain vigilant and closely monitor official updates following recent security developments in the Middle East that may affect travel and public safety. In an advisory, the embassy encouraged Filipino nationals across the Kingdom to follow reputable news sources and regularly check announcements issued by the embassy, the Philippine Consulate General in Jeddah, and Saudi authorities. The advisory was issued as the widening war in the Middle East disrupted regional air travel. Several airlines have adjusted their routes and canceled flights as a precaution. The embassy also urged Filipino travelers with upcoming flights entering or leaving Saudi Arabia to contact their respective airlines in advance to confirm flight schedules and prepare for possible delays or cancellations.

- MMDA adopts 4-day work week scheme (2026-03-07 16:14)

(UPDATE) THE Metropolitan Manila Development Authority (MMDA) will implement a four-day workweek for personnel assigned to its main building in Pasig City starting Monday as part of energy conservation measures amid the ongoing conflict in the Middle East, the agency announced on Saturday. The new work arrangement, cited in MMDA Memorandum Circular 05, Series of 2026, follows a directive from President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. to reduce electricity and fuel consumption across government offices. Under the scheme, covered employees will work 10 hours daily, Monday through Thursday, to complete the required 40 working hours per week, in accordance with Civil Service Commission policies on alternative work arrangements. The prescribed office hours will be 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday will be nonworking days (or rest days) for employees covered by the scheme. The MMDA said the arrangement applies only to officials and employees performing support and administrative functions at the MMDA New Building in Pasig City, and personnel assigned to essential, field, operational and emergency response functions outside the main building are not covered. As part of the changes, the agency will temporarily suspend shuttle services to remote destinations, including PITX, Lawton, Santa Lucia, MCU Monumento and Fairview. However, a limited shuttle route between the MMDA main building along C-5 in Pasig City and EDSA near SM Megamall will continue to operate. MMDA Chairman Don Artes said the agency will ensure that public services remain uninterrupted despite the new work schedule. The memorandum will remain in effect until further notice or until revoked by the president, the MMDA said.

- Philippines Rabies Cases Down 65% as DOH Urges Pet Vaccination (2026-03-07 16:13)

THE Department of Health (DOH) on Saturday reported a 65-percent decrease in rabies cases compared to the same period last year. According to its latest data, only 17 cases were reported from Jan. 4 to Feb. 21 this year, down from 49 cases reported during the same period in 2025. Despite the decline, the agency urged pet owners to have their pets vaccinated annually to prevent the spread of rabies, especially since March is Rabies Awareness Month. The agency also noted that 13 of the 17 reported cases involved bites from unvaccinated pets. It added that many cases occur when dogs bite their owners, who are unaware of their pets' vaccination status." We shouldn't be complacent; rabies is deadly. If you have rabies, once the symptoms start, mortality is almost 100 percent," said Health Secretary Teodoro Herbosa. Herbosa added that animal bites are the top reason for consultations at the DOH's Bagong Urgent Care and Ambulatory Service centers. He noted that following a meeting with the benefits committee, the benefit package for rabies post-exposure prophylaxis — an anti-rabies treatment — will be increased." If you have rabies, you need to get three doses of the rabies post-exposure prophylaxis vaccine. So it is very important that we increase it," Herbosa said. The DOH further reminded pet owners that if they are bitten or scratched by their pets, they should immediately wash the wound with soap and running water for 15 minutes, and seek consultation at the nearest animal bite treatment center for assessment.

- Quezon City fire displaces 4,000 families (2026-03-07 16:13)

A MASSIVE fire that tore through a residential community along NIA Road in Pinyahan village, Quezon City, destroyed 80 to 95 percent of houses in the area, rendering 4,000 families homeless, barangay (village) officials said Saturday. The fire was raised to the first alarm at 9:01 p.m. and then to the 5th alarm at 9:44 p.m., according to the Bureau of Fire Protection-National Capital Region (BFP-NCR). The blaze was later downgraded to Task Force Bravo at 11:18 p.m. and was declared out at 5:17 a.m. on Saturday, March 7. Barangay officials said the Quezon City Social Services Development Department was still assessing the damage and validating the number of affected households following the massive fire. Authorities estimated that each affected household has about four family members, saying the number of displaced residents could easily reach thousands. Many residents were forced to spend the night along nearby roads after the fire destroyed their homes. The BFP-NCR said fewer than 100 fire trucks responded to the incident as firefighters battled the blaze, rapidly ripping through the community. Fire officials noted that most houses in the area were made of light materials, which allowed the flames to spread quickly. Responders also had difficulty accessing portions of the community because fire trucks could not easily enter the narrow interior areas, authorities said. Authorities opened five evacuation centers, including the Pinyahan Covered Court at the National Irrigation Administration compound and the Pinyahan Church, where modular tents, food and hygiene kits were distributed. The BFP said it was still investigating the cause of the fire, the number of houses destroyed, and the overall damage from the incident. The Quezon City government was expected to provide financial assistance to affected families.

- Go files bill to expand special education fund (2026-03-07 16:12)

SEN. Bong Go has filed a bill to expand the allowable uses of the Special Education Fund (SEF), giving local governments greater flexibility to address urgent needs in the country's public education system. Filed as Senate Bill 1785, the proposed measure seeks to amend Section 272 of the Local Government Code of 1991 to broaden the purposes and applications of the SEF, a fund generated from an additional 1-percent tax on real property. For what the special education fund is used The SEF is allocated to local school boards and serves as a key supplemental funding source for public schools. Under existing law, the fund is primarily used for:— Operation and maintenance of public schools.— Construction and repair of school buildings and facilities.— Educational research.— Purchase of books and periodicals.— Support for sports development programs. However, Go said the current law limits the scope of the fund's use, preventing local governments from maximizing the resource to meet evolving educational needs. Institutionalizing expanded spending The senator noted that government agencies have already recognized the need to broaden SEF spending. In 2020, the Department of Education (DepEd), the Department of the Interior and Local Government, and the Department of Budget and Management issued Joint Circular 2, Series of 2020, which expanded allowable expenditures under the fund. The circular allowed SEF to cover expenses related to:— Production of self-learning modules, textbooks, activity sheets and study guides approved by DepEd.— Purchase of external storage devices such as flash drives and hard drives.— Communication expenses related to education delivery. The bill aims to institutionalize these expanded uses into law, ensuring they remain in place beyond administrative directives. Addressing pandemic lessons, infrastructure gaps Go said the Covid-19 pandemic exposed the need for a more adaptable education financing system, particularly during the shift to distance and modular learning. He added that many initiatives that the SEF could have aided remain unfunded due to restrictive provisions in the law. The senator also cited data from the Department of Education showing that, as of May 2025, the country faces a shortage of about 165,000 classrooms, highlighting the urgent need to use all available education funds. Additional proposed uses Under the proposed measure, the Special Education Fund could also be used for:— Construction and repair of libraries.— Payment of salaries, allowances and benefits for teaching and nonteaching personnel.— Additional education-related programs deemed necessary by local school boards. The measure aims to strengthen the capability of local government units to support public schools and improve access to quality education. Next steps The bill will undergo review and hearings in the Senate of the Philippines before it can advance through the legislative process and be considered by the House of Representatives. If passed into law, proponents say the expanded use of the Special Education Fund could help local governments address long-standing classroom shortages, learning materials and education personnel — key challenges facing the Philippine public school system.

- DOH Urges HPV Vaccination for Children as Early as Age 9 to Fight Cervical Cancer
(2026-03-07 16:11)

THE Department of Health (DOH) on Saturday urged parents to have their children vaccinated against human papillomavirus (HPV) as early as age 9. In a radio interview, the DOH said free HPV vaccinations are available for young girls and stressed that the vaccine is most effective for those who have not yet had sexual contact. The agency currently provides free HPV vaccines for 9-year-old girls. Health Secretary Teodoro Herbosa urged parents to take advantage of the program, noting that three doses of the HPV vaccine can cost up to P24,000. Herbosa noted, however, that despite the availability of free vaccination, only about 70 percent of parents have agreed to have their daughters immunized. The agency cited the country's conservative upbringing as a factor contributing to parents' hesitation to have their children vaccinated." We need to convince more parents to have their young girls be vaccinated," Herbosa said. He cited the success of Australia and Canada in reducing cervical cancer cases after implementing widespread HPV vaccination programs." They did this in Australia and Canada; the cases of cervical cancer declined, and they also included the boys, so much so that gynecologists have no cases anymore," he said. The DOH also clarified that HPV vaccines can still be administered to individuals who have already had sexual contact, while stressing the importance of HPV testing and screening.

- DILG to Deploy 800 Tourist Police in Key PH Destinations Starting April (2026-03-07 16:10)

THE Department of the Interior and Local Government said it will deploy 800 tourist police officers beginning in April to strengthen safety in key destinations. Local Government Secretary Jonvic Remulla said the initiative received approval from President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. and will be carried out in coordination with the Department of Tourism." The president (Ferdinand Marcos Jr.) has approved my plan that beginning April, we will launch together with the Department of Tourism the tourist police," Remulla said. The deployment aims to increase police visibility in high-traffic tourist areas, deter criminal activity, and ensure faster emergency response while promoting a safe environment for visitors and local businesses. Remulla said the tourist police will be equipped with motorcycles to improve mobility in crowded tourist sites and remote scenic areas. The Philippine National Police will distribute new motorcycle units dedicated to the deployment. Initial rollout sites include Bonifacio Global City in Taguig, Poblacion in Makati, as well as major tourist destinations such as Boracay, Siargao, Cebu, Bohol and Puerto Princesa. Apart from security duties, the tourist police will also help promote the country's central emergency hotline so visitors can quickly contact authorities during emergencies." Every tourist that arrives in the Philippines will be given the calling card of 911 so they know we have a three-minute response time wherever they are in the Philippines," Remulla said. In 2025, the government's Unified 911 system recorded a 97-percent response efficiency rate for nearly 4 million calls received nationwide. The emergency hotline has also handled incidents in several tourist destinations, in line with the directive of the president to prioritize tourism safety. Remulla said strengthening security in tourism areas could also generate economic benefits, particularly for the country's middle class." When you improve tourism, it's the middle class that benefits. They contribute the most and they get the very least benefit. We have to strengthen the middle class and make the country better," he said.

- CHED, CFO Ink Deal to Strengthen Global Filipino Education (2026-03-07 16:09)

THE Commission on Higher Education (CHED) has partnered with the Commission on Filipinos Overseas (CFO) to strengthen education opportunities for Filipinos living and working abroad. In a signing ceremony on March 4, CHED Chairman Shirley Agrupis and CFO Chairman Dante Ang II signed a memorandum of understanding to bridge the gap between international migration and academic excellence. The partnership aims to ensure that Filipino students and young professionals are better guided, protected and integrated into the global workforce. Under the agreement, the CFO will share key migration and demographic data with CHED to help guide the development of responsive higher education policies. The initiative, CHED said, will support Filipino students participating in international exchange and internship programs while facilitating smoother academic pathways for graduates of Philippine Schools Overseas (PSOs) who wish to pursue higher education in the Philippines. It also aims to bring international expertise back to Philippine shores through joint learning sessions or research collaboration via the Presidential Awards for Outstanding Filipino Individuals and Organizations Overseas network. CHED said these global Filipino leaders will serve as mentors or researchers to share their world-class experiences with students and faculty of Philippine universities and colleges. The collaboration also includes the conduct of joint research on migration and development, strengthening awareness campaigns to promote safe participation in overseas academic and internship programs, and enhancing coordination with higher education institutions for smoother academic pathways for returning students. Agrupis said overseas Filipinos remain an integral part of the community and a vital source of knowledge, innovation and expertise. "By strengthening connections between our higher education institutions and Filipino communities abroad, we ensure that global experience contributes directly to national development," Agrupis added. Ang said the CFO reaffirms its commitment to cultivating the talents of overseas Filipinos and providing platforms that encourage not just diaspora altruism, but also further engagement with their homeland. As the secretariat to the Inter-Agency Commission on PSOs, he added that the CFO will also ensure the ease of integration for overseas Filipino youth into local Philippine higher educational standards and requirements upon their return through the continued provision of the Philippine curriculum overseas.

- New Senate bill seeks to slash Philippines' VAT to boost disposable income (2026-03-07 16:08)

SEN. Mark Villar has filed Senate Bill 1916, which aims to lower the value-added tax (VAT) imposed on the sale of goods, services and imports. If enacted, the measure will amend Sections 106(A), 107(A) and 108(A) of the National Internal Revenue Code of 1997. In his explanatory note, Villar cited the mandate under Article VI, Section 28(1) of the 1987 Constitution of the Philippines, which directs Congress to establish a progressive taxation system — one in which tax rates increase according to a taxpayer's ability to pay. Villar said VAT, by design, is considered a regressive tax because it is imposed uniformly on consumption regardless of income level. "VAT disproportionately burdens lower-income persons and hinders an effective redistribution of wealth," the senator said. He added that the current tax structure can diminish purchasing power, narrow business profit margins, and discourage entrepreneurship and capital investment — factors that could slow economic growth. The Philippines currently imposes a 12-percent VAT, one of the highest consumption taxes in Southeast Asia. By comparison, Indonesia imposes an 11-percent VAT, Vietnam imposes a 10-percent VAT and Singapore has a 9-percent goods and services tax. According to Villar, reducing the VAT rate could help improve the country's competitiveness within the region. The proposed reduction is projected to increase the annual disposable income of the average Filipino household by about P8,000, potentially stimulating consumer spending and supporting business expansion. Supporters of the bill say the tax cut could encourage job creation, entrepreneurship and broader economic activity, particularly as households gain more spending power. To address concerns about possible revenue losses, the bill includes a fiscal safeguard. It authorizes the president to temporarily restore the VAT rate to 12 percent for a specific year if the projected fiscal deficit exceeds the target set by the Development Budget Coordination Committee as a percentage of the country's gross domestic product. The provision aims to ensure fiscal stability while allowing the government flexibility in managing budget deficits. Senate Bill 1916 will undergo committee review, public hearings and plenary deliberations before it can advance to the House of Representatives for approval.

- DepEd to Reach 1:1 Textbook Ratio Under 2026 National Budget (2026-03-07 16:07)

SEN. Sherwin Gatchalian said the historic P19.5-billion allocation for education in the 2026 national budget could ensure that all public schools receive free textbooks. “Under the 2026 national budget, we have ensured that no student will be left without a book. If before, more than one student used each book, that is no longer the case,” Gatchalian said in Filipino. For decades, public school students have had to share textbooks due to limited government supply. The new funding aims to establish a one-student-one-textbook ratio across all grade levels under the Department of Education (DepEd). The move is also meant to support the nationwide rollout of the Matatag Curriculum, the government's revised basic education framework designed to strengthen foundational skills, reduce subject overload and improve learning outcomes in public schools. During budget deliberations, the senator sought assurances from DepEd that the funds would be fully utilized. Gatchalian noted that in 2025, the department's utilization rate for textbooks and other instructional materials stood at only 14 percent, raising concerns about procurement delays and implementation bottlenecks. Carmela Oracion, officer in charge undersecretary for learning systems at DepEd, told the Senate that the agency has already begun early procurement efforts. According to Oracion, the department has procured P7 billion worth of textbooks, which will be distributed to Grades 6, 9 and 10 — the final grade levels needing materials for the full implementation of the Matatag curriculum. The remaining P12 billion will be distributed to DepEd regional offices to support further textbook procurement and distribution across public schools nationwide. Education officials say providing complete textbooks is a crucial step in improving learning conditions in public schools, where shortages of instructional materials have long been cited as a factor affecting student performance. The initiative is expected to benefit millions of learners enrolled in the country's K-12 basic education system, strengthening classroom instruction and ensuring students have consistent access to learning resources. The 2026 national budget is currently being implemented following its approval by Congress and enactment by the national government. Education remains one of the largest spending sectors in the government budget, reflecting efforts to address learning gaps and strengthen the country's public education system.

- Parañaque shooting suspect nabbed; previous dispute eyed (2026-03-07 16:06)

POLICE said a prior dispute between neighbors is being looked into as the possible motive behind a deadly shooting at a residential complex in Parañaque City that left two people dead and four others injured, as authorities announced the arrest of the suspect during a press briefing on Saturday at the PD Multi-Purpose Hall of the Southern Police District (SPD) headquarters in Fort Bonifacio, Taguig City. SPD director Brig. Gen. Randy Arceo said the suspect, identified only as alias "William," 59, was arrested at around 8:30 p.m. on Friday inside a condominium unit in Barangay Moonwalk, Parañaque City. Police said the arrest came a little over 48 hours after the shooting incident that occurred at around 7:59 p.m. on March 4 inside a residential complex in Barangay Marcelo Green. Investigators said the suspect allegedly opened fire during the incident, killing alias "Edwin," 57, and alias "Arjay," 29, both residents of Parañaque City. Four other individuals were wounded in the attack and were rushed to nearby hospitals for treatment. Police said initial investigation showed that the suspect previously had a dispute with some of the victims, which authorities are examining as a possible motive behind the shooting. Authorities said two 9-millimeter pistols, several magazines and live ammunition were recovered from the suspect during the arrest, along with personal items believed to be related to the incident. Police said charges for two counts of murder, four counts of frustrated murder and violation of Republic Act 10591, or the Comprehensive Firearms and Ammunition Regulation Act, are being prepared for filing before the Parañaque City Prosecutor's Office through inquest proceedings. The arresting officers also served an existing warrant of arrest for homicide issued by a Taguig regional trial court in 2023, indicating the suspect had a prior pending criminal case, police said.

- Netizens poke fun at BI post, thinking it was K-pop promo (2026-03-07 16:05)

NETIZENS on Friday and Saturday poked fun at the Bureau of Immigration's (BI) Facebook post, showing several South Korean citizens arrested in Pampanga, thinking it was something similar to a K-pop band. According to the BI on Friday, a raid was conducted on an office in Angeles City last Feb. 25, which led to the arrest of South Korean citizen Yu Jaemin, 33. "The operation stemmed from validated intelligence information indicating that the subject was involved in the operation of a suspected scam hub targeting fellow [South] Korean [citizens] and possibly other foreign victims," the BI report read. "Upon entry into the premises, BI operatives encountered 11 other [South Koreans] stationed at individual work areas and actively manning operational equipment. The setup, including designated workstations and ongoing digital activities, was consistent with reported scamming operations," the agency added. "The individuals were found engaged in work-related activities at the time of enforcement, prompting immediate verification of their identities and immigration status." On Facebook, netizens compared the photo arrangement to a photo shoot of South Korean pop groups, such as Super Junior and EXO, or even esports teams. “It’s like a Super Junior or EXO-inspired shot,” wrote one netizen in the comment section of the BI post. “The fact that they placed the good-looking man at the front means they’re onto something, y’all,” wrote another. “It’s giving ‘Squid Game,’ ” another netizen said, referencing a popular South Korean movie. “Selda pop?” wrote another netizen, referencing a popular Korean song. “I have to look twice if this is a K-pop Meme Page,” said another commenter. According to the BI, three of the Koreans arrested are “fugitives from justice with existing derogatory records,” while others were overstaying. “We will not allow organized fraud syndicates to exploit our communities and use Philippine territory as a base for criminal operations,” BI Commissioner Joel Anthony Viado said. “Our intelligence and enforcement units will continue to act decisively, in full coordination with law enforcement partners, to ensure that foreign nationals who violate our laws are arrested and removed,” he added.

- Political group rejects ‘uni-yellow’ label (2026-03-07 16:04)

THE August Twenty-One Movement (ATOM), known for its role in the 1986 People Power Revolution, rejected any connection with the Marcos administration, amid a “social media concoction” of a united force. In a statement on its Facebook page on Saturday, the group said there is no tactical alliance with any of the camps of the so-called UniTeam of President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. and Vice President Sara Duterte. “The social media concoction of a united force between the admin and the tidal wave-organic color that emerged in 2022 has been consistently floated by certain sectors, especially online. Some bought into it, while others remain adamant in rejecting that idea. We feel that this remains a divisive way to weaken the true opposition, especially those who do not have any plans to coalesce with either the Marcos camp or the Vice President’s camp,” the group said. “Although we do not really campaign for any candidate/s since the last time some of us did it with Cory Aquino’s presidential campaign, one thing is certain: there won’t be any ‘uni-yellow’ ever for the ATOM, at least, as far as our values are concerned. No tactical alliance whatsoever with any of those two ‘UniTeam’ camps,” they added. The opposition group said their interpretation of the color yellow was the same yellow that fought to depose the administration of former president Ferdinand Marcos Sr. from 1983 to 1986, and was the same color that welcomed home former senator Benigno Aquino Jr. in 1983. “ATOM’s yellow remains the same yellow that fought to bring down the Marcos dictatorship from 1983 to 1986. It is the same yellow that tried to welcome Ninoy Aquino on Aug. 21, 1983. It is the same yellow that is deeply rooted in the Filipino people’s democratic values, which mobilized from 1983 to 1986, and not rooted in a political party or a politician. But a yellow that will continue to embrace the ideals of those yellow-ribbon-clad Filipinos who blocked tanks in 1986, who tried to give their children and their grandchildren a better future. The same yellow that will never stop seeking closure for the unfinished 1986 People Power Revolution,” the group said. “History has a lot of advice to tell and remind young people of today, which we have completely ignored for the last forty years since the EDSA People Power. This is why we are in this mess,” they added. They specifically cited that former president Rodrigo Duterte was a “symptom of our failure to address the cause of the illness of our nation,” which was the failure in holding the “conjugal dictatorship” of the first Marcos administration accountable following 1986, as no one was brought to jail. “Even if many trolls on social media say that we’re being hypocritical, sorry to burst the bubble, but there will never be a uni-yellow, at least,” they said.

- Sotto marks Women’s Month, highlights women's role (2026-03-07 16:03)

PASIG City Mayor Vico Sotto called on residents to recognize the contributions and leadership of women as the country observes National Women’s Month, in a video greeting shared by the Pasig Public Information Office on Saturday, March 7. Sotto highlighted the national theme “Lead Like the Babaylans, Filipinas,” which underscores the role of women’s leadership in shaping the country’s identity. He also stressed the importance of continuing to acknowledge women’s capabilities and contributions across different sectors of society. “Happy National Women’s Month, Pasigueños! Under this year’s national theme of Lead Like the Babaylans, Filipinas, we recognize, and we remember the women’s leadership role in our national identity,” Sotto said. Sotto added that the city government is implementing policies that protect women and ensure their participation in governance, including the Safe Spaces Ordinance and representation in local special bodies where women have a voice in policymaking. “Pasigueños, let us continue to recognize the contributions and capabilities of women in various fields and in our society,” he added.

- PH, Malaysia boost aviation ties (2026-03-07 16:02)

THE Philippines and Malaysia updated their 1978 Air Services Agreement following two days of negotiations in Kuala Lumpur, which concluded on March 5, 2026. The agreement has been updated to reflect contemporary travel realities by incorporating revised airline designation rules under the Public Service Act. Under the new terms, airline designation rules have been shifted to recognize carriers based on their principal place of business rather than traditional ownership structures. This policy shift is expected to increase the number of airlines authorized to operate between the two nations, fostering greater competition and lowering airfares for travelers. The deal also expands commercial cooperation by encouraging joint ventures and code-sharing agreements, aimed at creating a more seamless transit experience between the neighboring countries. The Philippine delegation was headed by Transportation Undersecretary Jim Sydiongco, Civil Aviation Authority of the Philippines (CAAP) deputy director Gen. Danjun Lucas and Civil Aeronautics Board Executive Director Carmelo Arcilla. The CAAP said the modernization of these bilateral ties is a strategic move to boost the Philippines’ global aviation competitiveness. Officials said they expect the partnership to serve as a catalyst for tourism, economic growth, and strengthened diplomatic ties.

- AFP: No nationality banned from military camps, foreign visitors must follow clearance rules (2026-03-07 15:53)

The Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) on Saturday clarified that no nationality is outright prohibited from entering military camps, including recreational areas such as the Camp Aguinaldo Golf Course. All foreign visitors, the AFP stressed, must comply with existing visit clearance policies. The statement came after social media posts suggested that Chinese nationals were being barred from using the golf course. AFP officials said the rules, which are now being more strictly enforced, apply to all foreigners seeking access to military facilities. “These measures are part of internal security protocols within military camps and are intended to ensure the safety and integrity of AFP installations,” the AFP said. Camp Aguinaldo management also noted that the clearance requirements cover recreational areas, including golf courses. The clarification follows a recent Chinese-linked espionage case disclosed by the National Security Council, in which several Filipinos allegedly had foreign handlers. One suspect reportedly worked for the Department of National Defense, another with the Philippine Navy, and a third had ties to a Philippine Coast Guard officer. A separate Navy officer reportedly resisted recruitment attempts. The AFP said the three individuals involved in the case cooperated while under military custody, and the matter has since been resolved.

- Group of Pinoys in the Netherlands welcome ICC decision vs. Duterte (2026-03-07 15:22)

A group of Filipinos in the Netherlands said they welcomed the decision of the International Criminal Court (ICC) in rejecting the appeal of former president Rodrigo Duterte’s defense team seeking release. In a statement on Saturday, Panagutin Netherlands Network said the decision affirms the “importance of accountability and strengthens the pursuit of justice for the thousands of victims under his brutal ‘war on drugs’ .” “On behalf of the Filipino migrants, individuals, and organizations that make up our network, we are ready to face Rodrigo Duterte once his trial begins. For years, we have stood with the victims and their families in demanding justice. We are prepared to witness the truth come to light and to ensure that the voices of the Filipino people, especially those who suffered most under Duterte’s bloody campaign, are heard,” the network said. “We thank the ICC for its impartiality and for standing firm on the side of truth despite Duterte’s attempts to evade accountability. This decision gives hope to victims and their families that justice will continue to move forward,” they added. They urged the tribunal to issue warrants of arrest against senators Bato dela Rosa, Bong Go, and other co-perpetrators involved in the controversial drug war. “Justice must not stop with Duterte alone; all those responsible must be held to account,” the group said. “As the trial proceeds, we expect the presence of Rodrigo Duterte in court. He must face the Filipino people and answer for the crimes against humanity committed under his administration,” they added. The Panagutin Netherlands Network is a newly-formed campaign network of Filipino individuals and organizations in the Netherlands that seeks to campaign for justice, accountability, and good governance.

MANILA, Philippines - Vice President Sara Duterte has called on everyone to cooperate in saving energy costs amid increasing fuel and commodities prices due to the ongoing conflict in the Middle East."Many of us are worried. The prices of basic commodities continue to rise, and alongside the increase in fuel prices, the hardship will become even more severe. Parents are counting every peso, and many of us are anxious about what will happen next," Duterte said in a video statement on Saturday."I want you to know—you are not alone. We are all going through this struggle. We will all feel the weight of rising prices, especially for food. But there is still something we can do as citizens and as a community. And there is even more that the government must do," She added.She urged local government units to prohibit non-essential activities that consume fuel, such as festival parades, as well as providing early notices to consumers and businesses regarding price hikes."Strengthen support for local farmers and small suppliers to reduce reliance on imported products, providing a buffer against sudden price spikes, [and] Issue austerity orders within the LGU to be followed by all offices, including the barangays," Duterte said.She also implored citizens to prioritize essential goods and buying local products to strengthen the local economy, as well as reducing unnecessary energy consumption.Duterte also urged government agencies to implement measures against hoarding and excessive overpricing of fuel and conducting regular inspections while shutting down erring businesses."We will find ways to lighten our burden—through community cooperation, supporting local products, and being mindful of our spending and energy use. At the same time, let us expect government action to protect every Filipino family and ensure a fair and stable market," Duterte said.

She said that even before the President made the public announcement, he had already issued marching orders to prepare interventions aimed at easing the burden on the public. MANILA, Philippines — Police said a dispute between neighbors is being looked into as the possible motive behind a deadly shooting at a residential complex in Parañaque City that left two people dead and four others injured, as authorities announced the arrest of the suspect during a press briefing on Saturday at the PD Multi-Purpose Hall of the Southern Police District (SPD) headquarters in Fort Bonifacio, Taguig City. PBGen. Randy Arceom SPD director, said the suspect, identified only as alias “William,” 59, was arrested at around 8:30 p.m. on Friday inside a condominium unit in Barangay Moonwalk, Parañaque City. Investigators said the suspect allegedly opened fire during the incident, killing alias “Edwin,” 57, and alias “Arjay,” 29, both residents of Parañaque City. Four other individuals were wounded in the attack and were rushed to nearby hospitals. Police said initial investigation showed that the suspect previously had a dispute with some of the victims, which authorities are examining as a possible motive behind the shooting. Authorities said two 9mm pistols, several magazines and live ammunition were recovered from the suspect during the arrest, along with personal items believed to be related to the incident. Police said charges for two counts of murder, four counts of frustrated murder and violation of Republic Act 10591, or the Comprehensive Firearms and Ammunition Regulation Act, are being prepared for filing before the Parañaque City Prosecutor’s Office through inquest proceedings.

- Impeachment planned as early as 2023 — Sara (2026-03-07 07:46)

MANILA, Philippines — Vice President Sara Duterte said the impeachment complaints that were filed against her had been planned as early as May 2023 through the efforts of the Makabayan bloc and the allies of former speaker Martin Romualdez at the House of Representatives. Speaking at the pilot episode of her SMNI TV program "Ibalik ang Tapang at Malasakit" on Friday, Duterte said that the issue of confidential funds, which is one of the grounds cited in her impeachment case, has been raised by some members of the bloc when she was still vice chairman of the National Task Force to End Local Communist Armed Conflict (NTF-ELCAC). "They said that if I became NTF-ELCAC vice chair, I would control more confidential funds. So as early as May 11, 2023, they already have a script," Duterte said. She also accused former House Appropriations Committee Vice Chairman Stella Luz Quimbo of putting the narrative that the P125 million confidential fund of the Office of the Vice President was spent in just 11 days. Duterte also said that the members of the Makabayan bloc met with then speaker Romualdez, which led to a "partnership" against them. She reiterated that the Commission on Audit gave the OVP two Audit Observation Memoranda that specifically stated that the agency has an "unmodified opinion," meaning that its finances were in compliance with the agency's auditing rules. Duterte also defended the use of confidential funds, saying these were used in areas where there is a concentration of threats to education and children, such as criminality, insurgency and violent extremism.

- Inquiry pushed on implementation of Zaldy Co's arrest warrant (2026-03-07 05:52)

MANILA, Philippines — Navotas Rep. Toby Tiangco urged the House of Representatives to conduct a public hearing in aid of legislation to fast-track the implementation of an arrest warrant against former Ako Bicol Partylist representative Elizaldy Co. Co remains at-large after being dragged in the flood control scandal involving projects allegedly bagged by his company, Sunwest. In a statement on Saturday, Tiangco filed House Bill 808 which urges the House leadership to convene the Committee of the Whole to conduct a public inquiry in aid of legislation on the status of the arrest warrant against Co, and to recommend legislative measures, if necessary. He further said that there should be a need for "clear cut guidelines" for enforcing arrest warrants when a subject was outside Philippine jurisdiction, and cited the conflicting positions of the Department of the Interior and Local Government (DILG) and the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) in implementing Co's warrant of arrest. "DILG earlier said DFA is the agency primarily responsible for ensuring that Co will be successfully prosecuted before our Court. The DFA, however, clarified that the enforcement of legal processes against Co involves a 'whole-of-government approach.' Ano ba talaga at sino ba dapat ang ahensyang dapat manguna sa mga kasong gaya nito? (On whose agency should be responsible for cases such as this?), " Tiangco said. Tiangco also stressed need to determine whether legislative gaps allowed individuals with substantial resources to evade legal processes and hide in foreign jurisdictions with which the Philippines has no extradition treaty.

- Quezon City fire affects 4,000 families (2026-03-07 05:25)

MANILA, Philippines — A massive fire that tore through a residential community along NIA Road in Pinyahan village, Quezon City destroyed 80 to 95 percent of houses in the area and affected about 4,000 families, barangay officials said Saturday. The fire was first raised to the first alarm at 9:01 p.m. on March 6, 2026 before escalating to the 5th alarm at 9:44 p.m., according to the Bureau of Fire Protection-National Capital Region (BFP-NCR). The blaze was later elevated to Task Force Bravo at 11:18 p.m. and was declared fire out at 5:17 a.m. on Saturday, March 7. Barangay officials said the Quezon City Social Services Development Department was still assessing the damage and validating the number of affected households following the massive fire. Authorities estimated that each affected household has around four family members, placing the number of displaced residents in the thousands. Many residents were forced to spend the night along nearby roads after the fire destroyed their homes. The BFP-NCR said fewer than 100 fire trucks responded to the incident as firefighters battled the blaze that spread rapidly through the community. Fire officials noted that most houses in the area were made of light materials, which allowed the flames to spread quickly. Responders also had difficulty accessing portions of the community because fire trucks could not easily enter the narrow interior areas, authorities said. Authorities opened five evacuation centers, including the Pinyahan Covered Court at the National Irrigation Administration compound and the Pinyahan Church, where modular tents, food and hygiene kits were distributed. The BFP said it was still investigating the cause of the fire as well as the total number of houses destroyed and the overall damage from the incident, while the Quezon City government was expected to provide financial assistance to affected families.

MANILA, Philippines — Netizens on Friday and Saturday poked fun at the Bureau of Immigration's (BI) Facebook post, showing a South Korean citizen arrested in Pampanga, thinking it was something similar to a KPop band. According to the BI on Friday, a raid was conducted at an office in Angeles City last Feb. 25, 2026, which led to the arrest of South Korean citizen Yu Jaemin, 33. On Facebook, however, netizens compared the photo arrangement to a shoot of South Korean pop groups, such as Super Junior and EXO or even esports teams. "It's like a Super Junior or EXO-inspired shot," wrote one netizen in the comment section of the Immigration post. "The fact that they placed the good-looking man at the front means they're onto something y'all," wrote another. "It's giving Squid Game," another netizen said, referencing a popular South Korean movie. "Selda pop?" wrote another netizen, referencing a popular Korean song. "I have to look twice if this is a Kpop Meme Page," said another commenter. According to Immigration, three of the Koreans arrested were "fugitives from justice with existing derogatory records", while others were overstaying.

MANILA, Philippines — The August Twenty One Movement, known for its role in the 1986 People Power Revolution that ousted then president Ferdinand Marcos Sr., rejected any connection with the incumbent administration, amid a “social media concoction” of a united force. In a statement on its Facebook page on Saturday, the group said there was no tactical alliance with any of the camps of the so-called “uniteam” of President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. and Vice President Sara Duterte. “The social media concoction of a united force between the admin and the tidal wave-organic color that emerged in 2022 has been consistently floated by certain sectors, especially online. Some bought into it, while others remain adamant in rejecting that idea. We feel that this remains a divisive way to further weaken the true opposition, especially those who do not have any plans to coalesce with either the Marcos camp or the Vice-President's camp,” the group said. “Although we do not really campaign for any candidate/s since the last time some of us did it with Cory Aquino's presidential campaign, one thing is certain: there won't be any ‘uni-yellow’ ever for the August Twenty-One Movement (ATOM) at least, as far as our values are concerned. No tactical alliance whatsoever with any of those two ‘uniteam’ camps,” it added.

MANILA, Philippines — The Philippines and Malaysia modernized their aviation framework following two days of bilateral negotiations in Kuala Lumpur, which concluded on March 5, 2026. The agreement modernizes the 1978 Air Services Agreement to reflect contemporary travel realities by incorporating revised airline designation rules under the Public Service Act. Under the new terms, airline designation rules have been shifted to recognize carriers based on their principal place of business rather than traditional ownership structures. This policy shift is expected to increase the number of airlines authorized to operate between the two nations, fostering greater competition and lowering airfares for travelers. The deal also expands commercial cooperation by encouraging joint ventures and codesharing agreements, aimed at creating a more seamless transit experience between the neighboring countries. The Philippine delegation was headed by Transportation Undersecretary Jim Sydiongco, alongside Civil Aviation Authority of the Philippines (CAAP) Deputy Director General Danjun Lucas and Civil Aeronautics Board Executive Director Carmelo Arcilla. According to CAAP, the modernization of these bilateral ties is a strategic move to boost the Philippines' global aviation competitiveness, following directives from President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. and Transportation Secretary Giovanni Lopez. Officials expect the partnership to serve as a catalyst for tourism, economic growth, and strengthened diplomatic ties.

- ICC Appeals Chamber confirms detention of Duterte, rejects health grounds for release (2026-03-06 16:54)

The Appeals Chamber of the International Criminal Court (ICC) on Friday confirmed the continued pre-trial detention of former Philippine president Rodrigo Duterte, rejecting defense arguments that his health condition justified his immediate release. In a unanimous judgment issued March 6, 2026, the five-judge panel upheld the January 26 ruling of Pre-Trial Chamber I ordering Duterte to remain in custody while he faces charges of crimes against humanity, including murder and attempted murder, linked to his administration's deadly anti-drug campaign from 2011 to 2019. The defense appealed on a single ground, arguing that the Pre-Trial Chamber erred in disregarding a medical report submitted by Duterte's legal team, which they said constituted a "changed circumstance" warranting his release under Article 60(3) of the Rome Statute. The Appeals Chamber rejected the argument, ruling that the Pre-Trial Chamber was entitled to rely instead on reports from a court-appointed panel of three independent medical experts. "The assessment of the risk factors under article 58(1)(b) of the Statute, including the impact of Mr. Duterte's health condition on these risks, is a legal determination to be made by the Pre-Trial Chamber that does not require any assistance of medical practitioners," the Appeals Chamber said. The defense submitted its medical report on January 9, 2026. Prepared by external practitioners, it argued that Duterte's alleged cognitive deficiencies would prevent him from absconding, threatening witnesses, or continuing to commit crimes — the three statutory risks used to justify pre-trial detention. However, the Appeals Chamber noted that the defense experts had not conducted a new examination of Duterte and instead relied on information already contained in reports prepared by the court-appointed panel in December 2025. "The Defense has not explained why or how the Defense's report, without any examination of Mr. Duterte, may provide more updated or reliable information concerning Mr. Duterte's health condition than that provided in the panel's reports," the judgment stated. The court also dismissed defense arguments that the rejection of the report violated Duterte's fair trial rights and the principle of equality of arms. It noted that the Pre-Trial Chamber had consistently maintained it would not rely on medical reports submitted by either party in order to preserve the fairness of the proceedings. Duterte, 80, was surrendered to the ICC on March 12, 2025, after the court issued an arrest warrant. Prosecutors allege he bears criminal responsibility for thousands of deaths in anti-drug operations that they say formed part of a widespread and systematic attack against civilians. The Appeals Chamber also noted that the defense raised arguments that "merely repeat" issues already addressed in earlier rulings, describing the practice as "not an appropriate use of judicial time and resources.” Friday’ s decision marked the second time the Appeals Chamber has upheld Duterte’ s detention, after affirming the initial detention ruling in November 2025.

(UPDATED) MANILA, Philippines — The Appeals Chamber of the International Criminal Court (ICC) on Friday confirmed the continued pre-trial detention of former Philippine president Rodrigo Duterte, rejecting defense arguments that his health condition justified his immediate release. In a unanimous judgment issued March 6, 2026, the five-judge panel upheld the Jan. 26 ruling of the Pre-Trial Chamber I ordering Duterte to remain in custody while he faced charges of crimes against humanity, including murder and attempted murder, linked to his administration’ s deadly anti-drug campaign from 2011 to 2019. Respecting the court's decision It was previously stated by the defense team of former president Duterte that they would not oppose the ICC's decision for his continued detention while awaiting a ruling from the Appeals Chamber on its challenge to an earlier decision denying his release. The statement came during a public hearing convened to review Duterte's detention under Article 118 of the Rome Statute, which mandates an annual assessment of a suspect's custody. The last detention review was conducted on March 14, 2025. Duterte's defense lawyer Nicholas Kaufman confirmed that the team had filed an appeal against the pre-trial chamber's detention ruling. "As your honors are aware, the defense has appealed the pre-trial chamber's decision on the first detention review," Kaufman said.

"Since we are still awaiting a judgment of the Appeals Chamber, the defense will not oppose the continuation of Mr. Duterte's current detention." What's next During this phase, the Prosecutor's office prepares to finalize its case file, evidence, witness statements, and documentation to support the charges of crimes against humanity related to alleged extrajudicial killings during Duterte's time as mayor of Davao City and later as president. The defense, on the other hand, will continue to file motions, challenge evidence, and raise procedural concerns, though the Appeals Chamber has already established that release is unlikely unless significant new circumstances arise.

- 20,000 seafarers, 15,000 cruise passengers stuck in Gulf (2026-03-06 16:13)

(UPDATE) AROUND 20,000 seafarers and 15,000 cruise ship passengers are stuck in the Gulf because of the Middle East war, the United Nations' International Maritime Organization (IMO) said Thursday. The shipping regulator's secretary-general, Arsenio Dominguez, told Agence France-Presse (AFP) that the "IMO is ready to work with all stakeholders to help ensure the safety and well-being of the seafarers affected." The maritime sector said it had designated the Strait of Hormuz, Gulf of Oman and Gulf as a "warlike operations area," granting seafarers additional protections as the Middle East war engulfs the crucial energy transit route. Since war erupted on Saturday, the IMO has recorded seven incidents involving ships in the region that have resulted in two deaths and another seven people wounded. "Beyond the economic impact of these alarming attacks, it is a humanitarian issue. No attack on innocent seafarers is ever justified," Dominguez said. "I reiterate my call for all shipping companies to exercise maximum caution when operating in the affected region," he added. Iran has effectively shut down the Strait of Hormuz, through which a fifth of the world's crude and considerable supplies of liquefied natural gas travel. Several shipping groups, including Danish shipping giant Maersk, have suspended bookings in the Gulf. Maritime employers and unions representing their workers on Thursday said their upgraded designation of the Strait of Hormuz, Gulf of Oman and Gulf from a "high risk area designation" three days ago "reflects the continuing and heightened threat to seafarers and vessels operating in the region." "Hundreds of vessels are stranded in the Gulf following the halt of vessel movements through the Strait of Hormuz, highlighting the scale of disruption and risk facing civilian crews in the region," said a joint statement from the International Transport Workers' Federation (ITF) and the Joint Negotiating Group, which represents maritime employers. ITF General Secretary Stephen Cotton told AFP that after 32 years involvement with the federation, "this is the worst" he has seen it, "because it's so unclear on the diplomatic level." While seafarers can request to leave a ship and be repatriated, the reality is not so clear. "You can't push a button, and you immediately leave a vessel,” said Cotton. “If you’ve got a crew of 25, you probably need 16 to safely run the vessel.” Iran’s Revolutionary Guards on Wednesday claimed “complete control” of the Strait, with reports of additional vessels coming under attack. Energy intelligence firm Kpler said oil tanker transits through the Strait had dropped by 90 percent from last week. With energy prices already soaring, United States President Donald Trump said Tuesday that the US Navy was ready to escort oil tankers through the crucial shipping route. Benchmark US oil contract, West Texas Intermediate, soared more than 5 percent to $78.88 per barrel in trading on Thursday, the highest level since January last year, as the Iran war threatens supplies. International benchmark, Brent North Sea crude, jumped 3.6 percent to $84.34 per barrel. Other regions are already classified as “Warlike Operations Area” by the maritime sector, such as parts of the Sea of Azov, the northern Black Sea, the southern Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden. Based on negotiated arrangements reached on Thursday between mariners and commercial shipping companies, known as the International Bargaining Forum (IBF), seafarers have the right to refuse to sail on ships passing through the Gulf, including the Strait of Hormuz, after the threat level for the region was raised to its highest level. Around 300 ships are anchored on both sides of the Strait while the US-led war against Iran escalates. Since Feb. 28, nine ships have been damaged and at least one seafarer has been killed. “Today’s designation ensures that seafarers on vessels covered by IBF agreements have critical protections if they operate in this dangerous region,” ITF’s Cotton said. “The fact we have to take these measures at all is a damning indictment of the situation facing seafarers today. No worker should have to risk being killed or maimed simply for doing their job — particularly when that job is transporting the oil and goods that keep the world’s economies running.” The war has also prompted a growing number of Filipino migrant workers in the Middle East to seek repatriation. The Department of Migrant Workers (DMW) said 299 overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) from Dubai, United Arab Emirates, have returned home. A further 34 OFWs arrived at the Ninoy Aquino International Airport on an Emirates flight on Friday, the DMW said. Migrant Workers Secretary Hans Leo Cacdac led a government team in welcoming the Filipinos home. In a Facebook post, Cacdac thanked the airline and the United Arab Emirates government for helping bring the OFWs home. During a hearing of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations on Friday, officials from the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) said they were closely monitoring the situation of OFWs in the Middle East and preparing possible evacuation and repatriation efforts as the war in the region escalates. Sen. Erwin Tulfo, who heads the committee, noted that the closure of airspace in parts of the region has prevented many OFWs from immediately returning home. DFA Assistant Secretary Ezzedin Tago said the agency has instructed all foreign service posts in the region to keep communication channels open and respond immediately to requests for help. Embassies have also created communication channels through WhatsApp to monitor developments and maintain contact with Filipinos in their jurisdictions. Cacdac, who was also at the hearing, said the DMW is being updated on the situation on the ground by Filipino community leaders in eight countries across the region. He said the government will prioritize evacuation based primarily on the level of danger in the areas where Filipinos are located. “We have been carefully monitoring the areas attacked by Iranian drones and missiles in every country,” Cacdac told the committee.

“Filipinos in nearby areas will be among the first to be moved out for evacuation.” For example, OFWs living near critical facilities such as the Ras Tanura Refinery in eastern Saudi Arabia may be prioritized for evacuation, he said. Aside from security risks, medical and humanitarian considerations are also factored into the government’s decision on who will be repatriated first, Cacdac said. He cited a recent case of an eight-month pregnant Filipina worker who was repatriated to the Philippines on an Emirates flight. Tulfo expressed concerns about domestic workers who might be reluctant to leave their employers. Cacdac said Filipino workers may inform their employers if they need to proceed to the nearest Philippine Embassy or government shelter for safety. Embassies and DMW offices could also coordinate with employers to facilitate the transfer of workers to embassy custody — a process implemented during crises involving Filipino workers in Syria and Lebanon, he said.

- Marcos to appeal for peace in Middle East at UN meet (2026-03-06 16:12)

PRESIDENT Ferdinand Marcos Jr. will call for peace in the Middle East when he takes part in the special session of the United Nations General Assembly in New York, the Department of Foreign Affairs said Friday. Foreign Affairs spokesman Angelica Escalona said attending the General Assembly session is the highlight of Marcos’ visit to the United States on March 8 to 11. “This trip is very important amid what is currently happening in the Middle East,” Escalona said during a predeparture briefing in Malacañang. “The UN is the most appropriate venue for the President to call for peace in the Middle East and for the safety of all civilians, especially our countrymen.” “The President will offer a voice from our region, from developing countries and call for restraint, respect for international law including the UN charter and humanitarian law, and for all concerned to return to the negotiating table for peace,” Escalona said. Marcos will also seek support for the Philippines’ bid to become a nonpermanent member of the UN Security Council for 2027 to 2028, she said. A seat in the Security Council “gives the Philippines the power and voice in issues of global safety and security,” Escalona said. Marcos is scheduled to meet with UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres at the sidelines of his visit. Escalona said Marcos and Guterres would tackle the crisis in the Middle East and reaffirm the Philippines’ commitment to the UN and multilateralism. The president will also address the 70th Session of the Commission on the Status of Women, where he “will highlight the Philippines’ commitment to promote, advance, and protect the rights and well-being of women and girls,” she added. Asked if Marcos will also take up the territorial disputes in the South China Sea and other regional issues, Escalona said, “I cannot preempt what the President will say.” “But definitely, he will discuss international developments, regional developments and those matters that will affect our people,” she said. As president, Marcos has made five visits to the US. The last was in July last year, when he met with President Donald Trump. Escalona said Marcos would not meet with Trump and other state leaders during his visit this week. He will not be meeting with members of the Filipino community in New York, either. Joining Marcos during his US visit are first lady Liza Araneta-Marcos, Foreign Affairs Secretary Maria Theresa Lazaro, Migrant Workers Secretary Hans Leo Cacdac, Presidential Adviser on Peace, Reconciliation and Unity Secretary Carlito Galvez Jr., Acting Presidential Communications Secretary Dave Gomez and other government officials. Last Thursday, Lazaro warned that the world is entering a period of “upheaval, uncertainty and unpredictability,” and urged stronger regional cooperation as the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean) navigates an increasingly complex global environment. Speaking at the Asia Society Policy Institute in Manila, Lazaro said recent global crises — from the Covid pandemic and the military coup in Myanmar to Russia’s invasion of Ukraine — have reshaped the international landscape. “We are living in a decade defined by what I describe as the ‘three U’ s’ : upheaval, uncertainty and unpredictability,” Lazaro said. As the Philippines chairs Asean in 2026, Lazaro said the bloc aims to serve as an “anchor for peace, prosperity and stability” through stronger regional integration and adherence to international law. Under the chairmanship theme “Navigating Our Future, Together,” the Philippines will advance three priorities: Peace and Security, Prosperity and People Empowerment. The priorities call for strengthening dialogue and maritime cooperation, deepening economic integration and digital transformation, and promoting inclusive growth and social protection across Southeast Asia. The agenda aligns with the Asean Community Vision 2045, which aims to build a resilient, people-centered Asean and to position the region as the fourth-largest economy globally by 2045. Lazaro also underscored the bloc’s commitment to the rules-based international order as the region marks the 50th anniversary of the Treaty of Amity and Cooperation in Southeast Asia this year. With a combined economy of more than $4 trillion and a population of more than 684 million, Asean will continue to strengthen regional mechanisms and dialogue to ensure stability in a rapidly changing world, Lazaro said.

- Security officials warn vs espionage, force in WPS (2026-03-06 16:11)

THE Philippine Coast Guard (PCG) admitted Friday that poor handling of classified documents by personnel led to a leak of sensitive operational information related to Philippine activities in the West Philippine Sea (WPS), as national security officials warned of espionage attempts and urged government workers to report recruitment efforts by foreign entities. Speaking on the sidelines of the “Safeguarding the Maritime Domain for the Free and Open Indo-Pacific” symposium organized by the Stratbase ADR Institute in Makati City, PCG spokesman for the WPS RAdm. Jay Tarriela said initial findings pointed to lapses in handling sensitive materials. “Based on my conversation with the personality involved, it was very poor handling of information and documents,” Tarriela said. The leak involved a person close to Coast Guard personnel, although the individual was not an official member of the service, he said. The information reportedly included details about operational plans and supply missions in the WPS. Tarriela said early indications suggested that the leaked material may have enabled the Chinese government to anticipate Philippine operations. He added that authorities had uncovered instances in which some Filipinos admitted being paid by Chinese contacts in exchange for sensitive information about Philippine operations in the disputed waters. “The mere fact that these apprehended informants admitted and cooperated, saying they were being paid to provide sensitive information at the cost of our operations in the West Philippine Sea, is deeply concerning,” Tarriela said. To prevent similar incidents, he said the Coast Guard was strengthening protocols for handling classified information and tightening internal safeguards related to operational data. The PCG was also coordinating closely with other government security agencies, including the Armed Forces of the Philippines and the Philippine National Police, Tarriela said. At the same forum, National Security Adviser and National Security Council (NSC) Director General Eduardo Año said the government was treating the matter as a national security issue. “We assure the public that everything is in check, and we will ensure the failure of any espionage effort in our country,” Año said. He warned that foreign intelligence operations often involve attempts to recruit individuals within government agencies, sometimes beginning with seemingly legitimate job offers or professional engagements. “Look closely at the job offers being made. That’s where it starts, and eventually you may find yourself in a situation where you are already being used as a spy and becoming a traitor to the country,” Año said. The NSC earlier confirmed it had uncovered a serious national security issue involving suspected espionage activities allegedly linked to China, with at least three Filipinos implicated. Año declined to discuss specific cases, citing ongoing investigations. He said that while some internal documents, schedules and reports were exposed, no top-secret material was compromised. “There was sensitive information, but nothing at the highest level,” Año said. Some of the suspected espionage activities dated back several years, predating a provisional agreement reached between Manila and Beijing in 2024, he said. The issue of espionage was raised during a broader discussion at the forum about the mounting maritime tensions in the WPS and the need for stronger cooperation among countries that support a rules-based international order. Stratbase Institute President Victor Andres Manhit said the persistent pattern of coercive actions by Chinese state and state-linked vessels in the disputed waters was part of a broader strategy to gradually alter the situation on the ground — or in this case, at sea — without triggering open conflict. Citing data from the PCG, Manhit said authorities documented 64 incidents of illegal, coercive, aggressive and deceptive actions against Philippine missions or vessels in 2025 alone. Among them are dangerous maneuvers, shadowing of Philippine vessels, water cannon attacks, collisions, radio challenges and even live-fire exercises conducted near Philippine positions. “These are only the incidents that were reported and made public,” Manhit said. “Far from the cameras and the headlines, many more acts of intimidation occur at sea — often involving Filipino fishermen and frontline personnel who continue to operate under constant pressure and uncertainty.” Manhit said the growing frequency and intensity of such incidents reflected a deliberate attempt to normalize coercive behavior in the WPS. “Such behavior, as we have stressed time and again, should not and cannot be normalized or tolerated,” he said. He stressed that the Philippines and its partners must respond with “firm, coordinated and decisive measures” to counter such tactics. Manhit emphasized that the issue went beyond a bilateral dispute between Manila and Beijing, describing it as a broader regional and global concern because of the strategic importance of the Indo-Pacific region, as a vital corridor for global trade, with nearly two-thirds of the world’s commerce passing through its sea lanes. “Safeguarding the maritime domain is not simply about defending territory,” Manhit said. “It is about defending the principles that allow nations — large and small — to coexist peacefully: respect for international law, freedom of navigation and the peaceful management of disputes.” He said the Philippines must continue strengthening cooperation with like-minded nations such as the United States, Japan, Australia, Canada, New Zealand, France and India to promote transparency, uphold international law and deter coercive actions at sea. The symposium, co-hosted by the Stratbase ADR Institute and the Japan Institute of International Affairs, brought together policymakers, security officials, diplomats, scholars and maritime experts from across the Indo-Pacific region. Participants discussed ways to enhance regional cooperation in maritime security, strengthen adherence to international law, and reinforce the principles underpinning the Free and Open Indo-Pacific framework.

- Govt agencies to adopt energy-saving measures (2026-03-06 16:10)

THE Department of Energy (DOE) has issued an advisory directing all government agencies to strictly conserve energy. The DOE said Friday the advisory forms part of the government's proactive measures to ease the impact of the conflict in the Middle East and to help ensure sufficient and reliable electricity supply during the dry season, when power demand typically rises. Among the energy-saving measures are the activation of sleep settings on office equipment, setting air-conditioning thermostats at no lower than 24 degrees Celsius, turning off lights and computers during lunch breaks and after office hours when not in use, and shifting to more energy-efficient technologies such as LED lighting and inverter-type air-conditioning systems. The advisory also encourages the adoption of flexible work arrangements, where practical and applicable, and the use of on-site renewable energy systems such as solar power, where feasible. "The government must lead by example in using energy wisely and responsibly, especially during periods of heightened demand and global uncertainty. Through the strict implementation of the Government Energy Management Program, we are reinforcing a culture of conservation in public institutions while helping safeguard the country's energy security," Energy Secretary Sharon Garin said in a statement. The department announced a day earlier that it has intensified the monitoring of the downstream oil industry following reports of possible hoarding and profiteering in the sale of petroleum products. It said it coordinated with the Department of the Interior and Local Government (DILG), and the Philippine National Police (PNP) to ensure swift action against any violators, as its field offices have submitted initial reports and supporting evidence indicating potential irregularities in fuel supply and retail practices such as overcharging. "Recently, our field office in Cebu had stated that there have been some stations and retailers that have been charging too much for their fuels. Not only is it illegal, but it is inhumane and anti-Filipino. We have asked the DILG, the PNP and the mayors that we all work together to make sure that this does not happen, because again, you cannot take advantage of the sufferings of the Filipino people," Garin said. The DOE is asking consumers and the public to promptly report any suspected incidents of hoarding, refusal to sell, price manipulation or profiteering to the DOE through its Oil Industry Management Bureau, Consumer Welfare and Promotion Office, and Field Offices. Consumers may file complaints through the government hotline 8888, the DOE Consumer Welfare and Promotion Office telephone number 8840-2267, the Department of Energy Official Facebook Messenger, or via email at cwpo@doe.gov.ph.

- PH donates \$15,000 vs chemical weapons (2026-03-06 16:09)

IN a reaffirmation of its commitment to global chemical weapons disarmament, the Philippines made a voluntary contribution of $15,000 to the Syria Missions Trust Fund of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW). The contribution was formalized on March 3 with a signing ceremony at the OPCW headquarters in The Hague between Philippine Permanent Representative to the OPCW J. Eduardo Malaya and OPCW Director General Fernando Arias. The funds will support the work of the OPCW Technical Secretariat in Syria, particularly in determining the scope of the country's chemical weapons program. The secretariat's activities form part of broader international efforts to verify compliance with the Chemical Weapons Convention, the global treaty banning the development, production, stockpiling and use of chemical weapons. In remarks during the ceremony, Malaya said the Philippines' contribution underscores the country's commitment to disarmament and nonproliferation. Malaya cited the importance of strengthening international cooperation to address challenges related to chemical security and disarmament, particularly in Syria. Arias expressed appreciation to the Philippine government for its continued support of the organization's work. He emphasized that contributions from member states are critical in sustaining efforts to eliminate chemical weapons and verify the complete declaration of Syria's chemical weapons program. Arias described the secretariat's mission in Syria as "extensive and difficult, but progressing well," aided by financial and in-kind assistance from OPCW member states. The latest contribution marks the third voluntary donation from the Philippines to support OPCW initiatives in recent years. In 2021, Manila provided funding for the establishment of the OPCW Center for Chemistry and Technology, a facility designed to strengthen the organization's scientific and technical capabilities. In 2025, the Philippines contributed to support the work of the OPCW Scientific Advisory Board. The Philippine Embassy in The Hague has also played an active role within the organization. From 2019 through February 2026, the embassy served as Coordinator of the Asia Group, representing regional member states in consultations with the OPCW. The Chemical Weapons Convention entered into force in 1997 and currently has 193 member states, making it one of the most widely adhered-to disarmament treaties. The Philippines is among its original signatories, having signed the convention in 1993. Based in The Hague, the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons is responsible for implementing the treaty and overseeing international verification efforts aimed at eliminating chemical weapons worldwide.

- Marcos unveils 'trabaho at negosyo' to empower filipino entrepreneurs (2026-03-06 16:08)

PRESIDENT Ferdinand Marcos Jr. on Friday launched the first "Trabaho at Negosyo" event, which aims to empower micro, small and medium-sized enterprises (MSMEs). "Today, we live in a very uncertain world. What many of us have studied and developed a decade — or even just a couple of years ago — are sometimes no longer relevant," Marcos said in a speech during the event's launch at SM Mall of Asia in Pasay City. "Traditional jobs are transforming. The skills that were once optional, now they are essential," he added. The president said many Filipinos continue to struggle to find jobs that match their skills and educational backgrounds. He noted that industries are rapidly evolving because of advances in digital technology and artificial intelligence. “I believe Filipinos can keep up. We know that despite the challenges, our people are resourceful and resilient,” he said. Marcos emphasized the crucial role of the private sector in addressing employment gaps, particularly through partnerships that promote entrepreneurship and skills development. He lauded Go Negosyo founder Jose Ma. “Joey” Concepcion III for championing MSME development in the country. The president promised that the government would continue strengthening skills training, employment programs and support services to help Filipinos secure jobs and grow their businesses. “We equip our people not only to survive, but to succeed in this changing world,” Marcos said. “Through the advocacy of Go Negosyo, we promote a positive mindset towards business — not as a last resort, but as a strong complement to our collective role in nation-building.” Marcos said more than 74,000 jobseekers secured employment when the government conducted more than 2,300 job fairs nationwide in 2025. He added that in January 2026 alone, around 47 job fairs were organized, with more than 2,400 applicants hired on the spot. The president also said government services for entrepreneurs are being streamlined through Negosyo Centers, which provide mentorship, advisory services and assistance in expanding market access. He encouraged participants to take advantage of the learning sessions and opportunities offered through the Trabaho at Negosyo program to strengthen their skills and businesses. “Because when we build skills, we build confidence. When we create jobs, we restore the dignity of our people. And when we strengthen our economic foundations, we build a stronger nation for tomorrow,” Marcos said. The Trabaho at Negosyo program, organized by Go Negosyo, brings together key public-private stakeholders to expand job opportunities, support upskilling and reskilling for MSMEs, and create a platform where jobseekers can connect directly with businesses. Government agencies such as the Department of Trade and Industry, Technical Education and Skills Development Authority, and Bureau of Internal Revenue are providing one-stop services and pre-employment assistance. Concepcion said the initiative was designed to make employment and small-business development more accessible to the public. “Trabaho at Negosyo will bring job-placement services, skills workshops and entrepreneurship mentoring directly to the people,” he said. He said the program was built on two pillars: job creation and MSME development. “To create inclusive and sustainable growth, we must expand both pathways simultaneously,” he added. MSMEs generate the majority of jobs in the Philippines, accounting for about 6.25 million jobs, or 66.57 percent of total employment, according to Go Negosyo. Micro-enterprises contribute the largest share at 34.24 percent, followed by small enterprises at 25.66 percent and medium enterprises at 6.67 percent. Large enterprises account for 33.42 percent of employment, it added.

- Suntay faces safe spaces act complaint following house hearing comments (2026-03-06 16:07)

A WOMEN’ s group has filed administrative and criminal complaints against Quezon City 4th District Rep. Jesus “Bong” Suntay after he made sexist remarks to actress Anne Curtis during impeachment hearings at the House of Representatives earlier this week. In their complaint-affidavit, members of World March of Women (WMW)-Pilipinas accused Suntay of violations of Republic Act 11313, or the Safe Spaces Act; Republic Act 9710, or the Magna Carta of Women; and RA 6713, or the Code of Conduct and Ethical Standards for Public Officials. The charges stem from Suntay saying he had a “desire” for Curtis and subsequently justifying his comments. The group is also accusing him of violations of the Supreme Court’s Code of Professional Responsibility and Accountability for lawyers. The complainants were Jean Enriquez, Joanna Bernice Coronacion, Nerissa Gonzales, Liza Garcia, Ana Maria Nemenzo, Jelen Paclarin, Amparo Sykioco, Myrna Jimenez, and Judith Pasimio, all members of WMW-Pilipinas. In a statement, Enriquez, national coordinator of WMW-Pilipinas, said they held their “most important action” on International Women’s Day in the face of “noise of male perpetrators of sexual violence to cover up their sexual crimes.” Paclarin, executive director of the Women’s Legal and Human Rights Bureau, said sexism has “no place in our society” and that the lewd remarks made by Suntay should not be tolerated. “Public office demands the highest standards of accountability, and any conduct that demeans women must be addressed under Philippine law; therefore, Bong Suntay must be held accountable before the Philippine court,” Paclarin said. Pasimio, coordinator of Purple Action for Indigenous Women’s Rights, further stressed that sexism and sexual violence have permeated the halls of Congress and rural and Indigenous communities. “It is this objectification of women that brings about sexual violence against Indigenous women and girls at home, and in areas where so-called development projects, such as mining, are implemented. We have to stand up against sexual violence against all women, in all of its forms,” Pasimio said. Suntay has yet to comment on the case filed against him, but he said in a television interview that his analogy was in “poor taste” and apologized to Curtis and every woman offended by the remarks. The lawmaker is also facing an ethics complaint at the House of Representatives, which was referred by House Committee on Women Chairman and Laguna Rep. Ann Matibag.

- Philippine Space Agency Eyes Local Rocket Launch Site via New Partnership (2026-03-06 16:06)

THE Philippine Space Agency (PhilSA) announced it has signed a feasibility study memorandum of understanding to build the country’s first spaceport. In a statement released Friday, PhilSA said the initiative is a collaboration with the Department of Information and Communications Technology, Cagayan Economic Zone Authority, Ascend International Gateway Inc., and South Korea’s Perigee Aerospace Inc. The agency said the project will help reduce costs, improve launch efficiency, and create opportunities for research and commercial space activities. PhilSA noted that the partnership builds on a rocket technology training program conducted in South Korea from October to November 2025. During that program, Filipino engineers received lectures and hands-on training in rocket assembly, testing, and launch vehicle systems with Perigee Aerospace. The agency said the training laid the groundwork for possible localized rocket assembly, testing, and launch operations in the Philippines. During a forum, President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. said the agreements signed between Philippine and South Korean companies across several industries — including aerospace, shipbuilding, nuclear energy, critical minerals supply chains, retail, and health and wellness — highlight the strengthening economic partnership between the two countries. “All of these will ripple into significant partnerships that will generate projects, investments, and of course, livelihood,” Marcos said. The initiative is part of broader efforts to strengthen the country’s capabilities in space research, engineering, and rocket and satellite development through international cooperation and private sector participation.

- Panelo Denies Madriaga's P1 Billion Bribery Claim in Duterte Case (2026-03-06 16:05)

PAOLO Panelo Jr., legal counsel for Vice President Sara Duterte, denied claims by self-confessed security consultant Ramil Madriaga of death threats and an offer of up to P1 billion to stop him from testifying in impeachment proceedings against the vice president. In an interview, Madriaga’s counsel, Raymund Palad, claimed his client was being threatened by a fellow inmate at the Bureau of Jail Management and Penology compound in Taguig. He also said two government officials offered Madriaga between P500 million and P1 billion to recant his testimony. Duterte filed perjury charges against Madriaga in Taguig on Wednesday. In a statement, Panelo said Duterte has nothing to do with any threats against Madriaga. “[W]e join any calls to provide him with additional protection. We want him alive and in the pink of health because he’s the only one who can admit that he made up his testimony against the vice president and identify his handlers,” Panelo said. Panelo told The Manila Times that Madriaga is the only one who can admit that the allegations against Duterte are false. “He is the only one who can tell who his handlers are, and if he will stand by his testimony, he can add further to his allegations against VP Sara,” Panelo said. Panelo described Madriaga’s affidavit as “overly broad” and unverifiable because it lacks specifics such as dates, exact locations, and the names of other involved individuals. In his affidavit, Madriaga claimed to be a Duterte supporter who received campaign funds from Philippine offshore gaming operators and drug money, as well as confidential funds from two former Vice Presidential Security and Protection Group leaders. “We want him to answer our complaint, give more details so we can destroy his testimony. So if there are calls to protect Ramil Madriaga, we agree to that,” Panelo said. He added that Madriaga’s “worthless” testimony would be used in an impeachment trial that could “deprive the electorate of the public official that they voted for.” “If this was not used in the impeachment trial, then VP Sara could have not filed this, but because this is used to deceive the public and subvert the will of the people, then he should be made liable,” Panelo said. Panelo described claims of paying off Madriaga as “ridiculous,” stressing that Duterte’s camp wants Madriaga to testify so his “lies can be dismantled on cross-examination for the world to see.” “There’s no sense for us to stop him from revealing himself as a fraud,” Panelo said.

- Group raises AU\$ 23K for Filipino student who died in Australia (2026-03-06 16:04)

FUND-RAISING platform GoFundMe has raised nearly 23,000 Australian dollars (AU$), roughly P956,263, for the repatriation of the remains of a Filipino student who drowned on the Gold Coast beach in Australia. According to Australian media network 7 News, Filipino student Karlo Bul-Anon, 20, from Consolacion, Cebu, was reported missing after “vanishing in the water.”

His remains were found on Wednesday, March 4, in the afternoon. “Karlo was a student in Australia and was reported missing on 7 News, then found dead the following day. This heartbreaking loss has left the family grieving and facing unexpected financial burdens,” wrote a family friend Alfreda Camasura, in a GoFundMe post. “At an age when most young men are still trying to find their way, he already knew his purpose. He carried his family’s hopes in his heart when he boarded a plane to Australia. He left the comfort of home, his parents’ embrace, and his brother’s laughter,” she added. “What was meant to be a simple swim turned into a tragedy. He drowned, and just like that, the young man full of dreams and love was taken too soon. No goodbye. No last embrace. Only silence. Now his family waits — not for his next call or message — but for his body to come home. The pain is unbearable. A mother’s tears fall endlessly. A father’s heart breaks in quiet suffering. A brother mourns not just a sibling, but his best friend and hero. He is loved by relatives, friends, and everyone who knew him grieve deeply, remembering his kindness, humility, and determination,” Camasura said. As of Friday afternoon, the GoFundMe had raised a total of AU$22,997, with a set goal of AU$40,000. “The financial cost of repatriating his remains from Australia is overwhelming, and in this time of unimaginable grief, they cannot carry this burden alone,” the GoFundMe page read. “To anyone willing to extend financial assistance, any amount — big or small — will be deeply appreciated. Your generosity will help bring their beloved son home so he can finally rest in the arms of the land and the people who love him most,” it added.

- 5th alarm fire hits homes along NIA Road in QC (2026-03-06 16:04)

MANILA, Philippines — A fire struck a residential area along NIA Road in Pinyahan village, Quezon City on Friday evening, March 6, prompting a large response from firefighters. The Bureau of Fire Protection (BFP) said the blaze was first raised to the 1st alarm at 9:01 p.m. and quickly escalated to the 2nd alarm at 9:03 p.m. Authorities said the fire was declared 3rd alarm at 9:12 p.m. and further raised to the 4th alarm at 9:22 p.m. The incident later reached the 5th alarm at 9:44 p.m. as firefighters continued efforts to contain the blaze in the residential area. As of 11:18 p.m., the fire had been elevated to Task Force Bravo, according to the BFP National Capital Region. Authorities said NIA Road and BIR Road were not passable to all types of vehicles as fire trucks continued to occupy the area while crews worked to extinguish the blaze. Authorities have yet to release the number of houses affected, possible casualties, or the cause of the fire as of posting time.

- Stradcom mulls legal action vs accusers (2026-03-06 16:03)

STRADCOM Corp. on Friday pushed back against graft allegations linked to the P169-per computer fee collected in transactions with the Land Transportation Office (LTO), warning it is prepared to pursue legal action over what it called baseless accusations. The information technology service provider said that transport group Federated Land Transport Organizations of the Philippines (Feltop) filed a complaint with the Office of the Ombudsman, questioning the legality of the fee and alleging possible preferential treatment for Stradcom. “The company will take the necessary legal steps to address what appears to be unfounded graft allegations against our company,” Stradcom said. The firm also emphasized that its operations with the LTO are based on a government concession agreement. “For the record and as a gentle reminder to the public, Stradcom Corporation operates and delivers service to the Land Transportation Office pursuant to a valid, legal, binding, and enforceable concession agreement with the government,” it said. “We remain compliant with the terms and conditions of our concession agreement, and faithful in helping the LTO’s service to the motoring public,” the company added. The complaint, filed on March 5, questioned the collection of the P169-computer fee per transaction, alleging it generated more than P169 million and may have been implemented with preferential treatment for Stradcom, which provides the IT infrastructure used for vehicle registration and other digital services of the LTO. Feltop, which represents more than 60,000 small and independent public utility vehicle operators nationwide, argued that the fee has added to the operational costs of transport operators already grappling with rising expenses. Also named in the complaint is Vigor Mendoza II, now chairman of the Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board, for actions allegedly committed during his tenure as LTO chief. Mendoza dismissed the graft complaint against him, describing it as an act of “desperation to get even.” Feltop is seeking a 90-day preventive suspension of Mendoza while the Ombudsman investigates the allegations. It is also asking for a refund of computer fees collected starting Jan. 28, 2025.

- Manila fire displaces more than 200 families (2026-03-06 16:02)

A FIRE of still unknown origin displaced more than 200 families in a residential area in Tondo, Manila, before dawn Friday. According to the City of Manila Disaster Risk Reduction Management Department, the fire was first reported at about 1:09 a.m. Firefighters raised the first alarm at 1:18 a.m., the second at 1:24 a.m., the third at 1:31 a.m., and the fourth alarm at 2:00 a.m. Firefighters said they declared the fire under control at 4:30 a.m. Manila Police District spokesman Philipp Ines told The Manila Times they have yet to determine the cause of the fire and the extent of its damage, adding that no casualties were reported. Meanwhile, the Manila Department of Social Welfare said it continues to provide aid to the families affected by the fire. Also, the Manila Traffic and Parking Bureau (MTPB) has issued a traffic advisory, warning motorists that heavy traffic is expected near the fire scene as they help with the clearing operation. In a Facebook post, the MTPB said emergency responders were at the fire scene and warned of traffic delays on Road 10, encouraging motorists to avoid the area and use alternate routes. “We encourage everyone to stay alert and plan your travel accordingly,” the MTPB said.

- Taguig holds Women’s Bazaar (2026-03-06 16:01)

THE Taguig City government launched a weekly “Women’s Bazaar,” featuring products from local women entrepreneurs as part of its celebration of the National Women’s Month. The activity is held at the Sangguniang Panlungsod parking lot at Taguig City Hall in Tuktukan village. “Starting this March 6 and the following Fridays of this month, March 13, 20, and 27, we will be joined by 14 Taguigeña merchants who will offer various products,” Mayor Lani Cayetano said Friday. The bazaar runs every Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., showcasing goods produced by women entrepreneurs in the city. “They are 14 women merchants assisted by our Taguig Manpower and Assessment Center, and some of them are self-made, who built their small businesses,” Cayetano said. Cayetano added that the initiative recognizes the skills and capabilities of women in entrepreneurship while providing them a platform for economic empowerment and promoting financial independence. The program is led by the city’s Gender and Development Office as part of the local government’s observance of Women’s Month. Mayor Cayetano also encouraged residents to visit the bazaar and support the booths of the participating women entrepreneurs.

- Massive fuel price hike looms next week (2026-03-06 16:00)

THE price of fuel could climb sharply next week if the conflict in the Middle East continues to worsen, a source in the local oil industry said Friday. Diesel could surge to P20 per liter and gasoline to P10 per liter because of massive disruptions in the global oil supply as the United States and Israel unleash a fresh wave of aerial attacks on Iran, the source said. He based the estimates on the four-day trading of Mean of Platts, the pricing basis of refined goods in Southeast Asia. Pump prices went up for the eighth straight week, even before the attacks on Iran were launched a week ago. “Oil prices jumped as markets were affected by crude shortages due to the conflict in the Middle East,” the source said. “Asian refiners are struggling to secure prompt replacement crude cargos, with some Chinese refiners already cutting runs and suspending fuel exports, resulting to a reduced available supply in the region.” Another factor pushing up oil prices is the closure of shipping channels in the Gulf by Iran. Because oil tankers are unable to make shipments, “storage tanks across the Middle East are rapidly filling up, forcing producers to cut output if they can’t resume exports soon,” the source added. The Department of Energy (DOE) has asked oil companies to stagger the increases for next week, but no agreement has been reached. The DOE is also studying ordering the Philippine National Oil Co. to procure at least a million barrels of diesel to secure domestic supply. During a hearing of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations on Friday, DOE Oil Industry Management Bureau Director Rino Abad said diesel could hit P80 per liter if the increase is not staggered. Abad refrained from giving an exact projection, but warned that the impact of the crisis in the Middle East could be more severe than the price shocks experienced during the Russia–Ukraine War. In the House of Representatives, Ways and Means Committee Chairman Rep. Romero Quimbo said a major crisis could be averted once President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. is given emergency powers to suspend or reduce the excise taxes on fuel. Quimbo said House Bill 8257, which he filed on Monday, would amend Sections 148 of the National Internal Revenue Code which would establish a “lawful and conditional mechanism for temporarily suspending fuel excise taxes when extraordinary circumstances arise.” In a phone interview with The Manila Times, Quimbo said his bill would give the president the discretion to “either remove or partly remove on select or all petroleum products” if the Dubai Crude price hits $80 per barrel or higher for three consecutive months, or through a declaration of a state of emergency or calamity arising from petroleum product increases. These provisions, Quimbo said, will act as safeguards against any possible abuse in the granting of such emergency powers to the president. Quimbo said the revenue loss if the president decides to suspend the fuel excise tax could reach P10 billion a month, based on last year's collection of P128 billion. But if the government does not intervene, the economy could continue to contract as the prices of commodities rise. "Petroleum is a basic component of any product that you see in the market, whether in the course of its production, in the course of its farming, or if it's even important, in the course of its logistics, lahat 'yan nagbabayad ng gasolina (everyone pays for gasoline). So if you don't intervene in terms of the price of petroleum, then the price of commodities will escalate even further, driving up inflation," Quimbo said. In a separate statement, Batangas Rep. Ryan Recto said the passage of the bill granting the president powers to reduce or suspend the fuel excise tax will provide the government with a "flexible mechanism in shielding Filipino consumers from the inflationary impact of volatile global oil prices." "The current statutory excise tax regime imposes a fixed per-liter tax that provides a stable revenue stream but lacks the flexibility to mitigate the sudden and severe inflationary impact of global price volatility," Recto said. Albay Rep. Raymond Salceda said the government is now collecting "significant unplanned VAT revenues from the price increases" which could be redirected to affected sectors rather than absorbed into the General Fund. "Most likely we will raise an additional P2 to P2.3 billion in VAT every single month as a result of the price increases. That can help if given to the affected sectors, mainly transport, farmers, fisherfolk," Salceda said.

- Marcos orders temporary 4-day workweek in some executive offices (2026-03-06 13:21)

MANILA, Philippines- President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. on Friday ordered the temporary implementation of a four-day workweek in some executive branch offices starting March 9, as part of the government's efforts to conserve energy and reduce fuel use amid rising global oil prices triggered by the ongoing crisis in the Middle East. "For the part of the government: Beginning Monday, March 9, we will temporarily implement a four-day work week for some offices under the executive branch," the President said in a video message. "This does not include those providing emergency services such as the police, firemen, and other offices offering frontline services to the public," he added. Shortly following the President's announcement, Malacañang released Memorandum Circular (MC) 114, which provides additional details on the implementation of the directive. The order will cover all national government agencies, government-owned or -controlled corporations, local government units, constitutional bodies, state universities and colleges, and other government instrumentalities. "There is an urgent need to adopt strict energy conservation measures, to further reduce the energy footprint of government operations and optimize the use of public resources," the President said in his order. The four-day onsite work arrangements will remain in effect until lifted or sooner revoked by the president, according to MC 114. "This arrangement shall serve as an interim measure, to be continued only until circumstances warrant its modification or discontinuance," it added. In addition to the shortened workweek, Marcos directed government agencies to cut their electricity and fuel consumption by 10 to 20 percent. Under the memorandum, government offices are instructed to maintain air-conditioning at 24 degrees Celsius, adding that non-essential lights and electronic equipment must be turned off during lunch breaks and after office hours. Office equipment should also be set to sleep mode when not in use. Marcos also ordered a temporary suspension of non-essential travel and activities, including study tours, team-building activities, and meetings that can instead be conducted online.

MANILA, Philippines — The legal counsel of Vice President Sara Duterte denied claims by the lawyer of self-confessed security consultant Ramil Madriaga that there were threats to his life and that he was offered up to P1 billion just to stop him from testifying. In an interview, Madriaga's counsel, Raymund Palad, claimed that his client was being threatened by a fellow inmate at the Bureau of Jail Management and Penology compound in Taguig. He also said that Madriaga was being offered from P500 million to P1 billion by two government officials just to recant his testimony. In a statement, Duterte's lawyer, Salvador Paolo Panelo Jr. said that Duterte has nothing to do with any death threats to Madriaga. "[W]e join any calls to provide him with additional protection. We want him alive and in the pink of health because he's the only one who can admit that he made up his testimony against the Vice President, and identify his handlers," Panelo said. He also said that the alleged payoff against Madriaga was a "ridiculous claim," stressing that Duterte's camp wants Madriaga to testify so his "lies can be dismantled on cross-examination for the world to see." "There's no sense for us to stop him from revealing himself as a fraud," Panelo said. Duterte filed perjury charges against Madriaga in Taguig City on Wednesday.

- Security chief wants reports on insider threats, assures measures to protect sensitive data (2026-03-06 05:55)

MANILA Philippines — National Security Adviser and National Security Council (NSC) Director General Eduardo Año on Friday urged government personnel to immediately report any attempts at espionage or unauthorized recruitment, stressing the critical need to safeguard national security. Speaking on the sidelines of the "Safeguarding the Maritime Domain for the Free and Open Indo-Pacific" forum organized by the Stratbase Institute, Año warned that individuals who knowingly share sensitive information with foreign entities risk being labeled traitors. "For those who are being approached or recruited, report immediately to your respective superiors so we can assist and ensure that our security forces are ready to prevent any such plans," he said. The NSC previously confirmed it had uncovered a serious national security issue involving suspected espionage activities allegedly linked to China, with at least three Filipinos implicated. Año, however, declined to comment on specific cases, citing ongoing investigations. "I don't want to comment on this specific matter... Just rest assured that security has been taken," he said. On the nature of the information involved, Año clarified that while some internal documents, schedules, and reports were exposed, no top-secret material was compromised. "There was sensitive information, but nothing at the highest level. No damage to national security has been reported,” he said. Año added that the alleged espionage activities began years before a provisional agreement between Manila and Beijing in 2024.

“The other cases that we discovered date back a few years,” he said, noting that authorities are continuing to pursue additional leads. He urged government personnel to remain vigilant and assured that processes for handling sensitive information would continue to be reinforced. “From the start of this administration, we have had an insider threat program. This is a collective effort, especially within our intelligence community,” said Año.

- PCG admits poor handling of classified documents led to West Philippine Sea data leak \(2026-03-06 03:53\)

MANILA, Philippines — The Philippine Coast Guard (PCG) is tightening security measures after a leak of sensitive operational information in the West Philippine Sea was traced to poor handling of classified documents, Admiral Jay Tarriela said Friday. Speaking on the sidelines of the Safeguarding the Maritime Domain for the Free and Open Indo-Pacific forum organized by the Stratbase Institute, Tarriela, PCG spokesman for the West Philippine Sea, confirmed that the leak involved a person close to PCG personnel, though not an official member of the Coast Guard. “Based on my conversation with the personality involved, it was very poor handling of information and documents,” he said, pointing to internal lapses as a contributing factor to the breach. Tarriela said the leaked details reportedly included operational plans and supply operations in the West Philippine Sea. He said early indications suggest the information allowed the Chinese government to anticipate Philippine operations, efforts to possibly undermine national security. To prevent similar incidents, Tarriela said the Coast Guard was implementing stricter safeguards for handling sensitive information. He did not disclose the rank, location, or assignment of the personnel involved, citing an ongoing investigation. “The main adjustment we are doing right now is to have a more secure way of handling information with regard to our operations in the West Philippines,” Tarriela said. He also said the Coast Guard was coordinating with intelligence agencies across the Philippine government, including the Armed Forces and Philippine National Police, to prevent future leaks and reinforce national security. “The investigation is ongoing, and the individuals involved are cooperating with the National Security Council and other authorities for the necessary measures,” Tarriela said.

- DILG urges cooperation in apprehending fraternity suspects in hazing death of maritime student (2026-03-06 03:42)

(UPDATE) MANILA, Philippines — Interior and Local Government Secretary Jonvic Remulla on Friday urged full cooperation in identifying and turning over those responsible for the hazing death of a first-year maritime student in Cavite. Secretary Remulla confirmed that 17 members of the Tau Gamma Phi fraternity were now considered suspects, with authorities expecting to take them into custody soon. “This is unacceptable,” Remulla said in a media briefing. “We expect Tau Gamma Phi, a 1-million-strong organization, to cooperate fully in locating and turning over their members. This will not go unpunished. We will pursue all of them.” He also urged the fraternity’s senior leadership to take proactive measures to end the culture of violence in initiation rites. “The manifesto against violence by the senior leadership does not protect them from tragedies. Real accountability is required,” he added. The case of Mark Kenneth Alcedo, 19, marks the second hazing-related death in Remulla’s province involving the same fraternity in four years. “Someone has to take responsibility for what happened. We cannot blame or quarrel forever. The fraternity has promised to cooperate fully and to reform the culture of violence in their initiations,” Remulla said. Surrender The Tau Gamma Phi fraternity urged its members allegedly involved in the fatal hazing to surrender and assured the government of its full cooperation in bringing the perpetrators to justice. The 57-year-old fraternity has expressed condemnation of the hazing rites and other neophytes last March 1 and offered its sympathies and condolences to the family of the victim who died of blunt force trauma due to severe beating. “Sec[retary]. [Jonvic] Remulla asked us for our commitment. We gave them the commitment that we will assist them in all angles of the investigation. They already have the names, [what we will do is find out] where they’re at. We will ask our members, those who have committed the crime to surrender,” Tau Gamma spokesman Martin Asturias told reporters in a briefing in Manila urging implicated members to go to the nearest police station and turn themselves in. Remulla met with Tau Gamma Phi and asked its senior leadership to pursue measures ending the culture of violent initiations for neophytes seeking membership into the fraternity. Following the surrender of one of the suspects, authorities have 21 names now considered suspects in violation of Republic Act 11053 or the Anti-Hazing Act of 2018. “This will not go unpunished,” Remulla said.

- LTO information technology service provider threatens legal action over ‘unfounded’ graft raps (2026-03-06 02:44)

MANILA, Philippines — An information technology service provider pushed back against graft allegations linked to its transaction with the Land Transportation Office (LTO) and said that it would take the "necessary legal steps" to debunk the "unfounded" accusations. Stradcom Corporation on Friday issued the statement after transport group, Federated Land Transport Organizations of the Philippines (FELTOP), filed a complaint before the Office of the Ombudsman questioning the legality of the P169 computer fee in its transactions with the LTO and alleging possible "preferential treatment for Stradcom." "The company will take the necessary legal steps to address what appear to be unfounded graft allegations against our company," Stradcom said in its statement to The Manila Times. It stressed that its operations with the LTO were backed by a standing government concession agreement. "For the record and as a gentle reminder to the public, Stradcom Corporation operates and delivers service to the Land Transportation Office pursuant to a valid, legal, binding, and enforceable concession agreement with the government," it said. "We remain compliant with the terms and conditions of our concession agreement, and faithful in helping the LTO's service to the motoring public," the company added. The complaint, filed on March 5, questioned the collection of the P169 computer fee per transaction, alleging it generated more than P169 million and may have been implemented with preferential treatment for Stradcom, which provides the IT infrastructure used for vehicle registration and other digital services of the LTO. FELTOP, which represents more than 60,000 small and independent public utility vehicle operators nationwide, argued that the fee has added to the operational costs of transport operators already grappling with rising expenses. Also named in the complaint was Vigor Mendoza II, now chairman of the Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board, for actions allegedly committed during his tenure as LTO chief. Mendoza dismissed the graft complaint against him, describing it as an act of "desperation to get even." FELTOP is seeking a 90-day preventive suspension against Mendoza while the Ombudsman investigates the allegations and is also asking for a refund of all computer fees collected starting Jan. 28, 2025.

- Workers call for de-escalation, diplomacy to end Middle East crisis (2026-03-05 16:59)

LABOR organizations across the globe has joined the call of the International Trade Union Confederation (ITUC) for the immediate de-escalation, immediate ceasefire and a return to peaceful negotiations to restore peace in the Middle East. Sonny Matula, president of Federation of Free Workers (FFW), an affiliate of ITUC, on Thursday said ITUC issued the call during the March 2 meeting of union leaders from various countries in Washington, where it strongly condemned the bombings carried out by Israel and the United States against Iran. Matula said the subsequent retaliation by Iran across the region, including attacks on Bahrain, Cyprus, Israel, Jordan, Kuwait, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, and the United Arab Emirates (UAE), further endangers civilian lives and deepens instability. The ITUC has 331 affiliate organizations, representing some 207 million workers in 163 countries. Matula said the FFW supports the call of the ITUC, adding that workers, civilians, and migrant workers must not be treated as collateral damage in political and military conflicts. He also extended its federation's condolences to the family of Mary Ann de Vera, a 32-year-old Filipina caregiver, and the first Filipino killed in Tel Aviv, Israel, amid escalating tensions. Two other Filipinos were reported injured in separate attacks in Kuwait and the UAE — countries with large populations of overseas Filipino workers (OFWs). “Wars may be planned in command centers, but their impact falls on family dining tables,” Matula said. “Escalation does not remain confined to battle maps — it reaches Filipino homes through grief, loss of livelihood, and rising prices of basic goods.” He said the attacks carried out by Israel and the US violate international law, undermines diplomacy, and threatens to further expand a destructive war in the region. “With an estimated 2.5 million OFWs in the Middle East, this is not a theoretical issue,” he said.

“When missiles fly, remittances tremble. When bombs fall, Filipino families feel it.” Matula reiterated the FFW's call for the immediate convening of a tripartite meeting to strengthen cooperation among the government, workers, employers, and other sectors to ensure preparedness, protection, and swift assistance for Filipinos who may be placed at risk. The group stressed the importance of close coordination among the Department of Migrant Workers (DMW), Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA), Department of Labor and Employment (DOLE), employer groups, unions, migrant worker organizations, and local government units in responding quickly to any worsening of the situation. “Workers build the economy,” the FFW said. “They must not become victims of wars they did not start.”

- Veterinarians overworked, at risk of burnout, study finds (2026-03-05 16:57)

MANY veterinarians in the country work more than 40 hours per week, feel undervalued, and face a high risk of burnout due to limited public awareness of their work and inadequate well-being support, a study has found. In a statement released Thursday, the global pharmaceutical company Boehringer Ingelheim said its paper, “Going Beyond: Charting a Sustainable Future for Veterinary Medicine in Southeast Asia,” found that Filipino veterinarians face a plethora of issues in the workplace. The study surveyed 335 veterinarians and veterinary staff across Southeast Asia, and in the Philippines, they found that on top of working over 40 hours per week, 64 percent of veterinary practices lack formal or informal well-being initiatives, leaving them with no mechanisms to prevent burnout. The report noted that 44 percent of veterinarians said increased public recognition of their expertise and commitment could reduce stress and improve their well-being. “Veterinarians go beyond caring for animals — they protect communities, food safety, and public health,” said Dr. Michael Banawa, head of Animal Health, Boehringer Ingelheim Animal Health Philippines Inc. Furthermore, the report showed that 74 percent of respondents said that a better work-life balance is essential to motivate new veterinarians and ensure the profession's long-term sustainability. Boehringer Ingelheim stressed the importance of collaborating with government and private institutions to establish well-being programs and awareness campaigns about the crucial role of veterinarians. During the 93rd Philippine Veterinary Medical Association Scientific Conference, Boehringer Ingelheim launched the Going Beyond campaign to underscore the importance of veterinarians' contributions in safeguarding the welfare of animals and communities. The firm called on pet owners to practice preventive care, saying it can help foster stronger relationships between veterinarians and their clients. Aside from support, the campaign includes the Boehringer Ingelheim Veterinary Scholars Program, which provides advanced research training and mentorship for veterinary students.

- Filipino students lured to join anti-Japan essay contest – study (2026-03-05 16:56)

FILIPINO public school children were recruited into a Chinese Communist Party (CCP)-linked propaganda campaign last year, an investigation by the SeaLight Foundation has revealed. “This is how influence operations work,” said Ray Powell, executive director of the California-based SeaLight Foundation. “Students and their parents had no idea they were participating in a foreign state’s geopolitical messaging. A contest that looked like peace education was actually a carefully orchestrated propaganda exercise.” SeaLight said Chinese Filipino education groups, working closely with Beijing-affiliated organizations, staged essay contests for students under the guise of “peace education” and historical commemoration. Distributed through official Department of Education (DepEd) channels, the contests urged students to echo anti-Japan sentiments aligned with CCP messaging. DepEd’s National Capital Region office circulated Regional Letter 107, series of 2025, inviting schools to participate in the contest commemorating the 80th anniversary of the Allied victory over Imperial Japan. On the surface, the initiative appeared to be a legitimate educational opportunity, offering cash prizes for winning students and their advisers, as well as additional incentives for schools with high participation, Powell said. But a deeper investigation showed the essays were structured to follow narratives coordinated through Beijing’s United Front Work Department, he said. Filipino children were effectively used as instruments in an international information campaign, with Japan and Taiwan cast as targets of historical grievances. Powell said James Wang, also known as Huang Duanming, president of the Philippine Chinese Education Research Center (PCERC), presented the contest as a way to “remember history, cherish peace, and uphold the spirit of solidarity between the peoples of the Philippines and China.” “But Wang’s group has admitted to close collaboration with Chinese state agencies, including the Ministry of Education, Ministry of Culture, and the United Front Work Department,” he said. The contest culminated in October during a series of United Front events in Manila, including the Eighth China Peaceful Reunification Asia Forum. Filipino student winners were awarded prizes in the middle of a political rally promoting Beijing’s “one-China” principle and anti-Taiwan messaging, Powell said. “This was not merely a school competition,” he said. “It was a carefully orchestrated operation to use minors in Manila as props for a foreign state’s geopolitical agenda — all under the guise of educational activity.” Similar essay contests have been held in the Philippines during previous CCP commemorations, following a long-standing pattern of United Front operations targeting the Filipino Chinese community, Powell said. “Parents and educators must know who is behind programs affecting children,” he added. “Foreign governments should not be allowed to hide behind civic groups to recruit minors into political messaging.” The SeaLight study called on Philippine authorities to review protocols for vetting foreign-linked educational initiatives, to ensure that programs distributed in schools are genuinely educational and free from hidden political agendas.

- Quezon City police arrest 3 suspects, recover firearms in 911 response (2026-03-05 16:55)

THREE men involved in a shooting and illegal possession of firearms were arrested by police responding to a 911 call in Barangay Holy Spirit, Quezon City, on Wednesday. In a statement, the Philippine National Police (PNP) said responding officers intercepted a 30-year-old man with bloodstains on his head and back who attempted to flee the scene. Officers found him carrying an undocumented .45-caliber pistol and rushed him to Quezon City General Hospital for treatment. Shortly after, two men, ages 64 and 42, arrived on a motorcycle. One attempted to flee but was apprehended. Police recovered a high-capacity .45-caliber pistol, ammunition, a bulletproof vest and an 18-inch bolo. According to a 16-year-old witness, a heated argument preceded the incident. The older men allegedly struck and stabbed the injured man, who then grabbed a firearm and fired several shots. A crime scene inspection yielded one live .45-caliber round, one fired cartridge case and one deformed bullet. All suspects are in custody. Cases for attempted homicide, attempted murder and violation of Republic Act 10591 are being prepared for inquest. “Let this be clear: When firearms are used to threaten lives, the PNP will respond with full authority of the law. We will pursue offenders relentlessly and ensure they answer for their actions,” PNP chief Gen. Jose Melencio Nartatez Jr. said. “Violence does not have a place in our community. Those who will violate the law will surely face its full force,” he said.

- Adult content creator Salvi, vlogger Tio Bri face cybercrime complaint (2026-03-05 16:53)

THE Kapisanan ng Social Media Broadcasters ng Pilipinas Inc. (KSMBPI) filed a complaint against adult content creator Salome Salvi and vlogger-podcaster Brian Babilonia, popularly known as “Tio Bri,” for alleged violations of Article 201 of the Revised Penal Code in relation to Section 6 of Republic Act 10175, or the Cybercrime Prevention Act of 2012. KSMBPI Chairman Michael Raymond Apacible Aragon said the complaint stemmed from what the group described as “indecent and obscene” materials allegedly posted by the respondents on their respective social media accounts. KSMBPI legal counsel Mark Tolentino said the group documented numerous materials that it believes violate the law. According to Tolentino, at least 50 episodes posted by Salvi and around 100 episodes uploaded by Babilonia allegedly contained sexually suggestive or explicit discussions. He said the group sent a demand letter to both personalities in December 2025 asking them to remove the materials and refrain from posting similar content online. “They did not respond to our request. In fact, they even challenged us to go to their set and be interviewed about their views on sex,” Tolentino said. Aragon said the group initially planned to file the complaint in January 2026 but decided to give the respondents more time to remove the content from public platforms. “We gave them more than enough time to clean up their posts in open social media because these public online apps can easily be viewed by children," he said. Aragon said KSMBPI is not opposing adult-oriented content but maintained that such material should be restricted to platforms that are inaccessible to minors. "If they want to do adult content, they should provide themselves an exclusive and secured adult site that is safe and cannot be accessed by children," he said. He added that freedom of expression has limits when it harms others, particularly minors. "Freedom of expression is not absolute. Your right to free speech stops when it starts to cause harm to your fellowmen, most especially our innocent children," Aragon said. Aragon also said the group is pushing for the passage of a law creating a National Social Media Regulatory Board to address what it described as the dangers posed by unregulated online platforms. He said the current mandate of the Movie and Television Review and Classification Board, created in 1985, covers only mainstream media and does not extend to social media, which did not exist at the time.

THE Pasig City government has distributed 160,000 hard hats to schools and learning centers to strengthen earthquake preparedness among students, Mayor Vico Sotto said Wednesday. Sotto said the protective gear will be placed in classrooms across Department of Education K-12 schools, child development centers, the Special Children Education Institute, Pasig City Institute of Science and Technology, Pamantasan ng Lungsod ng Pasig, and the city library. He said the helmets follow a 1-to-1 ratio with classroom chairs to ensure that each student has access to protective equipment during drills or actual emergencies. Sotto said the hard hats were procured through public bidding at 154 pesos each, significantly lower than the initial estimate of more than P300 per unit. "This is a disaster-preparedness project that is also an awareness-raising campaign," Sotto said. The mayor said the helmets meet quality standards with Department of Labor and Employment certification and include release buckle whistles and reflectorized stickers. They will remain in classrooms to ensure they are available during drills or emergencies.

MUNTINLUPA Mayor Ruffy Biazon has endorsed a proposed ordinance requiring the establishment of free bicycle parking in the city. Biazon said the measure seeks to ensure that malls, businesses, schools, village halls, and government offices provide safe and accessible bicycle parking facilities. "While more people are using bicycles, we must also help ensure they have adequate and safe facilities," Biazon said. He said the ordinance would require designated locations to provide secure and free bicycle parking spaces that comply with clear standards on location and security once the measure is enacted. Biazon said choosing bicycles as an alternative mode of transportation is practical and helps improve the traffic flow in the city.

- Overseas voter registration suspended in Israel, Iran (2026-03-05 16:38)

THE Commission on Elections (Comelec) has suspended overseas voter registration in Israel and Iran as advised by the Philippine consulates in said countries for security reasons due to continued hostilities. Comelec Chairman George Erwin Garcia said on Thursday that following Israeli government policies, consular services of foreign posts in-country, including the Philippine Embassy in Tel Aviv, were suspended for safety and security reasons until March 7. Garcia added that voter registration for overseas Filipinos in Iran is suspended until further notice. Consular services and voter registration in other countries in the Middle East continue to be available, however, the Comelec said. At the same time, the commission advised Middle East-based overseas Filipinos to remain vigilant and stay informed about the situation in their respective regions. “Be cautious of false or misleading information and rely only on credible sources. Pay close attention to the notices and advisories issued by the Department of Foreign Affairs, as well as the Philippine Embassy or Consulate, and do not hesitate to contact help lines if in distress,” it said. Overseas voters registration is part of Comelec’s preparations for the 2028 presidential and vice presidential elections. Overseas voter registration for the 2028 polls started last Dec. 1, 2025 and will end on Sept. 30, 2027. Garcia said that Comelec is looking forward to increasing the number of overseas voters, saying that at present “there are only 1.67 million registered overseas.” “With our internet voting, we are looking forward to increasing the number of our overseas Filipino voters by 3 million to 4 million,” Garcia added. All Filipino citizens abroad, including dual citizens, are eligible to register as overseas voters, provided they are not disqualified by law and are at least 18 years old on election day, or on May 8, 2028. Both local and overseas absentee voters are only allowed to vote for national candidates — president, vice president, 12 senators and one party-list group — in the upcoming 2028 national and local elections.

- House panel orders VP Duterte to answer impeach complaints (2026-03-05 16:13)

(UPDATE) THE House Committee on Justice on Thursday served a notice directing Vice President Sara Duterte to answer the two impeachment complaints against her that it found sufficient in form and substance. The notice, dated March 4, and addressed to the Office of the Vice President (OVP), ordered her to file her answer within 10 calendar days from receipt of the notice. “Failure on your part to file the Verified Answer within the period herein provided shall be deemed a waiver of your right to file the same, and you shall be considered to have interposed a general denial to the allegations contained in the impeachment complaints,” it read. Lawyer Michael Poa, speaking for Duterte’s defense team, acknowledged receipt of the notice served. “At this point, we see no need to issue any further comment,” Poa said. The committee has yet to determine whether there is sufficient ground to support the complaints.

“If the decision of the Justice Committee is in the affirmative, that’s the only time that we will be proceeding to the hearing proper,” said Batangas 2nd District Rep. Gerville Luistro, the chairman of the committee, in a press conference earlier this week. Four impeachment complaints were filed last month against Duterte. The House committee set the first one filed aside, finding that it violated the rule against initiating impeachment proceedings against the same official more than once within a one-year period. The second one was withdrawn by the 17 people who filed it. The third impeachment complaint filed by priests and others alleged, among others, that Duterte committed culpable violation of the Constitution and betrayed public trust in connection with confidential funds allocated to the OVP for 2022 and 2023, and confidential funds allocated for 2023 to the Department of Education (DepEd), which Duterte led as secretary before she resigned in 2024 from that post. The fourth complaint, filed by lawyer Nathaniel Cabrera, said Duterte “betrayed the public trust, and committed acts of graft and corruption by grossly abusing discretionary authority over confidential funds appropriated to the” OVP and DepEd.

- 1st batch of stranded Pinoys back home from the Middle East (2026-03-05 16:12)

MALACAÑANG on Thursday said that nearly 300 Filipinos who were stranded in the Middle East have returned to the Philippines. Presidential Communications Secretary Dave Gomez said the first flight carrying repatriated Filipinos — Emirates EK336 from Dubai (DXB) to Manila (MNL) — arrived at the Ninoy Aquino International Airport Terminal 3 at 6:45 a.m. Gomez said the passenger manifest included a mix of repatriated Filipinos and other affected travelers seeking to return home. Migrant Workers Secretary Hans Leo Cacdac led government officials in welcoming 299 repatriates, including infants and children, upon their arrival, Gomez said. “We are thankful that you are all safe. Also, we are much thankful to Emirates, to the UAE (United Arab Emirates) government for taking care of you, in preparing the flight to Manila as we provide support,” Cacdac told overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) at the airport. The first batch of returnees included 23 OFWs and two children. The flight that departed at 9:55 p.m. Philippine time brought home OFWs, tourists and other travelers who were stranded as the fighting erupted following an Israeli-US attack on Iran. Upon arrival, the returning Filipinos were immediately provided with a comprehensive support package from a coordinated “whole-of-government” team. This assistance included immediate financial aid from the Department of Migrant Workers through the Aksyon Fund, while the Overseas Workers Welfare Administration (OWWA) arranged for hotel accommodations and onward transport to their respective home provinces. The Department of Health and the Department of Social Welfare and Development were also on-site to offer essential medical checkups and psychosocial support services. Officials earlier assured the public that contingency measures remained in place to assist nationals abroad should conditions further escalate, adding that coordination with relevant government agencies and airline partners were ongoing. On Tuesday, President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. advised Filipinos in the Middle East to stay put and seek shelter, as repatriation efforts have stalled due to the ongoing US-Israel-Iran conflict. He said that at least 1,416 Filipinos from conflict-hit areas in the Middle East have requested to be repatriated back to the Philippines. Malacañang earlier said that Filipinos in need of assistance may contact the emergency hotlines of the OWWA to report their concerns and request support. OWWA emergency hotlines are for Metro 1348, for Regional -02-1348, via Viber +63-915-079-5005 (Globe), +63-969-169-7068 (Smart) and +63-966-473-9543 (Globe). More than 2 million Filipinos work in the Middle East, according to government figures. Also on Thursday, the Department of Migrant Workers (DMW) assured the family and relatives of overseas Filipino worker Mary Ann de Vera, who was killed in Israel, that her next of kin will receive full assistance from the agency and OWWA. In a statement late on Wednesday, the DMW said the agencies reached out to de Vera's family, including her husband in Israel, her sibling in Qatar and her family in Pangasinan. De Vera's remains are awaiting repatriation and are scheduled to return home as soon as air travel is declared safe. De Vera was escorting her elderly ward to a shelter in Tel Aviv when she was hit by shrapnel from an Iranian missile.

- 3 defense personnel were spies for China — NSC \(2026-03-05 16:11\)

AUTHORITIES have apprehended three defense personnel who allegedly spied on behalf of China in what the country's security agency has described as a "serious national security matter," its spokesman said Thursday. The trio, who worked for the Department of Defense, Navy and Coast Guard, provided their Chinese handlers with lists of military personnel and other sensitive information, National Security Council (NSC) spokesman Cornelio Valencia said. Operational details about resupply missions in the contested South China Sea, where China and the Philippines have frequently clashed in recent years, were also included in the information handed over, he said. "There was co-option over a period of time," Valencia said of efforts to woo the defense personnel, whom he described as low-level analysts. "At the start you are not aware. And then you're surprised they're already asking you for sensitive data." "At the end of the day, it's always money," he said of their motives. Valencia said the three, whose names and genders he did not disclose, were now cooperating with the government "to ensure we no longer have a problem." In a statement released on Wednesday night, the NSC said it had "addressed and terminated" operations taken at "the behest of Chinese intelligence," without offering details of the alleged espionage. "For reasons of national security, we cannot discuss identities, methods or timelines so as not to jeopardize ongoing operations," the security agency said. "Nonetheless, necessary actions have been taken against the individuals concerned — all Filipino nationals — who have all confessed their complicity in espionage activities and are cooperating with authorities." The Chinese Embassy in Manila did not immediately respond to requests for comment. Wednesday's NSC statement cited a recent investigation in the news service Rappler, which first reported that Chinese handlers had sought information about maritime deployments and resupply missions in the South China Sea. The Philippines last year announced multiple arrests of Chinese over alleged espionage. In April, a Chinese man was apprehended while operating a surveillance device near the offices of the Philippine election commission, authorities said, less than two weeks before the country's midterm elections. The man was allegedly using an "IMSI catcher," a device capable of mimicking a cell tower and snatching messages from the air in a 1- to 3-kilometer radius. Two Chinese men detained in February 2025 were accused of using the same device while driving near sensitive government and military locations in Manila.

- Fire chief faces charges in P14.7M bribery case \(2026-03-05 16:10\)

THE Department of the Interior and Local Government (DILG) on Thursday filed administrative and criminal complaints before the Office of the Ombudsman against Jesus Fernandez, chief of the Bureau of Fire Protection (BFP), over an alleged P14.752-million bribery scheme tied to the procurement of 132 ambulances for the agency, as authorities disclosed what they described as a broader pattern of corruption within the fire service. Local Government Secretary Jonvic Remulla said the complaints stemmed from a department investigation that uncovered irregularities in the procurement of 132 Type 1 Basic Life Support ambulances intended to strengthen the BFP's emergency medical response capability. "Ambulances are meant to save lives. Public funds intended for emergency response will never be allowed to become vehicles for corruption," Remulla said. "We will pursue the truth and ensure full accountability." Administrative charges filed against Fernandez include grave misconduct, serious dishonesty and conduct prejudicial to the best interest of the service. Criminal complaints include violation of Section 3(e) of Republic Act 3019, or the Anti-Graft and Corrupt Practices Act, as well as direct bribery, malversation of public funds and conspiracy. The DILG also asked the Ombudsman to place Fernandez under preventive suspension to safeguard the integrity of the proceedings while the case is under investigation. The department said it had also written to the Office of the President recommending that the official be relieved. Investigators said the procurement process that began in September 2024 was allegedly manipulated to favor a preselected supplier. Records showed the supplier entered into a joint venture with an automotive company in October 2024, allegedly to meet bidding requirements and secure control of the project. According to affidavits submitted to the DILG, Fernandez — who was then-chairman of the BFP Bids and Awards Committee — allegedly received P6 million in a suitcase and another P4.752 million in a bag during a meeting in Quezon City in November 2024. Investigators said he later received an additional P4 million in cash during another meeting in September 2025, bringing the total documented payoffs to P14.752 million. The complaints were backed by sworn testimony from a representative of the supplier describing how the "SOP" payments were computed and delivered, as well as an affidavit from the automotive company's manager explaining how the joint venture arrangement was used to secure the contract. Remulla said the ambulance procurement case was only one part of a wider corruption problem uncovered by the department within the BFP. "This culture of corruption has to stop. The institutionalization of corruption must come to an end. I believe it has to start from the top," he said during a media briefing in Quezon City. The DILG chief said the investigation indicated that kickbacks and manipulated procurement processes appeared to extend beyond senior leadership. "If corruption starts at the top, it trickles all the way down. From entry-level inspectors to regional directors, everyone pays to get in," he said, adding that some applicants allegedly paid as much as P800,000 to enter the BFP and were later required to remit monthly payments tied to fire inspection operations. Remulla also disclosed that additional cases involving alleged bid-rigging in fire truck procurement were being prepared. "If you think this is big, the corruption in fire truck procurement is even larger. I was personally offered P1.5 million per truck as a cut," he said. Meanwhile, the DILG said the selection of the next BFP chief would undergo a strict vetting process as the department moved to restore integrity within the agency. Remulla said candidates would go through seven rounds of interviews and a thorough review of their financial records, performance history and professional track record. He added that two candidates interviewed earlier in the day appeared promising for the position, with their financial and service records undergoing scrutiny. Remulla also said Fernandez would still face the cases even if he chooses to retire from government service. “The case will continue. Retirement does not absolve you from allegations or from being tried for corruption. It is not a bulletproof vest that prevents you from being charged,” he said. The DILG said a task force has also been formed to examine the financial records of current and incoming BFP officials as part of a wider effort to uncover irregularities and dismantle what Remulla described as an entrenched “ecosystem of corruption” within the agency.

- Ethics complaint filed vs Suintay (2026-03-05 16:09)

WOMEN’ S rights advocates filed on Thursday an ethics complaint at the House of Representatives against Quezon City 4th District Rep. Bong Suintay over his statements involving Anne Curtis in a committee meeting. The statements were made on Tuesday in a meeting of the House Committee on Justice, when Suintay addressed Vice President Sara Duterte’ s statement that she imagined killing President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. by saying he saw Anne Curtis at the Shangri-La, and she was so beautiful and desirable that he imagined what might happen. “But of course, it was just my imagination. Maybe I cannot be sued because I imagined various things,” he said in Filipino. His remarks were stricken from the record. In an interview on ANC’ s “Headstart” on Thursday, Suintay acknowledged that his “analogy was done in poor taste.” “I want to apologize to Miss Anne Curtis, all the women out there who got offended by the statement that I made,” he said. “I regret making that analogy. It was wrong.” On Wednesday evening, during plenary session, Laguna 1st District Rep. Ann Matibag, the chairman of the House Committee on Women and Gender Equality, asked that the matter be referred to the House Committee on Ethics and Privileges. Suintay said he respected the feelings of his fellow lawmakers. He said, “I was arguing on principles that lawyers and legislators should know” which was that a person “cannot be held liable for mere thoughts, imaginations or associations without an overt act.” “But like I said, the analogy might have been in bad taste and taken in the wrong context,” he said. Suintay said in a radio DZMM interview earlier on Wednesday that “it was an imaginary situation. It was a fictitious situation. I have not even seen Anne Curtis in person, but I have seen her on TV.” He said when he spoke at the plenary on Wednesday evening. “My record on women’ s welfare is real. The gender and development code, and the ‘Bawal Bastos Ordinance,’ which I authored in Quezon City, were not small achievements.” He said further on that “we should look at the person by his actions and not mere statements. I think there is no perfect person here.” He hoped that he would “be judged not from one statement but from the kind of person that I am, how, what kind of person I am, what principle I have and how I fight for it.” San Juan Rep. Ysabel Zamora moved to refer Matibag’ s speech to the House Committee on Ethics and Privileges for appropriate action. There was no objection, and her motion was approved.

- PH, Singapore boost cooperation on social protection (2026-03-05 16:08)

THE Department of Social Welfare and Development, and Singapore's Ministry of Social and Family Development have agreed to strengthen their cooperation in advancing social sector development. Social Welfare Secretary Rex Gatchalian, and Singapore Social and Family Development Minister Masagos Zulkifli on Wednesday signed a memorandum of understanding (MOU) in Makati City to step up the "exchange of information and experiences in the implementation of programs on social protection, and family and child development." The partnership includes initiatives focused on early childhood care and child protection systems. The MOU calls for joint activities such as workshops, projects, meetings, seminars, training programs and study visits. It also covers cooperation in programs for persons with disabilities and women's empowerment. The two countries agreed to promote institutional linkages between agencies and organizations engaged in social development and social work practice. The MOU underscores continuing Asean cooperation aimed at enhancing social protection systems and promoting people-centered development initiatives.

- Ways to ease rising oil prices eyed (2026-03-05 16:07)

SEVERAL senators on Thursday presented proposals aimed at easing the impact of the sudden surge in the price of fuel following the escalation of tension in the Middle East. Sen. Francis "Chiz" Escudero called for amendments to the Tax Reform for Acceleration and Inclusion (Train) Law to automatically authorize the president to suspend or reduce excise and value-added taxes (VAT) on fuel when global oil prices breach government-set benchmarks. In a statement, Escudero said the current safeguard mechanism under the Train Law, or Republic Act (RA) 10963, is "too narrow," and limits the president's ability to respond quickly to fluctuations in oil prices. Under RA 10963, fuel excise taxes are suspended only under specific conditions, such as when the average Dubai crude oil price exceeds $80 per barrel for three consecutive months. Escudero argued that this mechanism is reactive and may not provide timely relief to consumers during force majeure events such as wars, geopolitical tensions, or global economic crises. He said his position has always been to grant the president automatic authority to adjust fuel taxes when global oil prices exceed the assumptions set under the Budget of Expenditures and Sources of Financing (BESF), which outlines the macroeconomic and fiscal assumptions underpinning the national budget. President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. has said he would seek emergency powers from Congress to temporarily reduce excise taxes on petroleum products if Dubai crude surpasses $80 per barrel. While welcoming the president's plan as a "step in the right direction," Escudero maintained that a permanent legislative amendment would provide a more efficient and predictable solution. Sen. Raffy Tulfo said key government agencies must coordinate closely to cushion the impact of rising fuel prices on farmers, fisherfolk, and public utility drivers. As chairman of the Senate Committee on Public Services, Tulfo convened officials from the Department of Transportation (DOTr), Department of Energy (DOE), Department of Agriculture (DA), and the Bureau of Fisheries and Aquatic Resources (BFAR) via Zoom Thursday to review existing fuel subsidy programs and discuss ways to improve the distribution of assistance. The meeting came a day the per-liter price of gasoline swelled by P1.90, diesel by P1.20, and kerosene by P1.50. Energy Undersecretary Sandy Sales told Tulfo the latest adjustments were part of regular weekly pricing movements, and were not yet directly linked to the conflict in the Middle East. However, Sales acknowledged that global petroleum prices are expected to climb further. He cited reports that Iran has shut down the Strait of Hormuz — one of the world’s most critical oil transit chokepoints, a development that could significantly constrain global oil supply and drive up prices. DOTr Assistant Secretary for Road Transport and Non-Infrastructure Jojo Reyes reported that P2.5 billion has been allocated under the 2025 General Appropriations Act for fuel subsidies. Agriculture Undersecretary Roger Navarro said that around P100 million remains from funds under the Bayanihan law enacted during the Covid-19 pandemic, which could be utilized as fuel subsidies for farmers. Tulfo rejected the amount as insufficient and urged the DA to identify additional funding sources. BFAR National Director Elizer Salilig reported that P50 million is currently deposited at the Development Bank of the Philippines (DBP) for fisherfolk fuel subsidies. Tulfo also questioned the policy requiring Dubai crude oil prices to reach $80 per barrel before fuel subsidies are triggered. Sen. Bam Aquino called for the immediate reactivation of fuel subsidies for transport sector workers. “We know that our jeepney drivers, tricycle drivers, our PUV (public utility vehicle) drivers will be heavily affected if there will be gasoline and diesel price increases,” Aquino said in a television interview Thursday. He allayed concerns over potential revenue losses if the excise tax on fuel products is suspended. He said that anti-corruption measures should be strengthened to augment government funds for services. Aquino has filed Senate Bill (SB) 1923 that seek to grant the president authority to suspend the excise tax on petroleum products during national or global economic emergencies. A similar measure, SB 1927, was filed by Sens. Pia Cayetano and Alan Peter Cayetano. Senate Bill 1927 amends Article 148 of the National Internal Revenue Code of 1997 to establish a standing mechanism that would allow immediate executive action in response to global oil market disruptions. In their explanatory note, the Cayetanos cited escalating conflicts in West Asia — home to key oil-producing nations such as Saudi Arabia, Iran, Iraq, Kuwait, Qatar, and the United Arab Emirates — as a major threat to global energy stability. They noted that even short-term instability can trigger rapid price surges in international oil markets. Just three days after the US and Israel launched aerial attacks on Iran, “gasoline prices in the international market already surged from $79.63 to $90.32 per barrel,” they said in the bill’s explanatory note. The bill underscores the Philippines’ vulnerability to global price shocks, pointing out that the country remains heavily reliant on imported petroleum products. In 2024, the Philippines imported approximately 340,600 barrels of liquid fuel, accounting for about 99.68 percent of its total petroleum supply, making it highly exposed to fluctuations in international markets. By embedding safeguards in the tax system itself, the government could act immediately to mitigate inflationary pressures without waiting for prior legislative approval, the Cayetanos said. Sen. Sherwin Gatchalian urged the government to consider tapping the president’s contingency fund to provide fuel subsidies to public transport drivers. Gatchalian agreed with his colleagues that the government should not wait for global crude prices to hit the trigger threshold before releasing assistance under the transport fuel subsidy program. He warned that the steady increases in pump prices are already placing significant pressure on drivers and commuters, even before the benchmark is reached. Aside from the early release of subsidies, Gatchalian also urged the energy department to review the current inventory levels and pricing practices of local oil companies to ensure that retail prices remain fair and reflect actual supply costs. Caritas Philippines, meanwhile, urged the government to shift to renewable sources of energy, warning that continued reliance on fossil fuels could deepen economic vulnerability. In a statement Thursday, the social action arm of the Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines (CBCP) said the crisis in the Middle East highlights how fossil fuels continue to shape geopolitics and expose import-dependent countries — like the Philippines — to economic risks. “When oil becomes entangled with war, the consequences ripple across the world, especially for vulnerable economies like the Philippines,” Caritas said. “The Philippines remains dangerously dependent on imported coal, oil, and gas. This dependence ties our national stability to conflicts beyond our control and exposes our people to the shocks of volatile global energy markets,” it said. “For Filipino families, rising oil prices mean immediate hardship: higher transport fares, rising food costs, increasing electricity bills, and deeper economic insecurity. The burden falls heaviest on workers, farmers, fisherfolk, and the urban poor,” Caritas said.

- Dizon Orders Accelerated Waterway Improvements to Combat Perennial Flooding (2026-03-05 16:05)

THE Department of Public Works and Highways (DPWH) said it has ordered the accelerated dredging and widening of waterways in Marikina City and surrounding areas to mitigate flooding. “The government is working to expedite waterway improvement. Once completed, floodwaters are likely to recede faster,” said Public Works Secretary Vince Dizon after an inspection of the Marikina River flood control project. According to Dizon, the completion of works at Sumulong Drainage, Balanti Creek, and the Manila Water site — along with the resolution of right-of-way issues affecting Phase V of the Pasig-Marikina River Channel Improvement Project (PMRCIP) — will help accelerate the movement of water into the river, allowing floodwaters in Marikina to subside more quickly. “We need to complete these projects as quickly as possible. Right now, we are dredging waterways, repairing gaps in the dikes, and fixing drainage systems to ensure that water moves more quickly toward the rivers. All of these efforts must be carried out simultaneously and with urgency,” he said. Dizon said the DPWH is undergoing similar works across the country in line with government efforts to address perennial flooding in Metro Manila and other low-lying areas. The DPWH chief has created a task force, Oplan Kontra Baha, in coordination with the Metropolitan Manila Development Authority (MMDA), the Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR), the Department of the Interior and Local Government (DILG), and the private sector to institutionalize the government's clearing and cleaning efforts for all waterways. Earlier, the DPWH completed a larger drainage project on G. Araneta Avenue in Quezon City to alleviate flooding in the area as part of the Oplan Kontra Baha program. Dizon said the drainage at G. Araneta is three times larger, adding that he has also ordered the installation of mobile pumps while the pumping station at E. Rodriguez is unfinished, as well as the continuous dredging and cleaning of the San Juan River. “The president said we need to speed up the work because come June, it will rain again, there will be flooding again. So now, that's what we are really doing; our work is continuous so that we can ensure that these projects are completed quickly," he added. Dizon said the Oplan Kontra Baha program is in accordance with the directive of the president to mitigate flooding in prone areas in Metro Manila, including Metro Cebu and Bacolod City in the Negros Island Region, among others. "Oplan Kontra Baha not only focuses on dredging, but also includes the implementation of science-based projects, clearing of illegal structures in waterways, and the strict enforcement of proper solid waste management in collaboration with local government units," he said. In the first week of December, the DPWH-NCR recorded 1,474.18 cubic meters of declogging, while 3,795.64 cubic meters of desilting of waterways in various areas has been completed. Dizon assured that with each week of Oplan Kontra Baha, the public can expect the DPWH to continue to focus on making communities in the NCR safer and more orderly. Dizon noted that the DPWH is keen to complete several infrastructure projects between 2026 and 2027 that have been stalled for the past four to five years.

- Marcos Leads Inspection of New EDSA Kamuning Footbridge Upgrades (2026-03-05 16:04)

PRESIDENT Ferdinand Marcos Jr. on Thursday inspected the new commuter-friendly EDSA Kamuning footbridge, located in one of the highway's busiest sections. Accompanied by first lady Liza Araneta-Marcos and their son William Vincent, Transportation Secretary Giovanni Lopez and Public Works and Highways Secretary Vince Dizon, the chief executive first scaled the old "Mt. Kamuning" footbridge, which he ordered torn down last year. The structure, he lamented, had long been criticized for being too steep and difficult for commuters to use. "Well, the old one is not very good at all. And then you don't realize that when you're down here, it moves when vehicles pass by. So, this one is much better," Marcos told reporters in Filipino following the inspection. "So, now there's a change. We fixed it within four months. Our promise was six months. Well, it's only been four months and it's done," he added. The new footbridge, which opened to the public Wednesday, also features a wheelchair lift and elevators for commuters with mobility issues. It likewise gives easier access to the EDSA Busway. It was designed to function as a seamless, intermodal access facility, improving commuter safety, accessibility and transfer efficiency along EDSA. Around 750,000 passengers use the MRT and the EDSA Busway daily, making the Kamuning station a vital structure for workers and other commuters traveling across Metro Manila. "So, it's good that in four months we have put up new facilities that will make the commuting experience easier. Mt. Kamuning is gone," the president said. "I'm happy to see that this is the sort of thing that... It's something that can be done. It's not that difficult as long as we're determined to fix the commuter experience," he added.

- P29.7M Worth of Illicit Drugs Intercepted by BOC-NAIA in Pasay (2026-03-05 16:03)

GOVERNMENT agents seized P29.712 million worth of illicit drugs at a Pasay cargo facility, the Bureau of Customs-Ninoy Aquino International Airport (BOC-NAIA) announced Thursday. The BOC-NAIA reported that three inbound parcels, which arrived separately from Germany and South Africa, were intercepted March 2. The shipment was discovered during routine examinations of abandoned parcels and confirmed by Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency (PDEA) agents. Two of the parcels, declared as “garden sculptures,” contained 2,032 grams and 2,014 grams of a white powdery substance suspected to be MDMA, commonly known as ecstasy, with an estimated value of P5,259,800. They were shipped from Berlin and consigned to a recipient in Pasig. Meanwhile, the third parcel, declared as “vehicle air filters,” was shipped from Lusaka, Zambia, and consigned to a recipient in Dasmariñas, Cavite. Inspection revealed four cylindrical air filters wrapped in carbon paper and masking tape containing approximately 3,596 grams of suspected shabu valued at P24,452,800. According to Customs District Collector Yasmin Mapa, the operation was carried out in close coordination with the NAIA Inter-Agency Drug Interdiction Task Group, the Philippine National Police Aviation Security Group, the Airport Police Department, PDEA, and the BOC Customs Anti-Illegal Drugs Task Force. The illegal substances were turned over by BOC-NAIA to the PDEA national office, which assumed custody of the case. Recent interceptions at cargo and mail facilities frequently target warehouses and centers near the airport complex in Pasay. On Feb. 11, the Bureau of Customs intercepted approximately 5.4 kilograms of shabu, worth P36.8 million, hidden in containers disguised as CCTV cameras, handbags, and hot water bottles. BOC-NAIA also confiscated 3.7 kilograms of high-grade marijuana, or kush, worth P5.6 million on Feb. 13 at the Central Mail Exchange Center. The drugs were discovered in four abandoned parcels.

- Quezon City Unveils Health Totem for World Obesity Day (2026-03-05 16:02)

QUEZON City observed World Obesity Day with the installation of a health landmark at the Quezon Memorial Circle (QMC), Mayor Joy Belmonte said Thursday. Belmonte led key city officials, Danish Ambassador to the Philippines Franz-Michael Mellbin, and executives from Novo Nordisk, a global health care company based in Denmark, in Wednesday’s unveiling of the health totem at the circle. The mayor said the initiative highlights the city as one of the Philippine models for the global Cities for Better Health program led by the company. The program supports cities in strengthening prevention, early detection, and long-term management of noncommunicable diseases. The World Obesity Day event featured a ceremonial turnover of the health totem, a community walk, and public engagement activities designed to promote awareness of obesity as a chronic disease and encourage an active lifestyle, according to the city’s Public Affairs and Information Services Department (PAISD). Strategically located along the jogging paths of the circle, the totem provides accessible guidance on body mass index, waist measurement, risk factors, and healthy behaviors while introducing metered activity stations to motivate physical activity among park users, the PAISD said. Belmonte said the partnership reflects her administration’s whole-of-government approach to preventive health. “Together with Novo Nordisk and the Royal Danish Embassy, we are institutionalizing programs that make healthy living more accessible for our residents — from primary care and nutrition reforms to active public spaces,” the mayor said. Wei Sun, Novo Nordisk Philippines general manager, said cities play a critical role in addressing obesity by shaping environments that enable healthier choices. “Through Cities for Better Health, Novo Nordisk works with Quezon City to translate global evidence into local action by embedding prevention, education, and supportive infrastructure into everyday community spaces,” Sun said. The Danish ambassador cited the importance of cross-country collaboration in tackling global health challenges. “This partnership reflects the strong ties between Denmark and the Philippines in advancing public health innovation. By combining global scientific expertise with local leadership, we can help cities build environments that support healthier lives for generations to come,” Mellbin said.

- Mendoza Dismisses Graft Complaint Over P169 Computer Fee as Retaliation (2026-03-05 16:01)

LAND Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board (LTFRB) Chairman Vigor Mendoza II has dismissed a newly filed graft complaint against him as an act of “desperation to get even.” This comes following allegations over a 169-peso computer fee collected during his tenure as Land Transportation Office (LTO) chief. In a statement released Thursday, Mendoza said his reforms at the LTO, aimed at providing faster and more efficient services, disrupted long-standing interests of certain groups, leaving some “unable to move on.” “Our aggressive policy reforms geared towards fast and comfortable services when I was still in the Land Transportation Office cut deep into the interests of some individuals and groups that they still feel the sharp and biting pain of the effects until now — and therefore, could not move on,” Mendoza said. Nevertheless, he added, he respects the decision of the Federated Land Transport Organizations of the Philippines (Feltop) to file the complaint with the Office of the Ombudsman, calling it “the proper forum to shed light into this old and recycled issue.” The complaint, lodged by Feltop on March 5, questions the collection of a 169-peso computer fee per transaction, alleging it generated more than 169 million pesos and was implemented with possible preferential treatment to Stradcom Corp., the IT service provider used for vehicle registration and other LTO transactions. Feltop represents over 60,000 small and independent public utility vehicle (PUV) operators nationwide, claiming the fee added to their operational costs amid rising expenses. The group has requested a 90-day preventive suspension of Mendoza while the Ombudsman investigates and is also seeking a refund of all fees collected starting Jan. 28, 2025. Mendoza, who now chairs the LTFRB, maintained that the case is not about accountability but retaliation against the reforms he pushed, insisting that his policies benefited the public by modernizing the LTO’s services. “This is not about accountability, this is plain and simple desperation to get even,” he said.

- Baligod, 18 ex-soldiers charged with cyber libel (2026-03-05 16:00)

(UPDATE) FORMER senator Antonio Trillanes IV on Thursday filed criminal complaints against lawyer Levito Baligod, 18 former marines and several pro-Duterte personalities for cyber libel and perjury when they accused him of accepting $2 million to bribe International Criminal Court (ICC) investigators to ensure the prosecution of former president Rodrigo Duterte. In a separate legal action, National Security Adviser Eduardo Año filed criminal charges against the same respondents over what he described as “malicious imputations” and fabricated allegations linking him to large-scale bribery. The respondents were charged by Año with unlawful means of publication and unlawful utterances under the Revised Penal Code in relation to Republic Act 10175, or the Cybercrime Prevention Act, before the Department of Justice on Wednesday. Año said that the filing of charges marked only the first legal action he intended to pursue against those he believed orchestrated the accusations. “I was really surprised. And of course, you can say I am really mad with their malicious imputations. Never in my life would I do that,” he said. The filing of the criminal complaint arose from the allegations of the 18 alleged former marines that they delivered billions of pesos in “kickback” money in the flood control projects to several government officials, including President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. and Año. But Año denied allegations, saying that such accusations run contrary to his decades of service in the military and government. He said that integrity has always guided his conduct in public service, including during his tenure as secretary of the Department of the Interior and Local Government. Año said the complaint “is just the first” charge. “There will be succeeding cases that will be filed,” he said, adding that he intended to file cyber libel and perjury charges against the respondents, too.

Controversial press conference Trillanes filed before the Department of Justice in Manila, targeting Baligod and the 18 self-confessed former security aides of resigned Ako Bicol Party-list representative Zaldy Co, who claimed in a press conference on Feb. 24 to have delivered billions in cash to President Marcos and even Trillanes himself. Also named respondents in the Trillanes suit were former government official Lorraine Badoy-Partosa, vlogger Cathy Binag, former Anakalusugan Party-list representative Mike Defensor and broadcaster Jay Sonza for their social media posts amplifying the allegations. At the center of the complaint was the Feb. 24 press conference organized by Baligod at Club Filipino in San Juan. During the event, Baligod introduced the 18 respondents — identified as Belnard Tube, Rosebert Waupan, Benny Bulontate, Johnny Buduan, Rodante Orbillo, Reyneboy Julian, Christopher Esquivel, George Villalon Jr., Romeo Rommel Bobares, Gil Navidad Jr., Anselmo Taberdo, Joely Cadiao, Rommel Galapon, Cecilio Larroder Jr., Bernard Gumban, Crisanie Dado, Fidel Corpuz and Walter Manalansan — as former security personnel of Co. Baligod alleged that the 18 “ex-marines” had delivered P805 billion in cash packed in suitcases or “maletas” to President Marcos, several lawmakers and other officials. Most significantly, Baligod claimed Trillanes received $2 million to fund and facilitate the ICC investigation into Duterte’s war on drugs. According to the complaint, Baligod said that two suitcases containing P56 million were handed to Trillanes to facilitate arrangements for the ICC investigators, adding that the vehicles used and the hotel accommodations were allegedly shouldered by Elizaldy “Zaldy” Co and the former senator. The complaint further noted that a day before the press conference, the 18 respondents executed a notarized affidavit detailing the claims. In that affidavit, the affiants made specific allegations against Trillanes, including that they delivered cash to his office in Quezon City on multiple occasions, that Trillanes met with Co and former speaker Martin Romualdez at the Manila Polo Club, and that accommodations for ICC personnel were paid for by Co and Trillanes. The complaint argued that the press conference was part of a carefully conceived and concerted effort to destroy Trillanes’ honor, pointing to the timing as evidence of malice. The event was held a day before the EDSA People Power anniversary, and coincided with the second day of ICC hearings for confirmation of charges against Duterte. This timing, Trillanes asserted, was designed to agitate the public and undermine the integrity of the ICC proceedings. The complaint also raised questions about the logistics of the alleged cash deliveries, noting that Sen. Panfilo Lacson, chairman of the Senate Blue Ribbon Committee, had pointed out that P805 billion represents more than 70 percent of the P1.13 trillion allocated for flood control projects from 2023 to 2025, and that transporting such an amount would require at least 13,416 large suitcases capable of containing P50 million to P70 million each. Trillanes alleged that the press conference was a premeditated, politically motivated stunt orchestrated by Baligod with support from pro-Duterte allies. The complaint noted that CCTV footage revealed vehicles used to transport the 18 respondents were registered under the name of Defensor's wife, and Defensor himself was present during the press conference as seen in his Facebook live coverage. Badoy's pre-event post showing foreknowledge of the subject matter, combined with Binag and Sonza's prepared online remarks, demonstrated what Trillanes described as "a unity of design, each actor performing acts to accomplish their purpose." The complaint invoked the Supreme Court ruling in Domingo v Badoy-Partosa, which held that online content creators or influencers with large followings should be held to the same standard as journalists. According to the complaint, Badoy has about 77,000 Meta followers, Binag has 308,000, Defensor has 420,000 and Sonza has 393,000. Trillanes is charging Baligod separately with violation of Article 363 of the Revised Penal Code for incriminating an innocent person. The complaint argued that by alleging Trillanes received $2 million for ICC investigators, Baligod effectively imputed the crimes of bribery or corruption of public officials. However, Trillanes pointed out that he ceased being a public officer when his Senate term ended in 2019, and therefore crimes like bribery cannot be attached to him. "After his 15 minutes of fame, he must be held to account for his clear transgression of the law, together with all his cohorts, who provided him moral comfort and material aid, and connived with him in publicizing his tall tale of lies," Trillanes said in his complaint. In a statement sent to The Manila Times, Badoy said she is honored "to be standing alongside our courageous heroes who have remained true to their calling as warriors and true sons of the republic." Defensor also said that he is "honored" to be included in the case alongside the former soldiers. "These soldiers are the only ones speaking the truth on what they have witnessed — the delivery of money that, based on reports, were part of corruption because Zaldy Co is their boss," Defensor said. Defensor said that both Año and Trillanes, instead of finding out the truth, filed charges and want them jailed. Meanwhile, Vice President Sara Duterte said that "outrage over corruption" must not be selective and should not choose who should be investigated. "And we cannot remain silent whenever those involved are close to power," Duterte said in a statement on Thursday, adding that she admired the courage of the 18 former security personnel.

- DILG uncovers 'culture of corruption' in Bureau of Fire Protection; charges filed against officials, supplier (2026-03-05 05:26)

MANILA, Philippines — The Department of the Interior and Local Government (DILG) on Thursday exposed a culture of corruption within the Bureau of Fire Protection (BFP), involving bribery, bid rigging, and malversation of public funds, prompting the filing of criminal and administrative charges against implicated officials and calls for preventative suspension. Speaking at a media briefing, DILG Secretary Jonvic Remulla said the corruption appears systematic, with kickbacks and manipulated procurement processes extending from top leadership to lower-level officials. “This culture of corruption has to stop. The institutionalization of corruption must come to an end. I believe it has to start from the top,” Remulla said. The first major case involves the procurement of 132 ambulances for the BFP, which began in September 2024. Investigations revealed that a pre-determined supplier manipulated the bidding process by forming a joint venture with an automotive company to secure the contract. Fire Chief Jesus Fernandez, then overseeing BFP operations, allegedly received a total of P10.762 million in illicit payments from the supplier in three separate installments between November 2024 and September 2025, according to affidavits and eyewitness testimony presented during the briefing. Remulla confirmed that charges have been filed with the Office of the Ombudsman, including violations of Section 3(e) of Republic Act 3019, also known as the Anti-Graft and Corrupt Practices Act, direct bribery, and malversation of public funds. “We are confident that the information gathered is sufficient to charge Fire Chief Fernandez and the supplier for both administrative and criminal cases,” he said. Remulla emphasized that ordinary citizens were the primary victims of the corruption, particularly middle-class business owners and professionals who rely on public services. “If corruption starts at the top, it trickles all the way down. From entry-level inspectors to regional directors, everyone pays to get in,” he said. He cited examples of applicants paying P800,000 just to enter the BFP and monthly remittances tied to fire inspections. The DILG has requested the Ombudsman to preventatively suspend Fernandez to safeguard the ongoing investigation. Remulla also disclosed that additional cases involving bid rigging in the procurement of fire trucks were under development. “If you think this is big, the corruption in fire truck procurement is even larger. I was personally offered P1.5 million per truck as a cut,” he said. A task force has been formed to scrutinize the financial records of current and incoming BFP officials, with the aim of uncovering all irregularities. Remulla assured that more forms of corruption within the agency would be publicly disclosed in the coming days. “The end game is clear: to dismantle this ecosystem of corruption and restore integrity to the Bureau of Fire Protection,” he said.

- PH Govt detains 'China's spy' (2026-03-05 05:22)

MANILA, Philippines — Philippine authorities have apprehended an undisclosed number of Filipinos who allegedly spied on behalf of China, the country's security agency said, calling it a "serious national security matter". In a statement released Wednesday night, the National Security Council (NSC) said it had "addressed and terminated" operations taken at "the behest of Chinese intelligence", without offering details of the alleged espionage. "For reasons of national security, we cannot discuss identities, methods, or timelines so as not to jeopardize ongoing operations," the security agency said. "Nonetheless, necessary actions have been taken against the individuals concerned -- all Filipino nationals -- who have all confessed their complicity in espionage activities and are cooperating with authorities." The National Security Council and the Chinese embassy in Manila did not immediately respond to AFP comment requests. The Philippines and China have been involved in an escalating conflict over disputed areas of the South China Sea, with vessels from the two sides clashing frequently in recent years, resulting in injuries and damage. China claims almost the entire South China Sea, brushing off rival claims from other countries -- including the Philippines -- and an international ruling that its assertion has no legal basis. Wednesday's NSC statement cited a recent investigation in local outlet Rappler, which reported that Chinese minders had sought information about maritime deployments and resupply missions in the crucial waterway. The Philippines last year announced multiple arrests of Chinese nationals over alleged espionage. In April, a Chinese man was apprehended while operating a surveillance device near the offices of the Philippine election commission, authorities said, less than two weeks before the country's mid-term elections. The man was allegedly using an "IMSI catcher", a device capable of mimicking a cell tower and snatching messages from the air in a one-to-three-kilometre (about 3,200-to-9,800-feet) radius. Two Chinese men detained in February 2025 were accused of using the same device while driving near sensitive government and military locations in Manila.

THE Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean) appealed for an immediate cessation of hostilities in the Middle East and called all parties concerned to exercise utmost self-restraint and to respect international law. The Asean said it has been monitoring the situation in the Middle East and expressed serious concern over the escalation of the conflict following the attacks initiated by Israel and the United States against Iran on Feb. 28. They expressed similar concerns over Iran's retaliatory attacks against Bahrain, Jordan, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, Syrian and the United Arab Emirates (UAE) — some of which host US military bases. In a joint statement on Wednesday, the Asean foreign ministers urged concerned parties to “avoid any acts that may further aggravate the situation.” They raised the need to “resolve differences through diplomacy and dialogue in the interest of maintaining peace and stability in the region.” The Asean, which includes the Philippines, said the escalating war in the Middle East poses a grave threat to the lives and safety of civilians, as well as to regional and global peace and stability.” “We also reemphasize the shared commitment to provide emergency assistance to Asean nationals, especially during this time,” they said. There are over 2.4 million Filipinos in the Middle East. This figure is broken down as follows: 973,000 in the UAE; 813,000 in Saudi Arabia; 250,000 in Qatar; 211,000 in Kuwait; 56,000 in Bahrain; 49,000 in Oman; 41,600 in Jordan (including Palestine); 31,000 in Israel; 14,000 in Lebanon; 1,600 in Iraq; 800 in Iran; and 700 in Syria. “This escalation [of hostilities] is particularly regrettable as it occurred amid ongoing diplomatic efforts, including mediation initiatives led by Oman aimed at advancing a negotiated solution,” the Asean leaders said. “We reaffirm the obligation of all states to resolve their differences through peaceful means and to respect the sovereignty and territorial integrity of all nations, in line with international law, including the UN Charter,” they added. The Asean reiterated the obligations of governments to protect civilians and civilian infrastructures in armed conflicts consistent with international law and relevant UN Security Council resolutions. “We call on all countries to respect international law, including the United Nations Charter,” they added.

MANILA, Philippines — Malacañang on Thursday said that nearly 300 Filipinos who were stranded in the Middle East have returned to the Philippines. Presidential Communications Secretary Dave Gomez said the first flight carrying repatriated Filipinos — Emirates EK336 from Dubai (DXB) to Manila (MNL) — arrived at the Ninoy Aquino International Airport Terminal 3 at 6:45 a.m. Gomez said the passenger manifest included a mix of repatriated Filipinos and other affected travelers seeking to return home. Migrant Workers Secretary Hans Leo Cacdac led government officials in welcoming 299 repatriates, including infants and children, upon their arrival, Gomez said. The flight departed at 9:55 p.m. Philippine time brought home overseas workers, tourists, and other travelers who were stranded as the fighting erupted following an Israeli-US attack on Iran.

- Ex-lawmaker, lawyer, 18 former Marines face criminal, cyberlibel raps over multibillion peso cash deliveries (2026-03-05 00:44)

(UPDATE) MANILA, Philippines — A former lawmaker, lawyer and 18 ex-Marines are facing criminal and cyberlibel charges before the Department of Justice (DOJ) for linking some individuals to alleged multibillion peso cash deliveries to government officials and the International Criminal Court (ICC) contained in pieces of luggage. National Security Adviser Eduardo Año filed criminal charges against former representative Mike Defensor, lawyer Levi

Baligod, and the 18 former Marines over what he described were “malicious imputations” and fabricated allegations on the alleged paper bag money exchange. The respondents were charged by Año with unlawful means of publication and unlawful utterances before the DOJ on Wednesday. Año said that the filing of charges marked only the first legal action he intended to pursue against those he believed orchestrated the accusations. “I was really surprised. And of course you can say I am really mad with their malicious imputations. Never in my life would I do that. That’s why I’m going after them. This is just the first case,” he said. Año also denied allegations that he received money through paper bags, stressing that such accusations run contrary to his decades of service in the military and government. “Meanwhile, former senator Antonio Trillanes IV on Thursday filed criminal complaints against Baligod, 18 former marines, and several pro-Duterte personalities for cyberlibel, perjury, and incriminating an innocent person in connection with the same cash deliveries. The 26-page complaint-affidavit was filed before the DOJ targeting Baligod and the 18 self-confessed former security aides of resigned AKO Bikol party-list representative Zaldy Co, who claimed in a press conference last month to have delivered billions in cash to President Ferdinand Marcos Jr., lawmakers, and even Trillanes himself. Also named respondents were former government official Lorraine Badoy-Partosa, vlogger Cathy Binag, Defensor, and veteran broadcaster Jay Sonza for their social media posts amplifying the allegations. At the center of the complaint is the Feb. 24, 2026 press conference organized by Baligod at Club Filipino in San Juan, where the 18 self-described former marines detailed their alleged firsthand knowledge of “maleta” or luggage deliveries containing P805 billion in cash to various officials. Baligod specifically claimed that Trillanes received $2 million to fund and facilitate the ICC investigation into former president Rodrigo Duterte’s war on drugs. “Instead of doing his job as a lawyer, by helping his clients to prepare their pleading and assisting them in filing a case or presenting the same before the appropriate forum, however, Atty. Baligod gleefully turned himself into a character assassin,” Trillanes said in his complaint. The former senator argued that the timing of the press conference — held on the eve of the Edsa People Power anniversary and during the second day of ICC hearings for the confirmation of charges against Duterte — was deliberately malicious and designed to undermine the integrity of the international proceedings. Trillanes maintained that his involvement with the ICC case against Duterte, which dates back to 2017, was driven by moral conviction and not monetary gain. He cited a statement from the ICC Office of the Prosecutor clarifying that all investigation costs are covered by the court’s approved budget and managed independently. “The filing of the ICC case was done out of my moral and professional conviction and duty as elected representative of the people. I was not motivated by money then to file the case against the most powerful man in the country before the ICC,” Trillanes stressed. The complaint also highlighted social media posts from Badoy, Binag, Defensor, and Sonza that allegedly helped spread the defamatory statements. Badoy’s posts referred to Trillanes as “Trilling” and a “most rotten dirty scoundrel,” while Binag questioned his sources of income. Defensor broadcast the press conference live on Facebook, and Sonza shared detailed summaries of the allegations to his nearly 400,000 followers. Trillanes invoked a Supreme Court ruling in Domingo v. Badoy-Partosa, which held that online content creators with large followings should be held to the same standard as journalists and can be penalized for recklessly publishing falsehoods. For the 18 ex-marines, Trillanes is pressing perjury charges, arguing that their notarized joint affidavit contained deliberate falsehoods. He pointed to inconsistencies in their statements, including admissions during a "Kapuso Mo, Jessica Soho" interview that they did not personally witness the alleged money transfer to him. "These hearsays and blatant inconsistencies on whether or not the affiants actually and personally saw the transfer of the alleged 'maleta' containing $2 million to me betray the lies and fabrications necessarily invented to launch and sustain this smear campaign," Trillanes said. Baligod, meanwhile, faces an additional charge of incriminating an innocent person under Article 363 of the Revised Penal Code. Trillanes noted that Baligod later contradicted himself in media interviews, first claiming Trillanes received the funds, then denying the ex-senator was directly given money, and even accusing Trillanes of kidnapping in connection with Duterte's eventual detention in The Hague. Trillanes argued that since he was no longer a public officer, crimes like bribery or corruption of public officials could not apply to him, making Baligod's imputations a clear violation of the law. The complainant urged the Justice Department to find probable cause against all respondents and file the appropriate informations in court. "After his fifteen minutes of fame, he must be held to account for his clear transgression of the law, together with all his cohorts, who provided him moral comfort and material aid, and connived with him in publicizing his tall tale of lies," Trillanes said.

MANILA, Philippines — The House of Representatives has authorized its Committee on Ethics and Privileges to assess the "inappropriate" statements by Quezon City 4th District Rep. Jesus Manuel Suntay on actress Anne Curtis which he made during a hearing on the impeachment charges against Vice President Sara Duterte. Laguna 1st District Rep. Ann Matibag, chairman of the Committee on Women and Gender Equality, asked that the matter be referred to the House Committee on Ethics and Privileges. Suntay later spoke at the plenary, saying in Filipino and English, "I have already explained and I respect the feelings of my colleagues here but I repeat, during the hearings, I was arguing on principles that lawyers and legislators should know" which was that a person "cannot be held liable for mere thoughts, imaginations, or associations without an overt act." "But like I said, the analogy might have been in bad taste and were taken in the wrong context. [...] But like I said, and I have repeated many times, there was no malice intended and if there was malice deduced [...], I wish to apologize to those affected and hurt", he said. Suntay said in a radio interview earlier on Wednesday that "it was an imaginary situation. It was a fictitious situation. I have not even seen Anne Curtis in person but I have seen her on TV." He said when he spoke at the plenary on Wednesday evening, "My record on women's welfare is real. The gender and development code and the "Bawal Bastos Ordinance" which I authored in Quezon City were not small achievements." He said further on that "we should look at the person by his actions and not mere statements. I think there is no perfect person here." San Juan Rep. Ysabel Zamora moved to refer Matibag's speech to the House Committee on Ethics and Privileges "for its appropriate action." There was no objection and her motion was approved. Zamora then moved to authorize the House Committee on Ethics and Privileges to schedule a meeting to "conduct a thorough assessment on the actuations and statements of" Suintay "relative to the question of privilege of" Matibag. There was no objection and the motion was approved.

- Marcos open to studying 4-day workweek proposal, says Palace* (2026-03-04 17:07)

MANILA, Philippines – President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. is open to studying the proposed four-day workweek as a mitigating measure should oil prices in the world market continue to surge and hostilities in the Middle East take longer to resolve. The idea was floated by Sen. Sherwin Gatchalian who said cutting the number of working days or expanding the work-from-home setup could help cushion the effect of high fuel prices. “That suggestion could be suggested by the president, especially if the Israel-Iran issue would worsen. But for now, that isn’t being talked about yet,” Presidential Communications Office (PCO) Undersecretary Claire Castro said in Filipino in a press conference on Wednesday. Flexible work arrangements for government workers are authorized under Civil Service Commission (CSC) Memorandum Circular 6, series of 2022. For those in the private sector, alternative work arrangements are recognized as stated in Republic Act 11165, or the Telecommuting Act. Marcos earlier this week urged the public to brace for the impact of the conflict in the Middle East which is seen to trigger huge spikes in the prices of oil and its by-products. “But despite this, President Marcos Jr. maintained there is sufficient supply of oil and crude oil in the country which is expected to last from 50 to 60 days. The government is also prepared in case tensions worsen and the price of oil reaches 80 dollars per barrel,” Castro said.

MANILA, Philippines — The Commission on Human Rights (CHR) has announced that it partnered with the Supreme Court through a memorandum of understanding (MOU) which would see the implementation of the Unified Legal Aid Service (ULAS) aimed at ensuring adequate and timely legal assistance for indigent, disadvantaged, and vulnerable Filipinos. CHR Chairman Richard Palpal-latoc told The Manila Times that the collaboration was formalized during the high court’s launching of Phase 1 of the ULAS Portal on March 3, 2026 wherein the National Anti-Poverty Commission, National Commission on Indigenous Peoples, and the Presidential Commission for the Urban Poor were also MOU signatories. ULAS, according to CHR, serves as a centralized digital platform enabling covered lawyers to comply with mandatory pro bono (free or without charge) legal aid obligations while expanding nationwide access to free legal services. Palpal-latoc cited the importance of the partnership, particularly for disadvantaged and vulnerable sectors. “Access to justice is a cornerstone of human dignity, and institutions must work together to dismantle barriers that prevent individuals from asserting their rights. May our shared work continue to bring the promise of justice closer to every Filipino,” the top CHR official said. The CHR, grounded in its constitutional mandate to provide legal aid and preventive measures to individuals whose rights have been violated or require protection, recognizes ULAS as a vital mechanism that strengthens collective efforts to guarantee access to justice, Palpal-latoc said.

In a statement posted on its Facebook page, PNP Chief Jose Melencio Nartatez Jr. was quoted as saying the social media posts have no basis and did not come from any authorized government agency. “At present, there is no verified security threat that would warrant such an advisory. The PNP remains in close coordination with concerned agencies to ensure public safety and maintain peace and order,” the PNP said. “We urge the public to remain calm and rely only on announcements released through official government channels. The deliberate spread of false information that causes unnecessary alarm is addressed under existing laws and will be dealt with accordingly,” it added. Also, the PNP said that its Anti-Cybercrime Group is “monitoring the source” of the misleading posts and will take action against those responsible. “We remind everyone to verify before sharing. - Marikina flood strategy cited as model for no-build zones, retention basins (2026-03-04 16:44)

MANILA, Philippines — Marikina City’s flood control approach may serve as a model for other local governments as the national government considers establishing no-build zones and water retention basins to reduce flood risks. Department of Public Works and Highways Secretary Vince Dizon made the remark during a visit to Marikina on Wednesday where he inspected flood control projects and met with Mayor Marjorie Ann “Maan” Teodoro and First District Rep. Marcelino “Marcy” Teodoro. Dizon said local governments needed to designate areas where construction would no longer be allowed while developing retention basins that could temporarily store floodwaters during heavy rains. “We need to establish no-build zones. Then we will build retention basins where water can go and be contained. We will build parks. That is important. Marikina has shown us that it is possible,” Dizon said. He added that Marikina’s long experience in dealing with flooding has produced practices that could guide other cities in strengthening their flood mitigation programs. “In fact, I invited the mayor and the engineer so we can show other local government units the best practices because Marikina has already learned from experience,” he said. During the visit, city officials also presented their integrated flood control strategy, which combined national infrastructure projects with local drainage and river management efforts. Rep. Teodoro said dredging of the Marikina River continued to deepen and widen parts of the channel to improve water velocity and increase the river’s capacity to carry floodwaters. He added that Marikina's drainage systems were designed so that runoff water from communities flowed directly toward the river through outfall channels, allowing floodwaters to exit the city more quickly. City officials also highlighted coordination between the Marikina local government and the Wawa Dam Authority to manage gradual water releases upstream to prevent sudden surges in the Marikina River during heavy rains.

Also, the PNP said that its Anti-Cybercrime Group is "monitoring the source" of the misleading posts and will take action against those responsible. "We remind everyone to verify before sharing. Let us work together to prevent misinformation from disrupting public order," the PNP said.

- Pasig secures Oranbo health center site (2026-03-04 16:35)

THE Pasig City government has secured the legal use of the land where the Oranbo village hall and health center stand after signing a usufruct agreement with the Metropolitan Waterworks and Sewerage System (MWSS), Mayor Vico Sotto said. The agreement was signed on Wednesday, March 4, at the MWSS corporate office in Balara, Quezon City, allowing the Oranbo village government to continue occupying the MWSS-owned property where the village health center and the elevated "overpass" village hall are located. Sotto said he went to the MWSS office with Oranbo village chief Richie Pua to finalize the agreement that resolves a long-standing land concern involving the facilities. "For the information of residents of Oranbo: this morning I went to the MWSS Corporate Office in Balara, Quezon City, with Kap Richie Pua to sign a usufruct agreement so that your Barangay Hall on their land becomes legal," Sotto said. He said the arrangement ensures residents will no longer worry about losing their village hall and health center, noting that the facilities had been used by the village long before his administration. Sotto also announced Tuesday evening that the city government inaugurated a new village health center in San Jose village, costing P8.7 million. The project upgraded an existing 2013 building constructed during the term of Pasig Rep. Roman Romulo so it could comply with standards set by the Department of Health. City officials said the facility now includes consultation and treatment rooms, a minor surgical room, dental services, a medicine dispensing area, and counseling spaces for mental health and women and child protection programs. The San Jose facility has around 380 square meters of indoor floor area with about 250 square meters of surrounding open space, and features air-conditioning units, CCTV cameras, upgraded lighting, and improvements to the adjacent child development center.

- Security guard dies in Las Pinas village clash (2026-03-04 16:33)

MANILA, Philippines — A security guard in one of the subdivisions in Las Pinas died during a fight that broke out in the enforcement of a court order that involved a leadership dispute in its homeowners' association on Wednesday. This was confirmed by the Privilege Security and Investigation Agency Inc., employer of the guard whose identity has been withheld pending results of an ongoing investigation into the incident inside the BF Resort Village. “We confirm with deep sadness that a security guard lost his life during the recent enforcement incident at BF Resort Village,” the agency told The Manila Times. The agency said the guard lost his life during the chaotic standoff that erupted while sheriffs from the Human Settlements Adjudication Commission (HSAC) attempted to implement a writ of execution on the transfer of authority over all association assets and common areas from the incumbent board, led by Euan Rex Torralballa, to the one led by Jose Deo Aguinaldo under the BF Resort Village Talon Homeowners Association Inc. (BFRVTHAI). Quoting witnesses, Privilege Security claimed the sheriff ordered a group of men to forcibly open the premises despite an appeal from Torralballa for dialogue and peaceful negotiations. The agency added that the guard fell to the ground during the chaos and was stepped on by a rushing group that forced entry. It called for a full and impartial investigation into the circumstances surrounding the incident.

- Don't invoke sovereignty selectively, China told (2026-03-04 16:27)

SOVEREIGNTY must be upheld as a universal principle and not invoked selectively to suit geopolitical interests, national security expert and civic leader Jose Antonio Goitia said. Goitia made the statement on Wednesday following criticism by China against the United States for its recent military strikes on Iran, which Beijing said destabilized the international order and violated Tehran's sovereignty. A spokesman for China's defense ministry described Washington as a “war addict” and urged respect for Iran's territorial integrity while calling for dialogue to address the conflict. Goitia, however, said sovereignty remains a fundamental pillar of international relations, particularly for countries that depend on international law rather than military power to safeguard their rights. “Sovereignty is not a rhetorical device. It is a universal standard. If it is invoked as a principle, it must be honored everywhere,” he said in an interview. Goitia argued that if China insists on respecting Iran's sovereignty, it must also recognize the maritime rights of the Philippines in the West Philippine Sea which form part of the Philippines' exclusive economic zone as affirmed by the landmark ruling of the Permanent Court of Arbitration in 2016. He said despite the legally binding decision, Beijing has rejected the ruling and continued maritime activities in the disputed waters, including patrols by the China Coast Guard and encounters with Filipino vessels. Philippine authorities have reported incidents involving water cannon use, obstruction of resupply missions and hazardous maneuvers against boats operating within the country's recognized maritime zones. Goitia said the continued presence of Chinese vessels and infrastructure developments in contested areas indicate a consistent pattern of maritime pressure. “China’s expansionism is not reactive diplomacy. It is deliberate strategic revisionism, executed through incremental encroachment, sustained maritime pressure and calculated ambiguity,” he said. He added that strategic intent can often be discerned through repeated actions rather than formal declarations, citing the regular patrols and regulatory moves that gradually normalize foreign presence in disputed waters. Goitia said credibility in defending sovereignty depends on consistency. “True authority is earned through consistency. A nation cannot defend sovereignty in distant conflicts while undermining the lawful maritime rights of its neighbors,” he said. He stressed that the issue should not be viewed as a matter of aligning with one global power over another but as a question of respecting established international rules. “The Philippines does not seek confrontation. It seeks adherence to established rules. Economic influence does not supersede legal obligation. Diplomatic statements do not outweigh conduct,” he said.

- Strengthening Social Protection: Cambodia Studies Philippine Legal Frameworks (2026-03-04 16:16)

THE Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) on Tuesday welcomed officials from the Royal Government of Cambodia for a study tour on the Philippines’ legal and institutional frameworks for strengthening the social service workforce. “On behalf of the Department of Social Welfare and Development, we would like to express our deepest and heartfelt gratitude to the Royal Government of Cambodia, through the Ministry of Social Affairs, Veterans, and Youth Rehabilitation, for visiting the department to learn and gain insights on various social protection programs and services of the agency,” said Edmon Monteverde, the DSWD assistant secretary for Promotive Programs. The educational activity, facilitated by the DSWD Academy at the Katapatan Conference Room of the DSWD Central Office, featured presentations from the agency’s Policy Development and Planning Bureau, the Professional Regulation Commission-Professional Regulatory Board, and the Commission on Higher Education. The discussion outlined the country’s systems on professional standards, licensing, accreditation, and workforce management for social workers. It also highlighted child protection case management mechanisms and other reforms that Cambodia is currently enhancing as part of its social service development. Monteverde said such activities among Asean member-states contribute to stronger regional responses to poverty and the needs of vulnerable sectors. “The learning visit is timely as the Philippines assumes its chairmanship of Asean 2026, wherein the DSWD takes a leading role in the Asean Socio-Cultural Community Pillar, championing community empowerment and people-centered initiatives,” he added. Cambodian Secretary of State Toch Channy expressed appreciation for the opportunity to study the Philippine model, describing the visit as both ideal and timely for Cambodia’s ongoing reforms. An open forum concluded the session, allowing representatives from both delegations and partner institutions, including Unicef Philippines and Unicef Cambodia, to exchange insights on advancing social protection systems in the region.

- Marcos Fast-Tracks Agriculture Cooperatives Act to Boost Food Security (2026-03-04 16:14)

PRESIDENT Ferdinand Marcos Jr. said he is ready to certify as urgent the proposed Agriculture Cooperatives Act of 2025 to strengthen support for Filipino farmers and fisherfolk. The Presidential Communications Office (PCO) said Marcos expressed his readiness to certify the bill during a meeting with Senate Committee on Agriculture, Food, and Agrarian Reform Chairman Francis Pangilinan and other agriculture stakeholders on Tuesday. "President Ferdinand R. Marcos Jr. expressed readiness to certify the Agriculture Cooperatives Act of 2025 as urgent to expedite its implementation," the PCO said in a social media post. The PCO said the Marcos administration is also studying proposals to amend the Rice Tariffication Law (RTL), which aimed to liberalize rice importation. "The goal is to secure approval of the measures as soon as possible," it added. The proposed Agriculture Cooperatives Act of 2025 seeks to strengthen agricultural cooperatives as key partners for national food security and rural development. The measure aims to improve productivity and profitability in the agriculture sector by promoting stronger farmer organizations that can collectively purchase inputs, process agricultural products, and negotiate better prices in the market. It is part of a broader package of proposed reforms that includes the Agricom Act and the Agriculture and Fisheries Extension Act. The reforms aim to raise farmers' incomes and improve agricultural services while enhancing support systems for producers across the country. On the other hand, the RTL, which was enacted in 2019, empowers the president to halt imports under specific conditions. The RTL, or Republic Act 11203, liberalized rice imports by replacing quantitative restrictions with tariffs and established the Rice Competitiveness Enhancement Fund to support farmers through mechanization, seeds, credit and training. The Palace said Tuesday's meeting was attended by the president, Pangilinan, Agriculture Secretary Francisco Tiu Laurel Jr., Executive Secretary Ralph Recto, and National Economic and Development Authority Secretary Arsenio Balisacan.

- Over 2K benefit from medical services on 64th Caloocan cityhood anniversary (2026-03-04 16:11)

MORE than 2,000 Caloocan residents availed themselves of free medical services provided by the city's public hospitals during the celebration of the 64th Cityhood Anniversary. Mayor Dave Gonzalo Malapitan hailed the project initiated by the City Health Department (CHD) in collaboration with the Caloocan City Medical Center (CCMC) and Caloocan City North Medical Center (CCNMC). While the CCMC and CCNMC held their weeklong initiatives, the CHD conducted its own One-Stop Shop Community-Based Health Services at local health centers across the city, according to the mayor. According to the CHD, various medical and health services were provided, including free X-rays and breast ultrasounds, dental and ophthalmology services, and even free electromagnetic cardiogram (ECG) and bone scans. Malapitan reiterated his gratitude to the city hospitals and CHD for adhering to the local administration's priority on health care. He cited the local government's continuing commitment to make medical programs even more accessible to the public, especially in remote communities and villages in the city. Public health services, including prenatal care, youth immunization, and medical and dental consultations, remain free and accessible at the city's community health centers, according to CHD.

- VP Sara's impeachment case moves forward (2026-03-04 16:11)

THE House Committee on Justice agreed overwhelmingly on Wednesday to advance the impeachment case against Vice President Sara Duterte, setting the stage for a potential vote that could decide her political future. The daughter of former president Rodrigo Duterte, who in February announced a 2028 presidential bid, was impeached last year, only for the Supreme Court to toss the case out over procedural issues. Under the Constitution, an impeachment by the House of Representatives triggers a Senate trial, where a guilty verdict would ban Duterte from elected office for life. Two new complaints, ruled “sufficient in substance” by a vote of 54-1 on Wednesday, accuse her of graft and corruption while in office and of making a death threat against former ally President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. She will now have 10 days to respond before the start of a hearing of probable cause necessary to move the complaints to a House vote. “Our vote today is not a verdict of guilt nor an act of condemnation. It’s simply a decision on whether the constitutional process should move forward,” Rep. Ferdinand Hernandez said minutes before the vote. The vice president’s legal team said Wednesday they would not comment on specific allegations. “For now, we will refrain from discussing the substance of the case in the media and will instead address these matters through the proper constitutional processes,” lawyer Michael Poa said in a statement. The alleged death threat against Marcos stems from a late-night press briefing in which she claimed to have hired an assassin to kill the president and members of his family should he have her cut down first. Analysts have warned that Duterte’s presidential announcement will weigh heavily on lawmakers forced to gauge the repercussions of a vote against someone who may yet hold the country’s highest office. While she later said the comments were misinterpreted, lawmaker Gerville Luistro said Wednesday that the alleged threats could destabilize institutions. “They carry weight. They create fear,” she said. Duterte and Marcos have been engaged in a high-stakes political brawl that erupted within weeks of their 2022 win in the presidential election, when the vice president was denied her favored Cabinet portfolios and instead named education secretary. The justice committee last month tossed out a pair of impeachment complaints against Marcos, ruling that allegations of corruption over a scandal involving bogus flood control projects lacked substance. Although four complaints were endorsed to the committee, only two — one filed by priests and others, and the other filed by lawyer Nathaniel Cabrera — were found to be sufficient in both form and substance. Batangas 2nd District Rep. Gerville Luistro, the committee chairman, said in a press conference on Wednesday the complainant must be provided Duterte’s answer to the charges, then given three calendar days to respond. Thereafter, she will have another three calendar days to file her rejoinder. The panel, he said, would also be ready to accept submitted evidence. “When all this evidence and documents are gathered... and all these responsive pleadings are received, then that is the time for us to determine whether there is sufficient ground” to support the complaint, she said. “And if the decision of the justice committee is in the affirmative, that’s the only time that we will be proceeding to the hearing proper,” she said. Luistro said that if Duterte does not file an answer, it would be “considered as a denial of all the allegations” in the complaint, and the committee “will simply proceed to hearing these impeachment complaints.” In a press conference on Tuesday, Luistro said the hearing proper would be held after the Holy Week because they needed to provide time for responsive pleadings. While the actual hearing has yet to begin, Akbayan Rep. Percival Cendaña said “there will be more than the necessary number to impeach the VP.” “If the weight of the allegations and evidence is looked at, our Constitution is pointing toward only one recourse, there is only one logical action that Congress should take — impeach the vice president,” he said. Four impeachment complaints were filed last month against Duterte. The House committee set the first one filed aside, finding that it violated the rule against initiating impeachment proceedings against the same official more than once within a one-year period. The second one was withdrawn by the 17 people who filed it. The third impeachment complaint filed by priests and others alleged, among others, that Duterte committed culpable violation of the Constitution and betrayed public trust in connection with confidential funds allocated to the Office of the Vice President (OVP) for 2022 and 2023, and confidential funds allocated for 2023 to the Department of Education (DepEd) which Duterte led as secretary before she resigned in 2024 from that post. Meanwhile, Cabrera alleged that Duterte “betrayed the public trust and committed acts of graft and corruption by grossly abusing discretionary authority over confidential funds appropriated to the” OVP and DepEd. Duterte’s defense team said they will “carefully review” the decision of the House Justice Committee that the third and fourth impeachment complaints were “sufficient in substance.” “At this stage, the vice president’s legal team will carefully review the actions taken by the House and the Committee, as well as the records of the proceedings,” Poa, defense panel spokesman, said. Meanwhile, Davao City Rep. Paolo Duterte said the development “did not come as a surprise” to him, and noted that it exposed how “certain forces in Congress are willing to weaponize impeachment for political ends rather than uphold fairness and justice.” He commended Quezon City Rep. Bong Suintay for being the lone vote against finding the complaints sufficient in substance. He also reminded the 54 others who voted in favor of pushing the complaint forward that “political power is temporary, but accountability to the Filipino people is permanent.” “You may have the numbers today, but history has a way of judging those who abuse their authority,” he added.

- Sara files perjury charges vs alleged bagman (2026-03-04 16:10)

VICE President Sara Duterte filed perjury charges against self-confessed security consultant and bagman Ramil Madriaga on Wednesday. She filed the case at the Taguig City Prosecutor’s Office accompanied by her lawyer, Salvador Paolo Panelo Jr. In a statement, Duterte said that Madriaga is an “accused individual in a kidnapping case who posed as a campaign supporter and, from there, suddenly emerged as a supposed witness in the impeachment against me.” She said Madriaga is being used in the same way the International Criminal Court used “fabricated” testimonies from Arturo Lascañas and Edgar Matobato, which were used against her father, former president Rodrigo Duterte. “Because of this, today I have filed a perjury case against Ramil Madriaga to finally hold him accountable for his lies. We cannot allow invented stories to be used to deceive the public,” Duterte said. Madriaga claimed that he was a supporter of Duterte who received campaign funds from Philippine offshore gaming operations and drug money, as well as confidential funds from two former Vice Presidential Security and Protection Group leaders. In an earlier statement, Duterte said that Madriaga's revelations were part of efforts to derail her 2028 presidential bid, which she announced last month. "I have never visited him in prison, nor have I spoken to him about anything at any time," Duterte said. She also said that the photographs he submitted as proof are "unrelated images taken during public events where I was present." "These images do not support his allegations and merely show that he was present as part of an election campaign group," she said. She also said Madriaga appears to be acting "out of desperation to secure his release from detention."

- Suntay draws firestorm of criticism for remarks about Anne Curtis (2026-03-04 16:09)

THE Quezon City congressman who made sexually suggestive references to the actress Anne Curtis to make a point came under a firestorm of criticism on Wednesday for his "repulsive" remarks, but insisted "there was nothing malicious" in his statements. In a radio interview, Quezon City 4th District Rep. Bong Suntay apologized to those who found his statement offensive but said it was not his intention to offend anyone. "My intention was to drive a point," Suntay said in Filipino and English in an interview on radio DZMM. In a session on Tuesday, Suntay defended Vice President Sara Duterte, who said she imagined killing President Ferdinand Marcos Jr., likening that to a situation in which he saw the actress Anne Curtis and imagined, in his desire, what might happen. "But of course, it was just my imagination. Maybe I cannot be sued because I imagined various things," he said in Filipino. "It was an imaginary situation," Suntay said in his radio interview. "It was a fictitious situation. I have not even seen Anne Curtis in person but I have seen her on TV." Suntay's critics, however, were not appeased. Sen. Risa Hontiveros on Wednesday said Suntay should apologize and make the necessary amends to Anne Curtis for his inappropriate remarks. "There is absolutely no excuse for his repulsive remarks," Hontiveros. "Worse, he insists that there was nothing wrong with what he said," the senator said in a statement in Filipino. Members of the House Committee on Justice on Tuesday called out Suntay for verbalizing his apparent desire for Curtis during the proceedings on the pending impeachment complaints against Vice President Sara Duterte. Suntay said he "imagined something" upon seeing Curtis in a hotel. Hontiveros said Suntay must be reminded that under the Bawal Bastos Law, which she authored, "gender-based harassment is punishable." "Statements of sexual comments and suggestions can be penalized. As a lawmaker, he should know this. More importantly, he is duty-bound to uphold it," she said. "As we celebrate Women's Month, this incident is a reminder that advancing women's dignity and basic respect is continuous work; work that must be asserted, defended and reaffirmed, again and again," she said. "We must not normalize lewd behavior. We must continue to defend women," Hontiveros added. The Philippine Commission on Women (PCW) and other women's rights groups on Wednesday condemned the sexist remarks, saying that his comment violates the law and ethical standards for public officials. In a statement, the PCW said Suntay's statement is not only offensive but also violates existing laws, such as Republic Act (RA) 11313, or the Safe Spaces Act, and RA 9710, or the Magna Carta of Women. “The statement bears the hallmarks of gender-based sexual harassment as defined under Republic Act 11313. And when it comes from a public official, it is a serious betrayal of public trust and a violation of the law,” the commission said. Meanwhile, Gabriela Women’s Party Rep. Sarah Elago told The Manila Times that Congress must institutionalize steps to promote gender-sensitive practices and prohibit gender-based sexual harassment. She added that Congress should also strengthen the existing Safe Spaces Act to cover public office and impose stronger penalties for those who violate them. The PCW and Gabriela Women’s Party demanded that Suntay issue a public apology, stressing that his comments were not just “jokes” or “casual banter.” “Silence or inaction from those in oversight positions would be tantamount to complicity in the normalization of harassment,” the PCW said. Quezon City Mayor Joy Belmonte expressed disappointment as she demanded Suntay to apologize publicly over his “inappropriate remarks.” “But what makes this incident especially troubling is the fact that, as a former member of our city council, he (Suntay) was part of the body that passed our Gender and Development Code,” Belmonte said in a statement emailed to The Manila Times. Moreover, she said Suntay was the council’s majority floor leader when the “Bawal Bastos Ordinance,” which declares that lewd, malicious, and demeaning remarks and acts have no place in public life, was passed and approved. Iloilo City Mayor Raisa Treñas denounced the Suntay’s remarks, calling them unacceptable and out of place. “As a woman and as mayor of Iloilo City, I cannot stay silent,” Treñas said in a statement condemning the congressman’s comments delivered during a House Committee on Justice hearing on Tuesday. Treñas said such statements have no place in public discourse, particularly when uttered by a lawmaker and especially during Women’s Month. “When a public official speaks, their words carry weight. Casual objectification, whether disguised as imagination or humor, demeans women and erodes the very culture of respect and equality that we are working so hard to build,” she said.

- House OKs bill mandating financial literacy course (2026-03-04 16:08)

THE House of Representatives on Tuesday approved a bill seeking to require higher education institutions to have a personal financial literacy course (PFLC) in their curricula. With 251 lawmakers voting for its passage, House Bill 7628 hurdled its third and final reading during the plenary session on Tuesday. The bill also mandates the inclusion of a PFLC in the curricula of technical-vocational institutions, as well as Technical Education and Skills Development Authority (Tesda) training centers. “Financial literacy is life literacy. When students understand savings, credit, and risk early, they protect themselves and their families as they step into adult responsibilities,” the bill’s authors said. The bill states the PFLC shall include the concept of personal finance; time value of money; “[c]onsumer behavior in the context and culture of the Philippines”; debt management and rehabilitation; savings, emergency, and resilience fund development; investment concepts and planning; retirement planning; insurance planning; credit scoring and credit reports; concept of financial education; “[p]ertinent topics on effective utilization of digital payment platforms, such as modules on observing cyber-hygiene to help safeguard cybersecurity, data integrity, and consumer protection in adopting digital financial services”; and “[o]ther financial literacy issues and concerns.” The bill mandates the Commission on Higher Education and Tesda to collaborate with the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas, Department of Finance, Securities and Exchange Commission, and Insurance Commission "in developing academic standards, curricula, and materials for the PFLC."

- PCO creates Anti-Fake News Desk (2026-03-04 16:08)

THE Presidential Communications Office (PCO) announced on Wednesday the creation of an Anti-Fake News Desk aimed at giving the government's campaign against disinformation and misinformation more teeth, and holding accountable purveyors of so-called fake news. PCO Secretary Dave Gomez made the announcement during the agency's ceremonial signing of a memorandum of understanding with media outlets held at the Presidential Broadcast Service Studio in Malacañang. The Anti-Fake News Desk is a dedicated mechanism where citizens can report suspicious or misleading content. "We will immediately evaluate these reports and refer them to the appropriate agencies, such as the Department of Information and Communications Technology and the Department of Justice, among others, for prompt and proper action," Gomez said. "Beyond monitoring, the PCO will actively go after those who deliberately peddle fake news and disinformation on social media platforms. We will engage and collaborate with platforms such as Meta and Google, seeking their cooperation and assistance in addressing coordinated disinformation campaigns and ensuring accountability in the digital space," he added. Apart from this endeavor, the PCO also tapped the nine leading newspaper publishers — The Manila Times, Manila Bulletin, Philippine Star, Inquirer, Manila Standard, Malaya Business Insight, Business Mirror, Business World and Daily Tribune — to ensure the public gets only vetted and reliable information. The parties committed to upholding accurate, verified and responsible reporting while maintaining full respect for press freedom and editorial independence. As stated in the memorandum of understanding, "fake news" is defined as having "no factual basis or is materially misleading but is presented as truthful; is deliberately created or shared to deceive, and is capable of causing identifiable public harm such as panic, violence, reputational damage or interference in democratic processes." "Disinformation thrives in darkness — in confusion, in distortion, in deliberate deceit. But truth has always been like daylight. And just as a magnifying glass focuses sunlight to reveal what is hidden, this collaboration concentrates the light of verified information, sharpening clarity and exposing falsehoods. In shining that light, we dispel the shadows where fake news attempts to hide," Gomez said. Among the agreement's key objectives are enhancing the dissemination of verified information, strengthening public trust in credible media institutions, promoting media and information literacy, and enabling coordinated and rapid responses to disinformation during crises, emergencies and disasters. By forging an agreement with the "nation's most credible and respected news organizations," Gomez vowed "to open communication channels for verifying social media claims, exercising prudence to curb the spread of fabricated content." "And we will join forces on media literacy initiatives, empowering Filipinos to discern fact from fiction," he said. Representing and signing in behalf of their respective publications were Anna Marie Ang-Thompson, chief executive officer, The Manila Times; Herminio Coloma Jr., publisher, Manila Bulletin; Rolando Estabillo, publisher, Manila Standard;

Paolo Prieto, president and chief executive officer, Philippine Daily Inquirer; Teresa Mendoza, senior vice president, The Philippine Star; T. Anthony Cabangon, publisher, Business Mirror; Arjay Balinbin, associate editor, Business World; Luisito Lozada, executive editor, Daily Tribune; and Allen A. Macasaet, publisher and chairman, Malaya Business Insight. Ang-Thompson pledged The Manila Times' "logistical might to ensure that the public will have a beacon of verified, actionable and life-saving information" that the public can trust. "We all share a common reality: our ink is only as strong as the public's trust in it," she said. "May this cooperation serve the people by ensuring that facts remain the foundation of our national conversation," she added.

- Excise tax bill to be certified as urgent (2026-03-04 16:07)

MALACAÑANG on Wednesday said President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. will certify as urgent a proposed measure seeking a new authority to reduce excise tax on fuel products, describing it as "timely" as war spreads in the Middle East. Palace Press Officer Claire Castro said Marcos cannot suspend the imposition of mandatory excise taxes on all oil and fuel products unless Congress passes a new law. "We were told that the lifting or suspension of the excise tax applied only from 2018 to 2020," Castro said during a press conference. "So, at present, it is no longer in effect, which is why the president wants a new law that would give him the authority to reduce the excise tax," she added. Under Republic Act (RA) 10963, or the Tax Reform for Acceleration and Inclusion Law, excise taxes on petroleum products were implemented in three tranches from Jan. 1, 2018 to Jan. 1, 2020. RA 10964 also provides for the automatic suspension of the excise tax increase if the average Dubai crude oil price reaches or exceeds $80 per barrel for three months. On Tuesday, Marcos said he would talk to leaders of Congress about granting him the power to reduce excise taxes on fuel products once the price of Dubai crude hits $80 a barrel. No details are provided on the amount of the reduction in excise taxes or how long it would be in effect. "I will discuss it with the leadership of Congress to see if it is going to be an emergency measure," the president said during a press conference in Malacañang. "It is not going to be a permanent measure. It will be something that we will dispose of as soon as the crisis is over," he added. Meanwhile, Castro said the economic managers would determine the possible rates of the proposed oil excise tax cut should Marcos exercise his emergency powers. "Nothing was discussed yesterday. And he will listen to the economic team on what the best reduction rate would be," Castro said. The Palace official also echoed Marcos' assurance that the excise tax cut proposal would only be temporary. The proposal for emergency powers was among the Marcos administration's moves to cushion the potential impact of the ongoing Middle East war on the country's energy sector and economy. The president also directed the Department of Energy to coordinate with oil companies to ensure that the price increases they would implement were implemented in a staggered manner. The government also plans to provide "targeted" fuel subsidies for the transport — including drivers of public utility vehicles — and agriculture sectors, including farmers and fisherfolk," Marcos said. "Hopefully, before the four to five weeks, the level of intensity of the fighting will come down. In other words, that commerce will proceed in a more or less normal way, number one, and secondly, that oil production will start to normalize,” he added.

- Philippines Targets Global Supply Chain with Critical Minerals Drive at PDAC 2026 (2026-03-04 16:06)

PHILIPPINE Ambassador to Canada Jose Victor Chan-Gonzaga said the country “is ready” to be a reliable source of critical minerals essential for the energy transition. The Philippines plays a vital role in global supply chains for clean energy, electric vehicles, and semiconductors with its substantial reserves of copper, nickel ore, cobalt, and other critical minerals. Chan-Gonzaga said the Philippines demonstrated this readiness during its first-ever participation in the Prospectors and Developers Association of Canada (PDAC) Convention 2026 in Toronto. PDAC is the world’s premier mineral exploration and mining convention that brings together the industry’s most important players and stakeholders, he said. He said that with its vast mineral reserves, the Philippines is “well-positioned to expand partnerships with international investors and industry leaders underpinned by a commitment to responsible resource development and sustainable growth.” “I view our high-level participation at PDAC 2026, including the first-ever Philippine country space, from the broader perspective of the strong and deep bilateral relations of the Philippines and Canada at this time,” Chan-Gonzaga said. The Philippine delegation will engage stakeholders throughout PDAC to tap opportunities in exploration, investment, innovation and sustainable mining practices. “This is yet another concrete manifestation of the deepening of our economic partnership [with Canada],” the ambassador said in a statement Wednesday. “As we negotiate a bilateral free trade agreement [with Canada] and engage more comprehensively in spaces like mineral exploration and mining, economic ties between our two countries can only further strengthen, to the benefit of our two peoples,” he added. Chan-Gonzaga led the Philippine delegation on Feb. 28 at the inauguration of the Philippines’ first-ever country space at the Metro Toronto Convention Center. He was joined by Trade and Industry Undersecretary Ceferino Rodolfo, Philippine Consul General in Toronto Kristine Leilani Salle, Department of Environment and Natural Resources Assistant Secretary Michael Cabalda, and representatives of the Philippine Nickel Industry Association and other mining companies. Nina Tangri, a member of Provincial Parliament for Mississauga-Streetsville and associate minister of small business, represented the Canadian government at the ribbon-cutting ceremony.

- Philippine Red Cross Partners with Plan International for Climate Resilience (2026-03-04 16:05)

THE Philippine Red Cross (PRC) on Wednesday called for stronger climate collaboration to enhance resilience in vulnerable communities. “Climate resilience requires systems coordination. Coordination is the key, but it remains a challenge. It requires policy alignment. It requires trust across institutions. And it requires sustained dialogue that moves us beyond silos,” PRC Secretary General Gwendolyn Pang said in her keynote address at the Climate Resilience Multi-Stakeholder Forum in Pasig. Pang highlighted the increasing unpredictability of weather systems and the intensifying effects of climate hazards, noting these have far-reaching impacts on public health, livelihoods and infrastructure. During the forum, the PRC, along with Plan International Pilipinas and the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (IFRC) Philippine country office, signed the country coordination mechanism aimed at strengthening community capacity through partnerships with the public and private sectors. Pang said the initiative with the Zurich Foundation initially focused on flood resilience programs but has since expanded to address rising heat levels. “Since there are more risks that we are experiencing, especially, for example, with the rise of the heat that we have experienced from recent years, we have shifted that to include climate resilience, climate in general, and a specific focus also on heat. So then, the goal here is to really help the communities with the mitigation and adaptation to climate risk and climate change,” Pang told The Manila Times. She stressed the need for communities in disaster-prone areas to understand the early warning signs. “They have to actually be the lead on the ground in terms of their own safety, their own preparedness,” she said. “For small enterprises, like small sari-sari stores, we can help them also to move to a safer place. The roofing of the house — we can also teach them and help them to reinforce that before they are devastated. It’s really about empowering the community, making them own it. Not just informing them, but really giving them the tools, giving them the capability to also help them address [it],” Pang added.

- Gatchalian Files Senate Bill 1921 to Overhaul Philippine Budgeting Code (2026-03-04 16:05)

SEN. Sherwin Gatchalian filed Senate Bill 1921 on Tuesday, the Philippine Budgeting Code, which aims to strengthen transparency, accountability and fiscal discipline in government spending. The proposed legislation seeks to consolidate and harmonize the various laws, executive issuances, and policy guidelines that currently govern Philippine budgeting and public financial management (PFM). In his explanatory note, Gatchalian emphasized that the country’s PFM framework remains fragmented, with rules and processes scattered across multiple statutes and executive orders. “For reforms to be preserved, they must be solidified through the enactment of laws,” Gatchalian said, stressing that codifying budgeting principles would “guarantee the perpetuation of reforms notwithstanding changes in administration.” The most comprehensive existing legal basis for PFM is Book VI of Executive Order 292, also known as the Administrative Code of 1987, which was enacted nearly four decades ago. Gatchalian noted that provisions in the annual General Appropriations Act often lack permanence, as general provisions may change yearly depending on the administration’s policy direction. This setup, he said, underscores the need for a stable and permanent legal framework governing budgeting processes. A study by the International Monetary Fund (IMF) pointed out that the Philippines’ PFM legal framework suffers from segmentation. The IMF flagged concerns over special accounts in the general fund and off-budget accounts, which are created by separate laws outside the regular budget process and may not always align with the overall fiscal framework. Similarly, the Asian Development Bank observed that regulatory and oversight functions in the Philippine PFM system are distributed among several government agencies, sometimes with overlapping mandates, resulting in weak integration.

Under the bill, which passed third and final reading with 250 votes, the study "shall cover not less than 50 percent of the mandatory Philippine History subject being offered under the general education curriculum in higher education courses of all higher education institutions (HEIs) in the country." - 28 BOC face criminal, administrative raps (2026-03-04 16:02)

THE Bureau of Customs (BOC) has confirmed that at least 28 of its employees are now the subject of criminal and administrative charges ranging from corruption to neglect of duty and conduct prejudicial to the best interest of service. Customs Commissioner Ariel Nepomuceno disclosed on Wednesday that the six cases recently endorsed to the Department of Finance (DOF) under the Anti-Agricultural Economic Sabotage Act include customs employees and three consignees for alleged involvement in large-scale agricultural smuggling, reinforcing the agency's serious and uncompromising stance against smuggling and internal misconduct. According to Nepomuceno, nine customs personnel were named in the draft complaint-affidavits for violation of Section 7 in relation to Section 14 of Republic Act (RA) 12022, or the Anti-Smuggling Act of 2016. The same people are being charged for violating Section 3 of Republic Act 3019, otherwise known as the Anti-Graft and Corrupt Practices Act. In addition, 19 personnel are the subjects of administrative cases for neglect of duty and conduct prejudicial to the best interest of the service, arising from the same investigation. According to Nepomuceno, the violations were uncovered following a comprehensive investigation into irregularities in the importation and processing of agricultural shipments at the Port of Subic, including suspected misdeclaration and unlawful facilitation of cargo clearance. In compliance with RA 12022, the BOC has transmitted the draft criminal complaints to the DOF for review and approval before filing the cases with the Department of Justice. Nepomuceno vowed to enforce customs laws without exception. "The BOC is doing everything pursuant to Customs laws and regulations to ensure that justice is served. Errant personnel who violate customs laws will not be tolerated, and all responsible individuals will face full accountability," he added. "These actions aim not only to punish violations but also to protect Filipino farmers, preserve fair market conditions, and safeguard the integrity of the country's borders and trade system," he further said. The move, Nepomuceno stressed, affirms the BOC's commitment to transparency, institutional integrity, and sustained enforcement against agricultural smuggling, ensuring that no one is spared in the fight against illicit trade.

- Comelec: Acop not disqualified (2026-03-04 16:01)

THE Commission on Elections (Comelec) has flagged as “fake news” a report on social media claiming that Bong Acop, son of the late Antipolo City Rep. Romeo Acop, has been disqualified from running in the upcoming special election scheduled for March 14. On Wednesday, the Comelec said that the social media post by VIS News Media alleging that the young Acop is disqualified for vote buying was untrue. “The circulating social media post by VIS News Media stating that Bong Acop is disqualified as a candidate for a member of the House of Representatives in the 2nd district of Antipolo City is fake news,” according to the poll body. The Comelec Law Department has confirmed it received an election complaint against Acop filed by an Antipolo City resident. It pointed out, though, that filing does not automatically disqualify a particular candidate in an election. “The complaint will still undergo a thorough study [before the Comelec en banc can come out with a ruling],” it said. The poll body has advised the public to verify any online information about the election from the Comelec’s social media accounts. It warned that spreading false information constitutes an election offense under the Omnibus Election Code. The Comelec called for a special election to fill the congressional seat in the 2nd district of Antipolo City, left vacant after Romeo Acop’s death. Aside from Acop, six other candidates are vying for the post, including incumbent Councilors Paulo Tapales (Independent) and LJ Sumulong (NPC), and independent candidates Maria Trinidad Cafirma, Dandin Infante, Reden Llaga, and Nathaniel Lobigas. Comelec Chairman George Erwin Garcia said the special election would be held manually. Thus, all those who filed their certificates of candidacy (COC) are automatically considered candidates for the congressional race. This means that they are prohibited from campaigning before Feb. 12, the start of the campaign period.

- Sovereignty cannot be applied selectively, says security expert (2026-03-04 06:51)

MANILA, Philippines — Sovereignty must be upheld as a universal principle and not invoked selectively to suit geopolitical interests, national security expert and civic leader Jose Antonio Goitia said, amid the ongoing crisis in the Middle East. Goitia made the statement on Wednesday following criticism by China against the United States for its recent military strikes on Iran, which Beijing said destabilized the international order and violated Tehran's sovereignty. A spokesman for China's defense ministry described Washington as a "war addict" and urged respect for Iran's territorial integrity while calling for dialogue to address the conflict. Goitia, however, said sovereignty remained a fundamental pillar of international relations, particularly for countries that depend on international law rather than military power to safeguard their rights. "Sovereignty is not a rhetorical device. It is a universal standard. If it is invoked as a principle, it must be honored everywhere," he said in an interview. Goitia argued that if China insisted on respecting Iran's sovereignty, it must also recognize the maritime rights of the Philippines in the West Philippine Sea. The waters form part of the Philippines' exclusive economic zone as affirmed by the landmark ruling of the Permanent Court of Arbitration in 2016, which invalidated China's sweeping "nine-dash line" claim in the South China Sea. Despite the legally binding decision, Beijing has rejected the ruling and continued maritime activities in the disputed waters, including patrols by the China Coast Guard and encounters with Filipino vessels. Philippine authorities have reported incidents involving water cannon use, obstruction of resupply missions, and hazardous maneuvers against boats operating within the country's recognized maritime zones. Goitia said the continued presence of Chinese vessels and infrastructure developments in contested areas indicated a consistent pattern of maritime pressure. "China's expansionism is not reactive diplomacy. It is deliberate strategic revisionism, executed through incremental encroachment, sustained maritime pressure, and calculated ambiguity," he said. He added that strategic intent can often be discerned through repeated actions rather than formal declarations, citing the regular patrols and regulatory moves that gradually normalize foreign presence in disputed waters. Goitia said credibility in defending sovereignty depended on consistency. "True authority is earned through consistency. A nation cannot defend sovereignty in distant conflicts while undermining the lawful maritime rights of its neighbors," he said. He stressed that the issue should not be viewed as a matter of aligning with one global power over another but as a question of respecting established international rules. "The Philippines does not seek confrontation. It seeks adherence to established rules. Economic influence does not supersede legal obligation. Diplomatic statements do not outweigh conduct," he said. Goitia also currently serves as chairman emeritus of several civic organizations, including Alyansa ng Bantay sa Kapayapaan at Demokrasya, People's Alliance for Democracy and Reforms, Liga Independencia Pilipinas, and the Filipinos Do Not Yield Movement.

The committee granted the motion to issue a notice to Duterte to file her answer to the impeachment complaints within 10 calendar days from receipt of notice.

- PCO, media executives sign MOU to boost fight against fake news (2026-03-04 05:43)

MANILA, Philippines — The Presidential Communications Office (PCO) on Wednesday signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) with leading newspaper companies to help ramp up its campaign against misinformation and disinformation. In a ceremony at the Presidential Broadcast Service (PBS) Studio in Malacañang, the ceremonial signing gathered officials of the PCO, led by Secretary Dave Gomez, and top management from The Manila Times, Manila Bulletin, Philippine Star, Philippine Daily Inquirer, Manila Standard, Malaya Business Insight, Business World, Business World, and Daily Tribune. “Disinformation thrives in darkness — in confusion, in distortion, in deliberate deceit. But truth has always been like daylight. And just as a magnifying glass focuses sunlight to reveal what is hidden, this collaboration concentrates the light of verified information, sharpening clarity and exposing falsehoods. In shining that light, we dispel the shadows where fake news attempts to hide,” Gomez said. Among the key objectives are enhancing the dissemination of verified information, strengthening public trust in credible media institutions, promoting media and information literacy, and enabling coordinated and rapid responses to disinformation during crises, emergencies, and disasters. By forging an agreement with the “nation’s most credible and respected news organizations,” Gomez vowed “to open communication channels for verifying social media claims, exercising prudence to curb the spread of fabricated content.” “And we will join forces on media literacy initiatives, empowering Filipinos to discern fact from fiction,” he said. For her part, The Manila Times CEO Anna Marie Ang-Thompson pledged the company’s “logistical might to ensure that the public will have a beacon of verified, actionable, and life-saving information” that the public can trust. “We all share a common reality: Our ink is only as strong as the public’s trust in it,” she said. “May this cooperation serve the people by ensuring that facts remain the foundation of our national conversation,” she added.

- Lawmaker apologizes 'to those who found his statement on Anne Curtis offensive' (2026-03-04 03:48)

MANILA, Philippines — Quezon City 4th District Rep. Jesus Manuel Suntay apologized over allegedly "offensive" statements he made on actress Anne Curtis but clarified that his intention was "to drive a point." "For those who found [...] the statement offensive, I apologize to them. But that was not the intention. My intention was to drive a point," Suntay said in Filipino and English in an interview with DZMM on Wednesday. He made the statement on Tuesday during a meeting of the House of Representatives' Committee on Justice which then voted to strike it out from the record. Suntay said that "if some people were offended, especially it is Women's Month [...], I'm sorry for those who are, were offended. But if you really read the context, there was nothing malicious in it." He said that "it was an imaginary situation. It was a fictitious situation. I have not even seen Anne Curtis in person but I have seen her on TV." Calls for a public apology from Suntay spread as Quezon City Mayor Joy Belmonte, Gabriela and celebrities rallied behind Curtis who has yet to issue her statement. The House committee on Tuesday deliberated on whether the impeachment complaint filed last month against Vice President Sara Duterte was sufficient in substance and was expected to vote today on that and one filed by lawyer Nathaniel Cabrera. Duterte is accused of betraying public trust and violating the Constitution, among others, for her alleged misuse of intelligence funds from the Office of the Vice President and the Department of Education when she was its secretary.

MANILA, Philippines — Vice President Sara Duterte has filed perjury charges against self-confessed security consultant Ramil Madriaga on Wednesday. She filed the case at the Taguig City Prosecutor's Office accompanied by her lawyer, Salvador Paolo Panelo Jr. In a statement, Duterte said that Madriaga was an "accused individual in a kidnapping case who posed as a campaign supporter and, from there, suddenly emerged as a supposed witness in the impeachment against me." She said that Madriaga was being used in the same way the International Criminal Court used "fabricated" testimonies from Arturo Lascañas and Edgar Matobato which was used against her father, former president Rodrigo Duterte."Because of this, today I have filed a perjury case against Ramil Madriaga to finally hold him accountable for his lies. We cannot allow invented stories to be used to deceive the public.," Duterte said.Madriaga claimed that he was a supporter of Duterte who received campaign funds from Philippine Offshore Gaming Operations and drug money, as well as receiving confidential funds from two former Vice Presidential Security and Protection Group leaders.

MANILA, Philippines —Parts of the country, including Metro Manila, will experience cloudy skies with isolated rain showers or thunderstorms on Wednesday due to two weather systems, the Philippine Atmospheric Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (Pagasa) said.The easterlies and northeast monsoon (‘amihan’) are expected to bring scattered or isolated downpours within 24 hours, the state weather bureau said.Nathaniel Servando, Philippine Atmospheric Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (Pagasa) chief, said amihan, which brings cool and dry winds, has resurfaced but will only be only affecting Batanes and Babuyan Islands in extreme Northern Luzon.Meanwhile, the easterlies – winds that pass through Pacific Ocean and carry warm and humid weather – has been prevailing over Surigao del Norte, Surigao del Sur, and Dinagat Islands where cloudy skies with scattered rains and thunderstorms were expected.The same weather system will also be experienced over Metro Manila and the rest of the country where partly cloudy to overcast skies with isolated rain showers or thunderstorms would prevail within 24 hours, the national weather agency said.Servando said flash floods or landslides may occur in the affected areas if the rains become moderate to heavy.No low pressure has been monitored in the next three days, Servando said, but added that Pagasa was monitoring the formation of a tropical cyclone.

- Public apology sought from lawmaker over 'inappropriate remarks' \(2026-03-04 00:25\)

MANILA, Philippines — Calls for a public apology from a lawmaker at the House of Representatives grew following his "inappropriate remarks" on an actress, with Quezon City Mayor Joy Belmonte firing the initial salvo as she expressed her dismay since the congressman in the eye of the storm is from her city.In a statement, Belmonte slammed 4th District Rep. Bong Suintay for the statements he made during a committee hearing on the impeachment complaint filed against Vice President Sara Duterte on Tuesday. “But what makes this incident especially troubling is the fact that, as a former member of our city council, he (Suintay) was part of the body that passed our Gender and Development Code,” Belmonte said.Moreover, Belmonte said that Suintay was the council’ s majority floor leader when the ‘Bawal Bastos Ordinance,’ which declares that lewd, malicious, and demeaning remarks and acts have no place in public life, was passed and approved.The city instituted this policy in 2016—ahead of the national Safe Spaces Act, she stressed.The city chief executive said Suintay has directly contradicted the spirit of empowerment that they worked hard to build in the city.Over the years, the local government embraced the difficult work of establishing protections for women, constantly striving to honor their rights by creating safe spaces and opportunities for them, the mayor said. In this context, it is truly disappointing to witness Congressman Suntay's casual display of objectification, on Women's Month no less, according to her. "Our policies are a declaration of our city's values—of what we stand for and what we refuse to tolerate. We expect our elected officials to be the first to live by them," Belmonte said. "Thus, it is clear to me: We must not hesitate to push back against any act that undermines the dignity of our women. We must continue to stand for their safety, dignity, and equality—without exception and without compromise," she added. She reiterated the call on Suntay to take full accountability for his remarks, "issue a proper apology, and conduct himself with the dignity that his office—and our city—demand. Our people deserve no less." Meanwhile, women's rights group Gabriela said there was no place for sexism and the objectification of women—especially from public officials. "Expressing his imagination on a woman—for any reason—is a form of objectification of women," the group said in Filipino. The group also called on Suntay to issue a public apology. During Tuesday's deliberations, Suntay said that he himself experienced having a 'strong desire' and was aroused on seeing actress Anne Curtis but could only 'imagine' what could happen.

- Filipino workers on life under fire in Mideast: 'We have to run fast' (2026-03-03 17:12)

MANILA, Philippines — Filipina caregiver Charlot David made the run back and forth to the bomb shelter several times before deciding it was better to simply stay there. The 44-year-old mother of four, who has lived through "several wars" since moving to Israel in 2008, knew exactly what to do when the ear-splitting alert on her mobile phone first woke her on Saturday. "Our flat is three minutes away from the bomb shelter, so we really have to run fast," she told AFP in a video interview from her employer's home in Rehovot, a city 20 kilometers (12 miles) south of Tel Aviv. The caregiver is one of an estimated two million overseas Filipino workers, or OFWs, in the region, sending billions of dollars in remittances home each year to families in the Philippines that depend on them as the primary breadwinners. "There were several alerts until we concluded, OK, this is no joke. It's Iran. So, we decided to stay inside the bomb shelter," David said. Eight months earlier, a neighbor had not been so lucky when hostilities first erupted between Iran, Israel and the United States. "A ballistic missile hit our area, a flat occupied by Filipinos... A fellow Filipina died there, our neighbor," she said, calling the experience deeply traumatic. Anita Bautista, who said alerts had sounded "from morning until dawn," told AFP the latest conflict was "more scary" than others she has lived through in her 12 years in Israel. "Before, (the missiles) were not hitting the ground, but now some people are getting killed," said the mother of two who works in the Tel Aviv suburb Petah Tikva. On Sunday, the new outbreak of hostilities claimed their first victim from the archipelago nation of 116 million: Mary Ann Velasquez De Vera, a 32-year-old caregiver killed as she attempted to escort her elderly ward to an Israeli bomb shelter. Filipinos working in Dubai and Bahrain who spoke to AFP that day described being woken by window-rattling explosions and witnessing drones zipping overhead before exploding into nearby buildings. The Philippine government said Monday there were no plans in place for wide-scale repatriations -- an expensive and logistically complicated proposition. However, about 80-100 OFWs working in the United Arab Emirates were seeking repatriation, with a similar number of requests from Israel, migrant workers secretary Hans Leo Cacdac told an afternoon briefing. But Josie Pinkihan of labor rights group Migrante International urged broader action. "Before the Iran-US war worsens, our countrymen should be repatriated now," she said in an interview at the group's Manila headquarters, saying the scale of evacuations demanded the process begin immediately. David, the caregiver, however, said she could not envision leaving Israel unless she had "no choice". "We have families in the Philippines who rely on us," she said.

- Iranian drones strike US embassy in Riyadh (2026-03-03 16:20)

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia — Drones hit the US embassy in Riyadh on Tuesday as Iran hit back at industrial and diplomatic targets across the Middle East and Washington warned its citizens to evacuate the entire region. Four days after US and Israeli strikes killed Iran's supreme leader and triggered a regional war, reporters in the Saudi capital saw smoke damage on the walls and roof of the embassy. Saudi police were swarming over the diplomatic quarter and checking IDs of everyone who entered. Several roads were blocked, including approaches to the US embassy. Powerful explosions also shook Tehran through the night, as fighter jets flew over the Iranian capital and US President Donald Trump threatened to escalate the conflict. On Monday, the US State Department had urged "Americans to DEPART NOW" from all of the countries and territories of the Middle East "due to serious safety risks." Israel, meanwhile, said it was seizing new forward positions inside southern Lebanon, after Hezbollah fired missiles in support of its backer Iran and provoked a furious Israeli bombardment. Defense Minister Israel Katz said Israeli forces had been authorized "to advance and take control of additional strategic positions in Lebanon in order to prevent attacks on Israeli border communities." 'Burn any ship' Following Israel's "escalation," according to a Lebanese military source, the Lebanese army redeployed troops in the south. Hezbollah claimed it had launched strikes targeting three Israeli bases. In Gulf cities and the Omani port of Duqm, Iranian strikes continued to hit oil and gas infrastructure and as European markets opened the benchmark Brent crude price jumped again. "We will burn any ship that tries to pass through the Strait of Hormuz," Revolutionary Guards Gen. Sardar Jabbari declared, underlining the threat the war poses to the global economy. In Washington, Trump warned that the strikes could continue for weeks or months. "From the beginning we projected four to five weeks, but we have capability to go far longer than that," Trump said at the White House. In an earlier interview with the New York Post, Trump — who campaigned on promises to end US involvement in wars — refused to rule out deploying US ground troops to Iran "if they were necessary." And, speaking to NewsNation, Trump warned Iran would "find out soon" how he planned to retaliate for the Riyadh embassy attack. The US president laid out for the first time the operation's objectives — destroying Iran's missiles, navy and nuclear program and stopping its support for armed groups across the region. Trump's goals notably did not include toppling the Islamic republic, even though he and Israel's Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu have urged the people of Iran to rise up. Saudi Arabia, home to one of the region's largest oil refineries, some which have already been closed following attacks, said it intercepted eight more drones in two cities, including the capital, on Tuesday. Two, however, got through air defenses and struck the US embassy, causing a fire. In Fujairah, one of the United Arab Emirates, debris from downed drones caused a fire at an oil facility, the state's media office said. The blaze was brought under control and operations resumed. 'Imminent threat?' US Secretary of State Marco Rubio presented a strikingly new narrative of how the conflict started. Washington's top diplomat said the United States, which had built up its forces in the Gulf to levels not seen since its 2003 Iraq invasion, attacked only after learning that ally Israel was to strike Iran. Iran had been ready to strike US forces in the region in response to Israel, so Trump decided to intervene "preemptively" alongside Israel, Rubio said. "The imminent threat was that we knew that if Iran was attacked — and we believed they would be attacked — that they would immediately come after us,” Rubio told reporters before briefing lawmakers. Rival Democrats voiced disbelief, with Sen. Mark Warner saying it was “uncharted territory” for the United States to be triggered into action by Israel’s perception of a threat. Iran’s foreign minister Seyed Abbas Araghchi responded that “there was never any so-called Iranian ‘threat’.” “Mr. Rubio admitted what we all knew: US has entered a war of choice on behalf of Israel’,” he posted on X. Death toll rises Throughout the region, the death toll has steadily increased with six US military personnel killed so far in the war, according to US Central Command. The Iranian Red Crescent said Tuesday that more than 780 people have been killed nationwide since the United States and Israel started striking Iran. “According to field reports from operational teams, unfortunately, 787 compatriots have been martyred in these attacks,” the Red Crescent said on its website. It said strikes since Saturday had hit 153 cities and more than 500 locations across Iran in more than 1,000 attacks. Separately on Tuesday, loud explosions were heard in Tehran, while Iranian media reported blasts in Karaj west of the capital and in the central city of Isfahan. Iranian media have reported hundreds of Iranian casualties, including scores at a girl’s school. The US-based Human Rights Activists News Agency (HRANA) on Tuesday said there were 101 casualties inside Iran on the third day of the war, including “85 civilian deaths and 11 military personnel killed.” Many residents in Tehran were torn between fear of the bombings and hope that the government’s days might now be numbered. “Every time we hear the noises, we get scared for just a second,” a 45-year-old lawyer said in a voice message to Europe, “but we experience some joy and excitement every time we hear a hit.”

- Marcos eyes cut in oil excise tax (2026-03-03 16:19)

PRESIDENT Ferdinand Marcos Jr. on Tuesday said he would ask Congress for the authority to reduce excise taxes for petroleum products if Dubai crude prices exceed $80 per barrel. Speaking to reporters, Marcos said the move would be an “emergency measure” and would be lifted once oil prices stabilize. On Tuesday, Dubai crude was trading in the range of $76 to $78 per barrel, up sharply from the average of $63 per barrel in late 2025 because of the widening war in the Middle East. The Tax Reform for Acceleration and Inclusion Law mandates the automatic suspension of excise taxes on petroleum products if the average global oil price reaches $80 per barrel for three consecutive months. The president’s economic team will work with Congress to secure the authority for the president to temporarily reduce excise taxes on fuel should the price of Dubai crude oil exceed $80 per barrel, Finance Secretary Frederick Go said on Tuesday. “Amid the ongoing conflict, we remain vigilant, prepared, and committed to protecting the welfare of all Filipinos,” Go said in a statement. He added they are closely monitoring developments in the Middle East, particularly their impact on global oil markets and the Philippine economy. He emphasized that the proposed authority to reduce excise taxes is a precautionary measure and will not be automatically exercised if oil prices breach the threshold. “To be clear, this does not mean the authority will be automatically exercised,” Go said. “It is a precautionary measure — a ready policy tool that the president may use, if necessary, to act swiftly in protecting Filipino consumers and safeguarding the broader economy,” he added. The Finance chief added that the decision to cut excise taxes would depend on prevailing conditions, including the level and persistence of global oil price increases. “Even if it (the price of crude) exceeds $80 per barrel, that doesn’t mean we react right away. It also has to exist for a certain period of time. If it goes up to $80 for just one day and then drops back to $77 the next day, why should we react?” he added. Meanwhile, Marcos said there was no significant disruption yet in the global supply chain despite escalating tensions in the Middle East and assured the public that the country maintained oil stockpiles sufficient to cover about 50 to 60 days of supply. He said the available reserves include diesel, sufficient for about 50.5 days; fuel oil and gasoline, each sufficient for about 51.5 days; kerosene, sufficient for about 67.5 days; jet fuel, sufficient for about 58 days; and liquefied petroleum gas (LPG), sufficient for about 29 days. He also said oil price shocks take time to move through the system before daily consumers feel the impact on basic commodities. “It will take time for any of the effects of the oil price shocks to work through the system. And of course, the prayer that we have is that before they work their way through the system, we hope the situation will be resolved so the public will not feel the impact too much,” Marcos said. “If this drags on, that’s when it will be felt,” he added. The president said that the government has prepared various scenarios, with estimates from the United States suggesting the conflict could last four to five weeks. Government agencies were preparing more detailed assessments as developments unfold, he added. He said that the government was also monitoring the dollar’s movement, noting that remittances were sent in US currency, although the peso has remained stable so far. Marcos also outlined several interventions to mitigate the impact of potential oil price increases, including fuel subsidies for affected sectors such as transportation and agriculture. He said the government was also looking at the possibility of easing the transport cost burden for commuters, especially the working public, by providing no-fare bus rides along major routes and holding fares down. The president said the Department of Energy was also in close coordination with oil firms in the country to ensure that increases on prices will be implemented on a staggered basis. Meanwhile, two senators filed separate bills which authorize the president to suspend or reduce excise tax on gasoline and diesel if its average prices reach or exceed $80 per barrel based on the Mean of Platts Singapore. Sen. Bam Aquino on Tuesday filed Senate Bill (SB) 1923 to protect Filipinos from the impact of sudden spikes in fuel prices. Sen. Joel Villanueva filed SB 1922, which mandates the Department of Energy to assess current market conditions to help the Department of Finance complete its recommendations to the president. Aquino filed SB 1923 to amend the National Internal Revenue Code of 1997 to allow the chief executive to suspend the collection of excise tax on fuel in times of national emergencies or when public interest so requires, upon the recommendation of the secretary of Finance. Aquino said the bill aims to equip the government “with a practical tool to shield consumers, support transport operators and small enterprises, and help stabilize local prices when global conditions threaten domestic economic stability.” Speaker Faustino Dy III said that the House of Representatives was open to working with the Senate on the fuel excise tax. In a statement, Dy said in Filipino and English that it was clear that Filipinos would feel the effects — “in fares, in the cost of food, and other prime commodities” — if the price of Dubai crude exceeds $80 per barrel. He said the House was open “to work with the Senate to study and, if needed, amend the law to give the president enough power to reduce the excise tax in times when there is a drastic increase in the price of oil.” The move to grant the president emergency powers to suspend the excise tax on fuel products and fuel subsidies drew support from senators on both sides of the political fence. From the majority bloc, Sens. Sherwin Gatchalian, Erwin Tulfo, JV Ejercito and Juan Miguel Zubiri said they supported moves to cushion the impact of rising oil prices, as did Sens. Bong Go and Francis Escudero.

- Justice panel strikes Suntay's Anne Curtis remark from the record (2026-03-03 16:18)

(UPDATED) THE House Committee on Justice met Tuesday to determine if an impeachment complaint filed against Vice President Sara Duterte was sufficient in substance, but did not vote on the matter. Instead, the panel voted to strike from the record a statement by Quezon City 4th District Rep. Jesus Manuel Suntay, who made sexually suggestive references to the actress Anne Curtis while defending Duterte. At the hearing, Suntay said Duterte’s mere presence in a rally did not make her action seditious. As to her appointing herself the designated survivor when she said she would not attend the 2024 State of the Nation Address, he said she was probably joking, since there is no designated survivor mechanism in the country. Then addressing Duterte’s statement that she imagined killing President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. Suntay said he saw Anne Curtis at the Shangri-La, and she was so beautiful and desirable that he imagined what might happen. “But of course, it was just my imagination. Maybe I cannot be sued because I imagined various things,” he said in Filipino. San Juan Rep. Ysabel Zamora, vice chairman of the committee, then said she would like to have the statements stricken off the record. “There is nothing sexual in what I said. Nothing immoral. It’s just, I said, I imagined something,” Suntay said. Zamora’s motion was seconded but also objected to and the committee put the matter to a vote. Voting 13-2 with two abstentions, the committee ordered that Suntay’s comment be stricken from the record. He said, “I think we are starting a dangerous precedent because now we are censuring manifestations which [are] neither illegal or immoral.” Zamora said, “With all due respect to my friend, congressman Bong Suntay, it is just the start of the Women’s Month and I don’t think that we should be hearing such comments from our dear colleagues. We are not censuring anything but we are reminding them that in fact, we should support women by not saying these statements.” The House committee finished its deliberations on the substance sufficiency of the complaint but did not yet vote on the matter. On Wednesday, the panel will deliberate on whether the impeachment complaint filed by lawyer Nathaniel Cabrera is sufficient in substance. Batangas 2nd District Rep. Gerville Luistro, chairman of the committee, said in a press conference on Tuesday that they would vote as soon as they finished deliberating on the fourth impeachment complaint. On Monday, the committee declared the two complaints — the third and fourth filed earlier this year against Duterte — as sufficient in form. The third impeachment complaint, endorsed by Mamamayang Liberal Rep. Leila de Lima, was filed on Feb. 9, 2026. The fourth complaint was filed on Feb. 18, 2026. It was endorsed by Manila 6th District Rep. Bienvenido Abante Jr., chairman of the House Committee on Human Rights, and Deputy Speaker and La Union 1st District Rep. Francisco Paolo Ortega V. On Monday, the committee set aside the first of the impeachment complaints filed earlier this year against Duterte. Voting 22-10, the committee set the complaint aside on the ground of violation of the one-year bar rule. The Makabayan bloc — composed of ACT Teachers Rep. Antonio Tinio, Gabriela Women’s Party Rep. Sarah Elago, and Kabataan Rep. Renee Co — had endorsed the complaint, which was filed on Feb. 2, 2026 by private persons. The 1987 Constitution prohibits the initiation of impeachment proceedings against the same official more than once within a one-year period. While the committee set aside the first of the impeachment complaints filed earlier this year against Duterte and declared the third and fourth ones sufficient in form, it approved the withdrawal of the second one. The withdrawn complaint was filed by 17 people and was endorsed by de Lima and Akbayan Rep. Percival Cendaña. They withdrew their endorsement after the complainants decided to drop the complaint. The lawmakers said the complainants in the second complaint decided to withdraw it “in the interest of procedural expediency and to obviate any needless delay.” Unwanted reactions

Actress Jasmine Curtis-Smith took offense on Sunatay’s lewd remarks on her older sister during the House Committee on Justice. She posted several messages on social media citing her disgust and disappointment towards the lawmaker “RESPECTFULLY, BONG SUNTAY, WHAT ON EARTH??? BAKIT GANON ANG THINKING?”, Curtis wrote. Veteran news Anchor Karen Davila also expressed her disappointment towards Sunatay’s statement on social media as well and urges him to apologize on behalf of every woman. “A congressman. A representative of the people. Paid by the people. A husband, a father with daughters. Without the consciousness, knowledge or decency of how women should be talked about. Please keep your sick thoughts to yourself,” Davila wrote. An apology is required

Quezon City Mayor Joy Belmonte asked Rep. Sunatay to apologize over the inappropriate remark he made about Anne Curtis during a House hearing. “I urge Congressman Bong Sunatay to apologize for the inappropriate remarks that he made at a recent House committee hearing,” Belmonte wrote. “His words directly contradict the spirit of empowerment that we have worked hard to build here in Quezon City. Over the years, we have embraced the difficult work of establishing protections for women, constantly striving to honor their rights by creating safe spaces and opportunities for them.” “In this context, it is truly disappointing to witness Congressman Sunatay’s casual display of objectification, on Women’s Month no less. But what makes this incident especially troubling is the fact that, as a former member of our City Council, he was part of the body that passed our Gender and Development Code,” she adds.

- Panel OKs watered down anti-political dynasty bill (2026-03-03 16:17)

THE House Committee on Suffrage and Electoral Reforms approved on Tuesday an anti-political dynasty bill, but opposition lawmakers withdrew their support from the measure, saying it was watered down from the original draft authored by Speaker Faustino Dy III and House Majority Leader Sandro Marcos. The unnumbered bill approved by the panel relaxed the ban from fourth degree of consanguinity specified in House Bill 6771, to only the second degree. The three-member Makabayan bloc composed of ACT Teachers Rep. Antonio Tinio, Gabriela Women’s Rep. Sarah Elago, and Kabataan Rep. Renee Co, withdrew support from what they described as a watered down version of a weak bill. Caloocan 2nd District Rep. Edgar Erice also withdrew his support for the bill, calling it “a travesty and disrespect of the Constitution.” But Lanao del Sur 1st District Rep. Zia Alonto Andiong defended the bill. “This is the result of the series of public consultations that we conducted”, he said. “The speaker’s version, which is House Bill 6771, has obtained the biggest number of co-authorships [...]. That is why the committee decided that the version that was filed by the House speaker and the majority leader will be used as the working draft and finally, it also became our substitute bill that we have adopted.” House Bill 6671 was principally authored by Dy and Marcos. “For nearly four decades, the Constitution has directed Congress to prohibit political dynasties. Today, we move closer to fulfilling that mandate,” Dy said in a statement on Tuesday after the substitute bill was approved. Article II, Section 26 of the 1987 Constitution says, “The state shall guarantee equal access to opportunities for public service, and prohibit political dynasties as may be defined by law.” The committee-approved version prohibits “political dynasties within the second degree of consanguinity or affinity,” the statement said. “At the national level, spouses and second-degree relatives are barred from simultaneously holding any national elective position, including president, vice president and senator,” the statement read. The prohibition under the committee-approved bill applies within the same provincial government, the same city or municipality, and the same barangay, the statement said. Adiong bristled at the criticism of the bill. “I don’t understand the basis where this description of ‘weak’ comes from because in the first place, we don’t have [an] anti-political dynasty [law],” Adiong said in Filipino and English. “What we can assure you is that this version, we tried to decongest local political units from [...] control of one particular family,” he said. If the bill becomes law, the ban would take effect starting in the succeeding elections. The bill, the statement from Dy’s office said, “requires candidates to execute and file a sworn statement and undertaking with the Commission on Elections (Comelec) upon filing their certificate of candidacy, declaring that their candidacy will not create a prohibited political dynasty relationship.” “Candidates must also report within five days if circumstances arise that could result in such a relationship. If spouses or relatives file candidacies that would create a prohibited relationship, the Comelec must notify the affected parties within five days,” the statement said. The candidates would “have 48 hours to decide among themselves who will assume office if more than one wins. If no agreement is reached, the Comelec will conduct a drawing of lots. Elected officials may also voluntarily withdraw their candidacy,” the statement said. The substitute bill still has to undergo consideration at the House plenary level. An anti-political dynasty act is one of the administration’s priority measures.

- PH, South Korea sign 10 deals (2026-03-03 16:16)

(UPDATE) THE Philippines and South Korea on Tuesday signed 10 agreements covering digital innovation, economic and development cooperation, defense, agriculture, trade, education, culture and law enforcement. President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. and South Korean President Lee Jae Myung witnessed the exchange and presentation of signed agreements following their bilateral meeting in Malacañang. During their meeting, Marcos said he and Lee covered a wide range of areas in their countries’ bilateral partnership, including defense and security, maritime cooperation, economic and development cooperation, and people-to-people exchanges. “We agreed that we have made significant strides in advancing and deepening our bilateral cooperation towards the attainment of our mutually beneficial goals,” Marcos said during the joint press statement with Lee. “And as we have just witnessed, we concluded a number of agreements in the fields of defense materials procurement, veterans affairs, agriculture, trade, investment and economic cooperation, intellectual property, digital cooperation, digitalization and innovation, Korean language training in schools, cultural cooperation, and police cooperation, which will sustain the momentum of the Philippines-Republic of Korea Strategic Partnership for the future,” he added. Marcos said that both sides were working to enhance bilateral trade and investment and expressed optimism about realizing the full potential of the Free Trade Agreement to benefit both nations. He also acknowledged the South Korea’s contributions to the modernization of the Armed Forces of the Philippines and the strengthening of the Philippine Coast Guard. Marcos also thanked South Korea for its role in reviving the shipbuilding industry and for strategic investments in the semiconductor value chain. The president expressed appreciation to South Korea as well for its support for infrastructure projects such as the Panguil Bay Bridge in Northern Mindanao. Additionally, Marcos noted South Korea’s significant contribution to development programs in health, agricultural mechanization, energy, and artificial intelligence, as well as the protection of the rights and welfare of over 70,000 Filipinos living and working in Korea. Also during the meeting, Marcos exchanged views with Lee on regional and international issues, including the South China Sea and the Korean Peninsula. “We both recognized the growing uncertainty in geopolitical developments, which is why we agreed on the need to firmly and consistently uphold a rules-based order governed by international law, including in the maritime domain,” he said. Lee, accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Kim Hea Kyung, is in the country for a two-day state visit. He kicked off his visit to the country by laying a wreath at the monument to the Philippine national hero, Dr. Jose P. Rizal, at Rizal Park. On Wednesday, he is scheduled to join Marcos at the Philippines-Korea Business Forum in Pasay City. Lee’s visit coincides with the commemoration of the 77th anniversary of diplomatic relations between the Philippines and South Korea, which was elevated to a strategic partnership in 2024. This is the first state visit to the Philippines by the South Korean leader since the Free Trade Agreement between the two countries took effect on Dec. 31, 2024. Marcos had earlier invited Lee to visit the Philippines during their bilateral meeting on the sidelines of the 2025 Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation Economic Leaders’ Meeting in Gyeongju, South Korea.

- War won't affect US support to PH, AFP says (2026-03-03 16:15)

(UPDATE) TENSIONS in the Middle East would have no effect on the military support of the US to the Philippines despite its ongoing war against Iran, the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) said on Tuesday. “There’s been no marked observed downscale in the support of our treaty ally or even other like-minded nations when it comes to West Philippine Sea activities, especially MMCAs (Multilateral Maritime Cooperative Activities), even maybe forthcoming exercises,” said Rear Admiral Roy Vincent Trinidad, Navy spokesman for the West Philippine

Sea. “The MMCA recently conducted is a classic example of that. So there’s been no marked dip in the support of our treaty ally,” Trinidad said. Meanwhile, Defense Secretary Gilberto Teodoro Jr. tagged as unfounded concerns that Enhanced Defense Cooperation Agreement (EDCA) sites around the country are potential targets for Iran’s retaliatory attacks, after US and Israeli forces attacked the Middle Eastern nation and killed its leader, Ayatollah Ali Khamenei. “We cannot compare the situation in the Middle East [and the one] here in the Philippines. Our bilateral and multilateral alliances are for defensive purposes and deterrent purposes only,” Teodoro said in Filipino in an interview with Malacañang reporters. The United States and Israel launched airstrikes against Iran on Feb. 28, triggering Iranian retaliatory attacks on American bases across the Middle East, including Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, Jordan, Qatar, and the United Arab Emirates. In the Philippines, there are nine EDCA sites — the Cesar Basa Air Base in Floridablanca, Pampanga; Fort Magsaysay Military Reservation in Nueva Ecija; Lumbia Airport in Cagayan de Oro; Antonio Bautista Air Base in Puerto Princesa, Palawan; Benito Ebuena Air Base in Cebu; Naval Base Camilo Osias in Sta. Ana, Cagayan; Lal-lo Airport in Lal-lo, Cagayan; Camp Melchor Dela Cruz in Gamu, Isabela; and Balabac Island in Palawan. Teodoro echoed the earlier statement of the Department of National Defense and the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) that the military installations are not US-controlled bases and remain under the full ownership, control and management of the Philippine military. “These concerns, I will repeat, are baseless. Right now, I will repeat what the Armed Forces said: There is no direct threat to the security of the Republic of the Philippines in the military sense of what is happening in the Middle East right now,” he said. Teodoro said he, as concurrent chief of the National Disaster Risk and Reduction Management Council (NDRRMC), is now coordinating with his counterparts from different agencies to determine how to efficiently assist in the planned repatriation of more than 1,000 Filipinos who have requested to be brought home. As of the latest data reaching the Palace, the repatriation requests are broken down as follows: Dubai (586), Israel (297), Abu Dhabi (270), Bahrain (231), Jordan (22), and Iran (10).

- Israel to provide lifelong support for slain Filipina caregiver's family (2026-03-03 16:14)

THE Israeli government has pledged comprehensive assistance, including lifelong livelihood support and insurance benefits, to the family of Filipina caregiver Mary Anne Velasquez de Vera, who was killed in an Iranian airstrike in Tel Aviv, Ambassador Dana Kursh said. Speaking during a media briefing in Manila on Tuesday, Kursh said the Israeli government would extend to de Vera’s family the same benefits provided under Israeli law to individuals harmed in war or terrorist attacks. “I can guarantee that the government of Israel will support de Vera’s family and provide everything necessary to offer them as much comfort as possible,” Kursh said. She explained that Israel’s national security authorities manage a system providing assistance packages for individuals — whether Israeli citizens or foreign nationals — killed or wounded in incidents linked to war or terrorism. Under the program, de Vera will be formally recognized as a victim of war or a terrorist attack, entitling her family to long-term support. Kursh said the benefits include life insurance and a monthly allowance for surviving family members, including her spouse and parents, as well as additional support such as psychological assistance if needed. “The government will be providing life insurance for our kababayan (compatriot) Mary Anne,” Kursh said, emphasizing that the package aims to ease the family’s daily burdens. “I don’t know the exact amounts, but what matters is the commitment of the state of Israel to those who lost their lives here,” she added. Acknowledging that no support can undo the pain of losing a loved one, Kursh said the program is intended to help families cope with the aftermath of tragedy. “It will not bring back Mary Anne. It will not remove the grief of her family, her husband and relatives. But it will try to ease, at least in part, the daily challenges they face,” she said. The ambassador added she would personally represent Israel when de Vera’s remains are repatriated to her hometown of Basista, Pangasinan. “I will be there when her body arrives. I will be at the airport with the family,” Kursh said, noting that the gesture reflects Israel’s solidarity with the bereaved family. De Vera, 32, died from shrapnel injuries after an Iranian missile struck her apartment in Tel Aviv on March 1 while she was assisting her ward to safety. She was among Filipino nationals caught in the escalating tensions in the Middle East, where hostilities between Israel and Iran have raised concerns over the safety of foreign workers in the region. In a related development, the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) said it will extend financial and psychosocial assistance to the family of de Vera. The agency’s Crisis Intervention Program has coordinated with its field office in the Ilocos Region and the local government of Basista, Pangasinan, to ensure proper support for the bereaved family. “The DSWD deeply mourns the death of our fellow Filipino, Mary Anne, a caregiver in Israel, and we extend our condolences to her family as we stand ready to provide assistance to help them overcome this painful ordeal,” DSWD Assistant Secretary Irene Dumlao said. The department also assured aid under the Assistance to Individuals in Crisis Situations program and possible livelihood support while coordinating with concerned agencies on the repatriation of her remains and the welfare of other overseas Filipino workers amid tensions in the region.

- NAMFREL: Stop Government Contractors From Joining Party-Lists (2026-03-03 16:13)

THE National Citizens’ Movement for Free Elections (Namfrel) called for a ban on government contractors from party-lists. The group said in a position paper dated Sunday and made public Tuesday that any reform legislation needs to address several core elements: genuine representation and sectoral voting; anti-dynasty and conflict-of-interest barriers; structural reforms for true proportional representation; transparency, campaign finance and naming safeguards; and strengthening political parties and combating turncoatism, or party-switching. “Relatives of sitting elective officials, up to at least the second to fourth degree of consanguinity or affinity, should be explicitly disqualified from serving as party-list nominees,” Namfrel said regarding anti-dynasty and conflict-of-interest barriers. “Individuals who are owners, officers, or partners of businesses with active government contracts or state-funded projects should be disqualified to prevent the weaponization of the party-list system for economic gain,” the group added. The position paper was submitted to the Senate Committee on Electoral Reforms and People’s Participation (CERPP) for Monday’s deliberation on proposed party-list reform bills. “We commend the Senate CERPP for taking up this important legislative undertaking. The reform of the party-list system is long overdue, and Namfrel is pleased to offer its observations and recommendations to help guide the Committee’s deliberations,” the position paper read. Among its recommendations were consolidating several Senate bills and their best provisions, ensuring constitutional soundness, removing red-tagging provisions, pursuing companion legislation, protecting genuine grassroots organizations, strengthening political parties and addressing turncoatism. “The reform legislation should include provisions that promote party stability, including provisions limiting party-switching (turncoatism), to prevent the use of party-list organizations as mere electoral vehicles abandoned after elections,” the group said. In a party-list system, Namfrel said nominees must demonstrate a “documented track record of sectoral advocacy” of at least three to five years within the specific sector they wish to represent. Each group would be required to submit a minimum of 10 nominees vetted and approved by its highest decision-making body. The group also called on the Commission on Elections to extend the review period to 120 days before an election for background vetting and the conduct of evidentiary public hearings on applicant organizations. “Party-list reform cannot be viewed in isolation. Namfrel urges the committee to consider reforms that strengthen political parties more broadly, including provisions that limit turncoatism and party-switching and that encourage stable, ideologically grounded party organizations rather than personality-based electoral vehicles,” the poll watchdog said. “The party-list system was born from a noble democratic aspiration: to ensure that the voices of the poor, the vulnerable, and the historically excluded would find a seat in the legislative halls of power. After three decades, the system is in dire need of restoration. Namfrel believes that the legislative will to reform it now exists and urges the committee to seize this moment,” it added.

- Ph breast cancer deaths among highest in Asia as cases rise globally (2026-03-03 16:12)

A STUDY released Tuesday found that the Philippines saw a 41 percent increase in breast cancer deaths among women, one of the highest in the Asia-Pacific region. According to a 2026 study published by The Lancet Oncology, annual breast cancer cases are projected to rise by one-third, reaching 3.5 million by 2050. The increase is reportedly the product of lifestyle-related factors, such as smoking, high blood sugar and obesity. The study noted that while new cases remain highest in high-income countries, incidence is growing rapidly in lower-income countries like the Philippines, accounting for over 45 percent of all ill health and premature deaths globally. Kayleigh Bhangdia, lead author from the Institute for Health Metrics and Evaluation at the University of Washington, said the growing burden is shifting toward low- and lower-middle-income countries. “While those in high-income countries typically benefit from screening and more timely diagnosis and comprehensive treatment strategies, the mounting burden of breast cancer is shifting to low- and lower-middle-income countries, where individuals often face later-stage diagnosis, more limited access to quality care, and higher death rates that are threatening to eclipse progress in women’s health,” she said. The study stressed the need for preventive measures and ensuring that health systems are capable of early diagnosis and comprehensive treatment, as well as making cancer services affordable. “LMICs (lower-middle-income countries) are hit hardest by escalating breast cancer burden as many of these nations grapple with lifestyle and demographic changes alongside health systems that are less equipped than ideal to respond, with shortages of radiotherapy machines, chemotherapy drugs, and pathology labs, and standard treatments that can be quite costly,” said Dr. Olayinka Ilesanmi, co-author of the study. The authors stressed the need for equitable access to care in low-income countries, investment in therapies, and strong political will for cancer control. “Collaborative efforts are needed to ensure well-functioning health systems capable of early diagnosis and comprehensive treatment of breast cancer in all countries. Reducing the cost of breast cancer therapies and ensuring that universal health coverage includes breast cancer care essentials would also be valuable in protecting patients from catastrophic costs and improving outcomes,” said Dr. Lisa Force, co-senior author of the study. The study further noted that maintaining a healthy lifestyle could help prevent over a quarter of healthy years lost to illness and premature death due to breast cancer worldwide.

- Ombudsman Hastens Investigation Into Binay Over Flood-Control Project Anomalies (2026-03-03 16:11)

THE Office of the Ombudsman ordered investigators to hasten the investigation into alleged irregularities in flood-control projects linked to former senator and current Makati City Mayor Nancy Binay. This comes following sworn statements submitted by former Department of Public Works and Highways (DPWH) undersecretary Roberto Bernardo regarding the case. In a directive coursed through the Ombudsman’s General Investigation Bureau, Ombudsman Jesus Crispin Remulla instructed investigators to expedite the inquiry, citing the gravity of the allegations and findings from separate reviews by the Senate and the Independent Commission for Infrastructure (ICI), both of which recommended the filing of charges over alleged anomalies in flood-control projects. As part of the investigation, the bureau issued a subpoena ad testificandum ordering Carleen Yap Villa, a former staff member in Binay’s Senate office who later served in Makati City Hall, to appear before investigators. A copy of the subpoena dated Feb. 24 directed Yap-Villa to appear before the Ombudsman’s Field Investigation Office I at the Ombudsman Annex Building along Agham Road in Quezon City at 10:30 a.m. on March 3 for questioning. The order, signed by Acting General Investigation Bureau Director Ma. Jennifer Lacea, warned that failure to comply would carry penalties under the law. Bernardo, in several sworn affidavits, alleged that Yap-Villa acted as the conduit between Binay and certain DPWH officials in connection with flood-control projects funded across multiple budget cycles. He claimed Yap-Villa handled negotiations and coordination linked to the projects and was involved in the alleged solicitation of kickbacks. Bernardo also said he maintained a detailed list of transactions allegedly facilitated by Yap-Villa, which he claimed showed acceptance of funds not only by Binay but also by her husband, Jose Benjamin Angeles. According to Bernardo, cash deliveries were allegedly made in several tranches in Makati and Quezon City, including two deliveries totaling P340 million in Horseshoe Village in Quezon City and another P200 million released in separate installments. He described the payments as “commitments” or kickbacks allegedly demanded in exchange for accommodating project allocations. Investigators noted that the accusations were supported by corroborating witnesses who were expected to testify in the coming weeks. The ICI earlier concluded that Binay could no longer plausibly claim lack of knowledge of the transactions, citing the alleged frequency of the dealings and the role of a trusted aide operating within her political and administrative circle. Sources familiar with the probe said the investigation gained urgency following a directive from President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. to intensify scrutiny of flood-control projects nationwide after reports of irregularities in infrastructure spending. Officials said the Ombudsman's move to accelerate proceedings indicated that the inquiry had entered a critical stage, with investigators now examining whether sufficient evidence existed to file formal charges against individuals implicated in the alleged scheme.

- PH Ships Urged to Follow New Safety Protocols in Middle East Conflict Zones (2026-03-03 16:10)

THE Maritime Industry Authority (Marina) has issued an advisory urging Philippine-registered ships on international voyages to adopt heightened precautionary measures amid rising tensions in the Middle East. Marina directed shipowners, operators, managers and manning agencies to immediately implement protocols covering navigation, communication, security and crew welfare. The advisory applies to all Philippine-registered ships engaged in international voyages, particularly those operating in or bound for areas affected by heightened military activity. Marina instructed vessels to maintain heightened situational awareness by monitoring maritime security advisories from the International Maritime Organization and the United Kingdom Maritime Trade Operations. Masters and officers on watch were also directed to remain vigilant and continuously monitor the vessel's Automatic Identification System and Global Maritime Distress and Safety System. For safe navigation, ships must strictly follow established traffic separation schemes, maintain radio watch with maritime authorities, and monitor Navtex broadcasts for updates on safety zones and naval operations. The agency also ordered stricter communication and reporting procedures. Vessels must immediately report any incident, suspicious approach or observed military activity to Marina's Overseas Shipping Service while maintaining round-the-clock communication with their shipping companies and the Migrant Workers Office in the region. Masters and crew must regularly report their position, next port of call and operational status to their operators, who will relay relevant information to Marina. Security measures on board must also be elevated in line with the International Ship and Port Facility Security Code. Ships were instructed to conduct crew security briefings, review emergency procedures, and ensure their Ship Security Plan matches the prevailing threat level. Marina said the directive also prioritizes the welfare of Filipino seafarers. Shipowners and operators were reminded of their obligations under the Maritime Labor Convention to safeguard crew safety and facilitate repatriation when necessary. In emergencies requiring assistance ashore, vessels were advised to contact the nearest Philippine Embassy or consulate and coordinate with the Department of Migrant Workers.

- DOLE streamlines construction safety compliance with online filing (2026-03-03 16:09)

THE Department of Labor and Employment (DOLE) has digitalized the submission of safety protocol requirements in the construction industry to streamline procedures and strengthen regulatory compliance. Labor Secretary Bienvenido Laguesma on Tuesday said the department's move to modernize the submission process for the Construction Safety and Health Program (CSHP) followed his issuance of Labor Advisory 03, Series of 2026, to ensure that essential safety protections are in place before any construction activity begins. "We are committed to making compliance easier and more transparent for all stakeholders," Laguesma said. "Digitalizing the CSHP submission not only expedites the process but also reinforces our commitment to safeguarding the welfare of construction workers nationwide." Under the advisory, contractors, subcontractors or owners directly managing residential or small commercial projects are now required to prepare and submit their CSHP through the DOLE Online Compliance Portal at <https://reports.dole.gov.ph/>. They must also promptly address any deficiencies identified in their submissions. Applicants will receive notifications, including acknowledgment of receipt of their duly accomplished CSHP, via their registered email addresses. According to the labor department, the submission, evaluation, processing and approval of the CSHP are free of charge. The department also strongly discouraged the involvement of third parties in preparing or submitting the program to prevent undue costs and ensure authenticity. Upon receiving email confirmation of a complete CSHP submission, applicants are required to print a copy of the program, conduct the mandatory orientation as stipulated in Department Order 252, Series of 2025, and prominently post the CSHP in an accessible location for all workers. "This digital shift is part of our broader effort to enhance service delivery and uphold the highest standards of worker safety," Laguesma added. "We urge all project administrators to comply promptly and help us build safer workplaces." Laguesma said the issuance supersedes Labor Advisory 06, Series of 2023, reaffirming DOLE's ongoing commitment to protecting workers' rights and welfare, and to maximizing digital platforms to improve regulatory processes.

- El Niño weather event may return later this year – UN (2026-03-03 16:08)

GENEVA, Switzerland — The warming El Niño weather phenomenon could return later this year as its cooling opposite, La Niña, fades away, the United Nations said Tuesday. The UN's World Meteorological Organization (WMO) said the recent, weak La Niña was expected to give way to neutral conditions, which could then swing into El Niño before the end of 2026. La Niña is a naturally occurring climate phenomenon that cools surface temperatures in the central and eastern equatorial Pacific Ocean, changing winds, pressure, and rainfall patterns. According to the WMO, there was a 60-percent chance of neutral conditions during the three-month window from March to May, with a 30-percent chance of La Niña and a 10-percent likelihood of El Niño. There is a 70-percent chance of neutral conditions during the April-June period. In May-July, the chance of neutral conditions drops to 60 percent, with a 40-percent chance for El Niño. "The WMO community will be carefully monitoring conditions in the coming months to inform decision-making," said Celeste Saulo, who heads the UN's weather and climate agency. "The most recent El Niño, in 2023-24, was one of the five strongest on record, and it played a role in the record global temperatures we saw in 2024,” the WMO secretary-general said. El Niño contributed to making 2023 the second-hottest year on record and 2024 the all-time high. Above-average temperatures Also, the WMO emphasized that naturally occurring climate events such as La Niña and El Niño take place against the backdrop of human-induced climate change, which is “increasing global temperatures in the long-term, exacerbating extreme weather and climate events, and impacting seasonal rainfall and temperature patterns.” The US National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration says there is a 50- to 60-percent chance of El Niño developing during the July-September period and beyond. “Seasonal forecasts for El Niño and La Niña help us avert millions of dollars in economic losses and are essential planning tools for climate-sensitive sectors like agriculture, health, energy, and water management,” said Saulo. “They are also a key part of the climate intelligence provided by WMO to support humanitarian operations and disaster risk management, and thus save lives,” she said. WMO’s latest Global Seasonal Climate update indicates a widespread global signal for above-average land surface temperatures for March to May. Rainfall predictions in the equatorial Pacific show a lingering La Niña-like pattern, but in other parts of the world, the signal is more mixed, it says.

- Villar pushes to protect remittances (2026-03-03 16:07)

SEN. Camille Villar co-sponsored a measure on Tuesday seeking stronger government protection for the remittances of overseas Filipino workers (OFWs), underscoring the need to shield their hard-earned money from excessive fees and inefficient transfer systems. During her co-sponsorship speech for Senate Bill (SB) 1917, or the proposed “Act Providing for the Protection of the Remittances of Overseas Filipino Workers,” Villar described OFW remittances as more than economic contributions, calling them “acts of love” and lifelines for millions of Filipino families. Record remittances Citing data from the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP), Villar said cash remittances reached $35.63 billion in 2025, with total personal remittances climbing to nearly $39.62 billion — the highest levels recorded to date. Remittances from more than 10 million Filipinos living and working abroad account for roughly 8-10 percent of the country’s gross domestic product (GDP), making them a key driver of household consumption, education spending, health care access, housing, and small investments. “Behind every dollar is a missed birthday. Behind every remittance is a sacrifice,” Villar said, highlighting the emotional cost borne by Filipino workers separated from their families. Addressing transfer costs and inefficiencies The proposed measure aims to ensure OFW remittances are not eroded by unreasonable service fees, hidden charges, or unfair practices by financial intermediaries. While the Philippines has been recognized globally for improving remittance systems through digital banking and financial technology platforms, Villar said more safeguards are needed to ensure transparency and affordability, particularly for low-income migrant workers. Global institutions such as the World Bank have long pushed for lowering remittance costs to below 3 percent of the total amount sent, noting that high fees disproportionately affect developing economies dependent on overseas earnings. “When remittances are reduced by excessive fees and by inefficiencies, it is not just money that is lost. It is tuition that goes unpaid. It is medicine that cannot be bought. It is a dream delayed,” Villar said. Protecting families, strengthening the nation Villar emphasized that protecting OFW remittances is ultimately about protecting Filipino families. “Our OFWs strengthen our economy, yes — but more importantly, they strengthen our families. And when we protect their remittances, we protect Filipino homes,” she said. The senator also shared a personal anecdote about her family’s long-standing connection with OFWs, recalling how her father built a home decades ago for an overseas worker who dreamed of returning to a secure and stable household. “It was never just about building a house. It was about giving a family something to come home to — security, stability, and hope,” she said. Broad support sought Senate Bill 1917 is expected to complement existing efforts by regulators to promote financial inclusion, enhance digital payment systems, and improve consumer protection in the financial sector. Villar appealed to her colleagues to pass the measure, framing it as both an economic and moral imperative. “Let this measure send a clear message — that the government will stand guard over the sacrifices of our kababayans abroad,” she said. She ended her speech by assuring OFWs that their contributions are recognized and valued. “We see your courage and honor your sacrifice. We will work tirelessly to ensure that every peso you send home reaches the hands of the family you are working so hard for,” Villar said.

- Go's Nationwide Feeding Initiative Supports Patients, Frontliners in Public Hospitals
(2026-03-03 16:07)

AN initiative of Sen. Bong Go that aims to provide meals for hospital patients and their companions has evolved into a sustained nationwide outreach program, the senator’s office said. From Feb. 23 to 27, Go’s staff carried out feeding activities in public hospitals across Luzon, Visayas and Mindanao, serving warm meals to patients, watchers and health care workers. According to the senator, the initiative was born out of a practical observation: Many families seeking treatment in government hospitals often allocate their limited funds to transportation, medicines and laboratory expenses, leaving little for food while waiting for hours — sometimes days — inside hospital premises. “There are patients and watchers who only have enough for their fare and medicine. If we can help them get something to eat while they wait, that would be a big deal,” Go said in Filipino. Over time, the program expanded to include medical frontliners who endure long shifts and may not always have the opportunity to step away for meals. In Metro Manila, feeding activities were conducted at Ospital ng Muntinlupa and the Research Institute for Tropical Medicine. Across Luzon, the initiative reached several provincial hospitals, including Laguna Medical Center and San Pablo City General Hospital in Laguna; General Emilio Aguinaldo Memorial Hospital in Cavite; and Batangas Provincial Hospital and Batangas Medical Center in Batangas. Further north, meals were distributed at Baguio General Hospital and Medical Center, Benguet General Hospital, Far North Luzon General Hospital, Conner District Hospital, Kalinga Provincial Hospital, Bontoc General Hospital, and Luis Hora Memorial Hospital. In the Visayas, the program covered Leyte Provincial Hospital, Governor Celestino Gallares Memorial Medical Center, Don Jose Monfort Medical Center, Western Visayas Sanitarium and General Hospital, and Northern Samar Provincial Hospital. In Mindanao, feeding efforts continued at the Southern Philippines Medical Center, one of the country's largest government-run hospitals. The senator emphasized that the program remains grounded in its original purpose: providing immediate and practical support to people inside public health care facilities.

- DOTr, LTFRB prepare fuel subsidy as fare hikes loom (2026-03-03 16:06)

THE Department of Transportation (DOTr) and the Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board (LTFRB) are preparing to release fuel subsidies for public utility vehicle (PUV) operators and drivers if global oil prices reach $80 per barrel, officials said, while fare increases remain a possible contingency. Transportation Secretary Giovanni Lopez said the road transport sector has been instructed to start processing the necessary documentation so that assistance can be distributed immediately once the price threshold is met. According to him, the government has earmarked P2.5 billion for the subsidy program to cushion the impact of rising fuel costs on the public transport sector. "What is more interesting right now is the fuel subsidy. I instructed the road sector to start the documentation work, the processing of the fuel subsidy, so that if the threshold of $80 per barrel is met, what we will basically do is to give the subsidy," Lopez said. Preparations for fuel subsidy began after President Ferdinand Marcos Jr.'s directive to ensure that aid for PUV operators and drivers is ready amid escalating tensions in the Middle East, which could drive up global oil prices. At the same time, the LTFRB is monitoring the possibility of provisional fare increases for buses, jeepneys, and other PUVs if diesel prices surge to P60 per liter, LTFRB Chairman Vigor Mendoza said. While the current diesel price — hovering between P50 and P60 per liter — has not yet reached the threshold for mandatory fare adjustments, sustained increases could prompt action. "If the price of fuel increases — pump price increases more than P60 per liter — then that becomes the challenging portion for us," Mendoza said. He emphasized that non-fare measures, such as fuel subsidies, remain the agency's first line of response, with fare hikes considered a last resort. "Our first option, of course, would probably be a fuel subsidy. The fare hike is our last option," he said. Also, the LTFRB is evaluating pending petitions for fare adjustments to ensure the operational sustainability of transport operators while keeping commuting costs manageable for the public. Mendoza noted that across-the-board provisional fare increases for buses and jeepneys could be implemented if necessary, saying that the welfare of drivers and the roadworthiness of vehicles would be closely monitored. "Again, the balancing act between what is needed to sustain the operations of our public transport, as well as what the public can afford," he said.

- BOC tops collection target for 2nd straight month (2026-03-03 16:05)

THE Bureau of Customs (BOC) has surpassed its monthly collection target for the second straight month, with a surplus of more than P1.2 billion. Deputy Commissioner Romeo Rosales on Tuesday said preliminary data indicate that 15 of 17 Customs collection districts across the country exceeded their monthly targets. "These are just preliminary figures. We expect our collection surplus to increase further, after we receive all collection reports," Rosales told The Manila Times in a Viber message. Preliminary data show that the BOC collected P73.798 billion in February, surpassing its P72.592 billion target by approximately P1.206 billion, or about 1.7 percent. This represents a notable improvement compared to its February 2025 collection of P71.765 billion, reflecting a year-on-year increase of 2.8 percent, or P2.033 billion. From January to February 2026, the BOC recorded total collections of P154.747 billion, representing a 2.5 percent increase or P3.729 billion, compared to the same period last year. The sustained growth underscores steady revenue gains early in the fiscal year. The top five collection districts are the Manila International Container Port (MICP), leading all 16 other collection districts with P18,453,717,837.03; followed by the Port of Batangas, P17,634,956,080.51; Port of Manila (POM), P6,313,644,075.74; Port of Subic (PoS), P3,661,334,447.14; and NAIA, P3,482,258,066.68. The other 10 that exceeded their targets are the Ports of Cebu, Aparri, Cagayan de Oro, Clark, Davao, Iloilo, Legaspi, Surigao, Tacloban and Zamboanga. The non-performing districts are the Port of Limay and the Port of San Fernando. Limay was assigned to collect P9,798,004,554.17 but fell short by P2,129,589,147.30, while San Fernando collected only P550,006,379.08 from its assigned target of P698,495,885.19, or a shortfall of P148,489,506.11. Customs Commissioner Ariel Nepomuceno credited the BOC's sustained revenue collection performance to continuous monitoring of the values and classifications of imported commodities to ensure accurate duty and tax collection. He added that non-traditional sources, such as audits and public auctions, also boosted revenue collection, intensified border control, and improved trade facilitation, contributing to the consistent revenue efficiency. "These efforts not only increase tax collection but also deter smuggling and illegal activities, leading to higher revenue collection," he further said. "The BOC remains steadfast in its commitment to enhancing revenue collection and contributing to the economic growth of the country. We are proud of this achievement and will continue to work tirelessly to maintain this positive momentum," said Nepomuceno. The BOC is the government's second-highest revenue-generating agency, followed by the Bureau of Internal Revenue (BIR). For 2026, the Department of Budget Coordinating Committee (DBCC) has assigned the BOC to collect P1.184 trillion, an increase of P1.2 billion from last year's P1.064-trillion target, to help finance the P6.793-trillion 2026 national budget. Nepomuceno expressed confidence in the bureau's P1.184-trillion target through various institutional transformations centered on integrity in service, accountability in action, and modernization in governance with the help, support and cooperation of all bureau officials and personnel. "Number one, we will have to modernize through digitalization. Number two, we will need policy interventions, and lastly, we need to reorganize — re-engineer our organization. That's the only way. Believe me, after one year, BOC will be much better than what it is today, with your help," the commissioner said, stressing that these reforms form part of the organization's forward direction and long-term institutional legacy.

- Weather disturbance may develop over the week (2026-03-03 16:04)

AMID the hot and humid weather in most parts of the archipelago, the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (Pagasa) on Tuesday said it was expecting the formation of a low-pressure area (LPA) over the week. But the possible weather disturbance could move away from the country, Pagasa Administrator Nathaniel Servando told The Manila Times via Viber. Servando cited Pagasa's weather outlook, which shows that four tropical cyclones — one each in March and April and two in May — may enter the Philippine Area of Responsibility (PAR). Also, 10 weather disturbances could enter PAR from June to August, or the rainy months, the state-run weather agency said. Asked about the northeast monsoon or "amihan" season, which has weakened in the last few days but resurfaced on Tuesday, Servando said the country could still expect surges of cool, dry winds until the weekend. It may extend up to the middle of next week, with one to two days' break in between, he said. "Climatologically, amihan's end usually coincides near the spring equinox or specifically on March 20 this year," the Pagasa chief said. The national weather bureau said that the spring equinox is the March or vernal equinox, which "marks the astronomical start of spring in the Northern Hemisphere." According to Pagasa, since the Philippines does not have a spring season, the event typically indicates the approaching warm and dry season.

- PAO, PTFOMS renew partnership for media (2026-03-03 16:03)

THE Public Attorney's Office (PAO) has renewed its partnership with the Presidential Task Force on Media Security (PTFOMS) through a memorandum of agreement (MOA) to provide continuous legal aid and support services to media personnel. Held at PAO's central office in Quezon City, the MOA signing between the two agencies would also ensure the conduct of legal education programs and workshops for media practitioners, including editors and even some vloggers in the near future, PAO chief Persida Rueda-Acosta told The Manila Times on Tuesday. A former director of the National Press Club (NPC), PTFOMS Executive Director Joe Torres Jr. said the agreement would symbolize the two agencies' strong commitment to ensuring the safety, rights and welfare of media workers across the country. "In this MOA, we reaffirm our unwavering commitment to a common goal: the protection, safety and security of media practitioners," Torres, also a former Philippine Information Agency chief, pointed out. Under the agreement, PTFOMS will oversee coordination efforts, identify and refer media personnel in need of legal assistance, and collaborate with PAO on training programs and policy advocacy. PAO, for its part, will provide legal aid, representation and conduct workshops to inform media workers about their rights. "I would like to thank PAO chief Acosta and the entire PAO team for their unwavering dedication and steadfast support for press freedom and media safety," Torres said. The chief public attorney noted that her agency had already worked with PTFOMS, extending numerous legal services to several media workers in the past. "So, it was a renewal of the partnership that would always be beneficial to the media practitioners who need legal services, especially court representation, among others," Rueda-Acosta said. During the ceremonial MOA signing, she stressed that the freedom of the press and of expression is the bastion of democracy. "Any individuals, especially people in the government, should be transparent, and if the media practitioners have erred, they should be held accountable in court," the PAO head said. "Without the media, we have no democracy. Democracy is by the people, for the people, and of the people," she emphasized. Both Rueda-Acosta and Torres reiterated that PAO and PTFOMS shall promote awareness and understanding of media-related laws and regulations among media personnel and enhance the overall safety and security environment for media personnel in the Philippines. Deputy Chief Public Attorney Erwin Erfe also signed the agreement as a witness, along with NPC President Leonel Abasola, who thanked the PAO leadership for its commitment to extend all forms of assistance, specifically legal concerns of members of the so-called Fourth Estate.

- Camille Villar takes oath as SET member (2026-03-03 16:02)

SEN. Camille Villar formally assumed her role as a member of the Senate Electoral Tribunal (SET), taking her oath on Monday, March 2, before Senior Associate Justice Marvic Leonen at the Supreme Court of the Philippines. Villar's entry into one of the country's most vital constitutional bodies tasked with safeguarding electoral justice and ensuring the integrity of the democratic process. According to the judiciary, "the Senate Electoral Tribunal is the sole judge of all contests relating to the election, returns, and qualifications of members." Composed of three Supreme Court justices and six senators, the tribunal is an independent body designed to uphold the sanctity of the ballot and, with impartiality, resolve electoral disputes. In her oath-taking, Villar said that her commitment is to protect the people's mandate and uphold the rule of law. Her appointment comes at a time when public trust in democratic institutions remains paramount, and the credibility of electoral processes continues to be closely scrutinized. Justice Leonen, who administers the oath as a senior member of the high court, plays a key role in the tribunal's judicial component. The SET's structure reflects a balance between legislative and judicial oversight, reinforcing constitutional safeguards in electoral contests. Villar's assumption to office signals a renewed pledge to defend democratic principles and ensure that electoral disputes are resolved fairly, transparently, and in accordance with the Constitution. As the country continues to navigate evolving political challenges, the Senate Electoral Tribunal remains a cornerstone of accountability, tasked with preserving the integrity of elections and protecting the will of the Filipino electorate.

- MMDA to deploy 10 fare-free electric Love Buses on C5 (2026-03-03 16:01)

THE Metropolitan Manila Development Authority will deploy 10 fully electric "Love Bus" units offering free rides along the C5 Corridor starting in the last week of April or the first week of May, under a new partnership with Global Electric Transport Philippines. MMDA Chairman Don Artes said Tuesday, March 3, that the 30-passenger buses will run between Robinsons Galleria and Eastwood City, covering major commercial hubs, such as Estancia Mall, Arcovia, Tiendesitas, and the MMDA head office in Pasig, with operations set from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. or 10 p.m. daily depending on passenger demand. The memorandum of agreement was signed at the MMDA head office in Pasig City with GET Philippines President Sigfrido Tinga, formalizing the roles of both parties in implementing the Electric Love Bus Program. Under the agreement, the MMDA will oversee route management, enforcement support, infrastructure assistance, and alignment with public service goals, and GET Philippines will handle the operations and maintenance of the electric buses. Artes said the initiative is expected to ease commuting costs and reduce pollution along key routes, particularly in high-traffic business districts along the C5 Corridor. “Through this partnership, we are introducing fully electric buses that are cleaner, quieter and more modern. These buses will help reduce pollution, ease congestion along key routes, and provide a more comfortable riding experience for passengers,” Artes said. He added that with corporate sponsors’ support, the agency will be able to sustain and further expand its free public transportation services in the National Capital Region. Corporate partners backing the program include Robinsons Land Corp., Megaworld Corp., Ortigas Land, and International Solid Waste Integrated Management Specialist Inc. For his part, Tinga said the program aims to make public transport more palatable, enjoyable, safe and environmentally friendly for commuters, with the MMDA ensuring that the Love Bus operations are properly supported and implemented. Robinsons Land Corp. President and Chief Executive Officer Mybelle Aragon-Gobio expressed gratitude for the collaboration, saying that mobility and urban development must move forward together, especially along the C5 Corridor linking Robinsons Galleria, Bridgetowne, and nearby business districts. The routes approved by the Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board will cover eastbound trips from Robinsons Galleria to Eastwood City via Estancia Mall, MMDA, Arcovia, and Opus Mall, and westbound trips from Eastwood City back to Robinsons Galleria via key C5 stops, including Green Meadows, Tiendesitas, and Julia Vargas. The MMDA chief said each of the 10 buses is expected to complete an average of five to six trips per day, with possible expansion of the Love Bus program to other local government units in Metro Manila once operations along the C5 Corridor are stabilized.

- Mail to 35 countries suspended (2026-03-03 16:01)

THE Philippine Postal Corp. (PHLPost) announced Tuesday the immediate, temporary suspension of all international outbound mail services to 35 countries across Europe, the Middle East, Africa, Asia, and South America due to airspace closures in key transit hubs. The suspension, outlined in an operational advisory, affects all classes of mail, including letters, parcels, and Express Mail Service (EMS). PHLPost said the precautionary measure responds to regional airspace closures in Dubai, United Arab Emirates, and Doha, Qatar, following recent military escalations in the Middle East. These closures have disrupted the primary air transport routes used by PHLPost and its airline partners. “PHLPost continues to prioritize the security of customers’ mail while implementing necessary measures to minimize service delays,” the agency said. The postal corporation is coordinating closely with international postal administrations and customs authorities to ensure the safe handling of mail items and facilitate the gradual restoration of services. The suspension applies to the following countries: Middle East and Africa: Bahrain, Egypt, Jordan, Kuwait, Lebanon, Morocco, Nigeria, Oman, Qatar, Saudi Arabia (Dammam, Jeddah, Riyadh), South Africa, UAE (Dubai), Israel, Iran Europe: Austria, Belgium, Cyprus, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Great Britain, Greece, Ireland, Italy, Netherlands, Spain, Switzerland Asia: Bangladesh, India, Maldives, Pakistan, Sri Lanka South America: Colombia, Brazil PHLPost said it will provide updates as the situation evolves and services are gradually restored.

- Health sector mourns passing of former DOH secretary Bengzon (2026-03-03 16:01)

THE Department of Health (DOH) and members of the health sector on Tuesday mourned the passing of former health secretary Alfredo Rafael Antonio Bengzon. Bengzon served as the agency's secretary from 1986 to 1992. He was 90 years old. In a Facebook post, DOH Secretary Teodoro Herbosa expressed his condolences and paid tribute to Bengzon's legacy. "Bengzon's legacy as Secretary of Health is marked by his courageous efforts to make health care more accessible and affordable for Filipinos," Herbosa said. He credited Bengzon for championing the Generic Drug Law, advocating for access to family planning resources and reorganizing the agency, which he said eliminated "corrupt practices and emphasized public education." "Bengzon's contributions to health care and social reform earned him the 1991 Ramon Magsaysay Award for Government Service. He continues to be recognized for his leadership in health care," Herbosa said. Meanwhile, The Medical City (TMC) and the Ateneo School of Medicine and Public Health (ASMPH) also expressed their condolences, honoring Bengzon as their former president and CEO, and founding dean, respectively. "In the private sector, he was respected for his leadership and for elevating standards of patient care and medical excellence at TMC. He also played a key role in shaping future health professionals through his leadership in academia," the TMC said in a Facebook post. TMC also noted that Bengzon left a lasting legacy for his service. "Through his vision and leadership, ASMPH was established, and generations of physicians were formed in the service of the Filipino people. His legacy will continue to guide our community," the ASMPH said in a separate Facebook post.

Seized from the duo were more or less 750 grams of suspected shabu worth P5,100,000 and buy-bust money. Charges for violating Republic Act 9165, otherwise known as the Comprehensive Dangerous Drugs Act of 2002, will be filed against the suspects.

- Gatchalian vows strict oversight of historic 2026 education spending (2026-03-03 16:01)

SEN. Sherwin Gatchalian on Monday pledged rigorous oversight of government education spending as the Senate Committee on Finance prepares to review the implementation of the 2026 national budget. The education sector has received a historic P1.3 trillion allocation for 2026. Gatchalian, chairman of the Senate finance panel, said lawmakers will closely examine how various agencies plan to utilize the record funding to ensure it translates into tangible improvements in learning outcomes. "Following our historic allocation of funds for the education sector, we will also review the plans of various agencies to ensure that our students and teachers will benefit from it," he said. Under the 2026 General Appropriations Act, education received P1.3 trillion — equivalent to 4.4 percent of the country's gross domestic product. The allocation marks the first time the Philippines has met the global benchmark set by Unesco, which recommends that countries dedicate 4 percent to 6 percent of GDP to education spending. The education budget covers key agencies, including the Department of Education, the Commission on Higher Education, state universities and colleges, and the Technical Education and Skills Development Authority. The proposed inquiry aims to ensure that appropriated funds are aligned with efforts to resolve what education officials have described as a learning crisis, exacerbated by years of pandemic-related disruptions and persistent gaps in foundational skills such as reading and mathematics. Gatchalian stressed that increased funding alone will not be enough. “We need to make sure that this historic budget will address the education crisis and lead to improved learning outcomes,” he said, underscoring the importance of measurable targets and accountability mechanisms.

- 1,416 Pinoys want to be flown home as war escalates (2026-03-03 16:00)

PRESIDENT Ferdinand Marcos Jr. on Tuesday said more than 1,400 Filipinos have reached out to the government for repatriation from different countries in the Middle East as war in the region escalated, but evacuation efforts remained stalled due to airport closures and ongoing missile strikes. In a press conference, Marcos said about 586 Filipinos from Dubai, 297 from Israel, 270 from Abu Dhabi, 231 from Bahrain, 22 from Jordan and 10 from Iran have asked to be repatriated. “Altogether that’s 1,416 Filipino nationals who have requested repatriation,” he said. However, the president said that it has become challenging to repatriate them, as airports in these countries have closed. “Those who helped America and the countries which helped the US are being attacked by Iran as retaliatory strikes,” the president said. “Our situation is very fluid. Our assessment is that it’s dangerous to fly right now even if we are able to get airplanes because number one, the airports are closed. They are all no-fly zones. This is a combat area,” he added. The president said they have initially planned to repatriate overseas Filipinos through areas that were not affected in the beginning. Marcos said that even transporting the Filipinos by land was also dangerous due to friendly fire incidents. “It’s an active combat zone and if they see that there are a lot of vehicles, maybe they will attack them because they will misidentify it as some hostile movement,” he said. Marcos said the government remained in constant contact with labor attachés, ambassadors, labor and defense attachés, to determine the situation on the ground. The president also assured the overseas Filipinos in the Middle East that despite the challenge, the government would find ways to get them out safely. He advised them to “stay in a safe place and stay indoors and stay away from areas of danger.” “And that is the advice we have given to our nationals in Israel and also our nationals everywhere else if you are in a safe place, if you’re far from the conflict, just stay put and be safe. And we will slowly try to find ways to get you out safely,” he said. Israel – the most dangerous area The president also said that “the most dangerous area for our people now would be Israel.” Filipina caregiver Charlot David, who has been in Israel since 2008, made the run back and forth to the bomb shelter several times before deciding it was better to simply stay there. The 44-year-old mother of four, who has lived through “several wars” since moving to Israel, knew exactly what to do when the ear-splitting alert on her mobile phone first woke her on Saturday. “Our flat is three minutes away from the bomb shelter, so we really have to run fast,” she told Agence France-Presse (AFP) in a video interview from her employer’s home in Rehovot, a city 20 kilometers south of Tel Aviv. The caregiver is one of an estimated 2 million overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) in the region, sending billions of dollars in remittances home each year to families in the Philippines that depend on them as the primary breadwinners. “There were several alerts until we concluded, OK, this is no joke. It’s Iran. So, we decided to stay inside the bomb shelter,” David said. Eight months earlier, a neighbor had not been so lucky when hostilities first erupted between Iran, Israel and the United States. “A ballistic missile hit our area, a flat occupied by Filipinos... A fellow Filipina died there, our neighbor,” she said, calling the experience deeply traumatic. Anita Bautista, who said alerts had sounded “from morning until dawn,” said the latest conflict was “more scary” than others she has lived through in her 12 years in Israel. “Before, [the missiles] were not hitting the ground, but now some people are getting killed,” said the mother of two who works in the Tel Aviv suburb Petah Tikva. On Sunday, the new outbreak of hostilities claimed their first victim from the archipelago nation of 116 million: Mary Ann Velasquez de Vera, a 32-year-old caregiver killed as she attempted to escort her elderly ward to an Israeli bomb shelter. Filipinos working in Dubai and Bahrain described being woken by window-rattling explosions and witnessing drones zipping overhead before exploding into nearby buildings. The Philippine government said Monday there were no plans in place for wide-scale repatriations — an expensive and logistically complicated proposition. However, about 80-100 OFWs working in the United Arab Emirates were seeking repatriation, with a similar number of requests from Israel, Migrant Workers Secretary Hans Leo Cacdac told an afternoon briefing. But Josie Pinkihan of labor rights group Migrante International urged broader action. “Before the Iran-US war worsens, our countrymen should be repatriated now,” she said in an interview at the group’s Manila headquarters, saying the scale of evacuations demanded the process begin immediately. David, the caregiver, however, said she could not envision leaving Israel unless she had “no choice.” “We have families in the Philippines who rely on us,” she said. To date, only de Vera has been confirmed as fatality on the Philippines’ behalf. She died from a bomb shrapnel following an airstrike on Tel Aviv. Military ready The Philippine Air Force (PAF) on Tuesday said it was ready to deploy planes if the Philippine government calls for an immediate repatriation of Filipinos stranded in the Middle East. Col. Ma. Christina Basco, PAF spokesman, told reporters in a press briefing in Camp Aguinaldo they would most likely deploy its C130s. The Philippine Navy is also ready to deploy sealift vessels, Capt. Marissa Martinez said. Rear Admiral Roy Vincent Trinidad, AFP spokesman for the West Philippine Sea, said the entire military is now drafting contingency plans awaiting signal from higher authorities for deployment. Deep concern Sen. Erwin Tulfo, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, on Saturday expressed deep concern over the latest escalation of tensions in Iran and other parts of the Middle East following major combat operations between Israel, the United States, and Iran. “We are deeply alarmed by the latest escalation of tensions in various areas in the Middle East,” Tulfo said in a statement. “The situation poses serious risks to civilian populations, including our fellow Filipinos in the region.” Tulfo said the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) has been proactive in ensuring exit points for about 823 Filipinos currently in Iran, as well as the thousands of Filipinos residing and working in Israel. He added that Philippine embassies in other affected areas have already established procedures for Filipinos seeking assistance.

MANILA, Philippines—The Department of Health (DOH) on Tuesday mourned the passing of former Health secretary Alfredo Rafael Antonio Bengzon. Bengzon served as the agency's secretary from 1986 to 1992. He was 90 years old. In a Facebook post, DOH Secretary Ted Herbosa expressed his condolences and paid tribute to Bengzon's legacy. "Bengzon's legacy as Secretary of Health is marked by his courageous efforts to make healthcare more accessible and affordable for Filipinos," Herbosa said.

MANILA, Philippines —The House of Representatives' Committee on Suffrage and Electoral Reforms approved on Tuesday the anti-political dynasty bill that prohibited spouses and up to "second degree" relatives from simultaneously holding or seeking elective posts. "The speaker's version, which is House Bill 6771, has obtained the biggest number of co-authorships [...]. That is why the committee decided that the version that was filed by the House speaker and the majority leader will be used as the working draft and finally, it also became our substitute bill that we have adopted," said Lanao del Sur 1st District Rep. Zia Alonto Adiong, the committee chairman, in a press conference. House Bill 6671 was principally authored by Speaker and Isabela 6th District Rep. Faustino Dy III and Majority Leader and Ilocos Norte 1st District Rep. Ferdinand Alexander Marcos. "For nearly four decades, the Constitution has directed Congress to prohibit political dynasties. Today, we move closer to fulfilling that mandate," Dy said in a statement on Tuesday after the substitute bill was approved. "At the national level, spouses and second-degree relatives are barred from simultaneously holding any national elective position, including President, Vice President and Senator," the statement read. The prohibition under the committee-approved bill "applies within the same provincial government, the same city or municipality, and the same barangay," it said. Barangay means village.

- Middle East tensions won't affect US support for PH military - AFP (2026-03-03 09:20)

MANILA, Philippines — Tensions in the Middle East will have no effect on US military support to the Philippines despite the US' ongoing war against Iran, the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) said on Tuesday. “There's been no marked observed downscale in the support of our treaty ally or even other like-minded nations when it comes to West Philippine Sea activities especially MMCAs (Multilateral Maritime Cooperative Activities) even maybe forthcoming exercises,” Rear Admiral “The MMCA recently conducted is a classic example of that. So there's been no marked dip in the support of our treaty ally,” Trinidad said. Trinidad cited recent MMCAs with other allies in the West Philippine Sea that showed US' full commitment to the joint naval drills despite ongoing war with Iran. US President Donald Trump pronounced that “Operation Epic Fury” could last up to five weeks but assured that the American military was prepared for extended strikes against Iran for up to five months. Officials and analysts warned that certain US missile and air-defense interceptor inventories have been severely downed by relentless operations.

- Israel assures lifelong assistance to family of slain Filipina caregiver (2026-03-03 09:14)

MANILA, Philippines — The Israeli government assured comprehensive assistance, including lifelong livelihood support, to the family of Filipina caregiver Mary Ann Velasquez de Vera who was killed in an Iranian airstrike in Tel Aviv, according to Israeli Ambassador to Manila Dana Kursh. Speaking during a media briefing on Tuesday, Ambassador Kursh said Israel would extend the same type of support provided to families of individuals harmed in war or terrorist attacks under Israeli law. “I can guarantee that the government of Israel will have this family and will provide everything that's necessary to provide as much comfort to this family as possible,” Kursh said. She explained that Israeli law provided benefits for individuals—whether Israeli citizens or foreigners—who are harmed in incidents related to war or terrorism, including livelihood assistance for their families for life. Kursh said the assistance package would be administered through Israel's national security system, which provides long-term support to affected families. “It will not bring back Mary Ann. It will not take away the pain from this family, the husband and the rest of the family. But it will try to ease at least a bit the day-to-day [burden] of the family,” she said. The ambassador also said she would personally represent the Israeli government when De Vera's remains were repatriated to the Philippines. “I will be there once her body will be brought back. I will be there at the airport, and I will be with the family,” Kursh said, adding that the gesture is meant to convey Israel's solidarity with the bereaved family. De Vera was among the Filipinos caught in the escalating conflict in the Middle East, where tensions have intensified following exchanges of attacks between Israel, Iran and the US.

MANILA, Philippines — The Philippine Postal Corporation (PHLPost) announced on Tuesday that it was suspending all international outbound mail services to 35 countries across Europe, the Middle East, Africa, Asia, and South America due to airspace closures in key transit hubs. These closures have disrupted the primary air transport routes used by PHLPPost and its airline partners. “PHLPPost continues to prioritize the security of customers’ mail while implementing necessary measures to minimize service delays,” the agency said. The postal corporation is coordinating closely with international postal administrations and customs authorities to ensure the safe handling of mail items and facilitate the gradual restoration of services. MANILA, Philippines – President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. and First Lady Liza Araneta-Marcos on Tuesday afternoon welcomed South Korean President Lee Jae Myung and First Lady Kim Hea Kyung to Malacañang who arrived in Manila for a two-day State Visit. Marcos, members of his Cabinet, and other officials accorded them arrival honors in the Palace. Marcos and Lee are scheduled to have a bilateral meeting, followed by the presentation of signed agreements and their joint press conference. It is the first visit of a Korean leader to the country since the Free Trade Agreement (FTA) between the two countries came into effect on December 2024 and also coinciding with the 77th anniversary of the establishment of diplomatic relations between the Philippine and South Korean in March 1949. This is the first face-to-face meeting between Marcos and Lee since they last met at the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) Summit in Gyeongju, South Korea last November.

- Fears of retaliatory attacks on EDCA sites unfounded, says DND chief (2026-03-03 05:18)

MANILA, Philippines – Department of National Defense Secretary Gilberto Teodoro Jr. on Tuesday tagged as unfounded concerns that Enhanced Defense Cooperation Agreement (EDCA) sites around the country are potential targets for Iran’ s retaliatory attacks due to the Philippines being a military ally of the United States. “No. That is unfounded because we cannot compare the situation in the Middle East here in the Philippines. Our bilateral and multilateral alliances are for defensive purposes and deterrent purposes only,” Teodoro said in Filipino in an interview with Malacañang reporters. The United States and Israel launched airstrikes against Iran on Feb. 28, which triggered Tehran to strike back and attack American bases across the Middle East, including Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, Jordan, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates. In the Philippines, there are nine EDCA sites: the Cesar Basa Air Base in Floridablanca, Pampanga; Fort Magsaysay Military Reservation in Nueva Ecija; Lumbia Airport in Cagayan de Oro; Antonio Bautista Air Base in Puerto Princesa, Palawan; Benito Ebuena Air Base in Cebu; Naval Base Camilo Osias in Santa Ana, Cagayan; Lal-lo Airport in Lal-lo, Cagayan; Camp Melchor Dela Cruz in Gamu, Isabela; and Balabac Island in Palawan. Teodoro echoed earlier statements from the DND and the Armed Forces of the Philippines that the military installations are not US-controlled bases and remain under the full ownership, control and management of the Philippine military. “These concerns, I will repeat, are baseless. Right now, I will repeat what the Armed Forces said: There is no direct threat to the security of the Republic of the Philippines in the military sense of what is happening in the Middle East right now,” he said.

- Marcos: 1,460 Pinoys seek repatriation as Middle East conflict continues (2026-03-03 04:38)

(UPDATE) MANILA, Philippines — President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. on Tuesday said that at least 1,460 Filipinos have reached out to the government for repatriation from different countries in the Middle East amid regional conflict. In a press conference in Malacañang, Marcos urged Filipinos in the Middle East to follow local advisories and stay put for now, as repatriation efforts were not possible at the moment. “We will slowly try to find ways, for those who want to be repatriated, we will find ways to get you out safely,” Marcos, addressing those seeking repatriation. “Stay indoors, stay away from areas of danger,” he added. As of Tuesday, around 586 OFWs from Dubai have asked for repatriation, 297 from Israel, 270 from Abu Dhabi, 231 from Bahrain, 22 from Jordan and 10 from Iran. In the same press briefing, Marcos Jr. also called for a stop to hostilities in the Middle East, expressing hope the crisis ends “as quickly as possible.” Marcos said that although the Philippines was not directly involved, it is hoping “for the fighting to stop.” “We are only involved tangentially, if you want to call it that, because of our people who are there. We have expressed support for the countries who have come under attack and we have made our feelings known that we hope that this crisis ends as quickly as possible,” he said. “Let’s hope that there is a ceasefire and we, the Philippines, ask for all parties to show restraint and to bring this to a close,” he added. To date, one fatality has been confirmed — 32-year-old Mary Anne Velasquez De Vera, a Filipina caregiver based in Israel. She died from a bomb shrapnel following Iran’s airstrike on Tel Aviv.

- Petroleum products excise tax suspension pushed (2026-03-03 04:33)

MANILA, Philippines — Sen. Joseph Victor Ejercito renewed his call for the immediate passage of a bill mandating the automatic suspension of excise taxes on petroleum products if the Dubai crude oil price exceeds $80 per barrel. The senator made the appeal amid conflict in the Middle East involving the United States, Israel and Iran, which might lead to oil price hikes. Industry players have warned of an oil price adjustment next week if the conflict in the Mideast continues following the bombing of Iran by Israel and the United States. Under current law, excise taxes add 10 pesos per liter on gasoline, 6 pesos per liter on diesel and 3 pesos per liter on kerosene, as imposed under Republic Act 10963, or the Tax Reform for Acceleration and Inclusion (TRAIN) Law. There were reports that local oil firms will implement another round of fuel price increases, marking the 10th straight week of diesel hikes. Ejercito filed Senate Bill 5, which seeks to automatically suspend the imposition of excise tax on regular gasoline, unleaded premium gasoline and diesel fuel oil when the average Dubai crude oil price based on Mean of Platts Singapore reaches $80 per barrel. In a statement, the Senate deputy majority leader said oil price hikes have a domino effect on food prices, public transportation fares and other prime commodities. “It is clear that the first to feel the effect of oil price increase are the ordinary citizens — our [jeepney and bus] drivers, our farmers, small businesses, and each family which rely on everyday earnings,” he said in Filipino. “Our kababayans (fellow Filipinos) need a practical and immediate solution when faced with unforeseen events such as the recent developments in the Middle East that impact their daily lives and livelihood,” Ejercito said.

MANILA, Philippines — Two people died and three others were injured on Tuesday when a Bell 505 Jet Ranger X helicopter went down in Rizal, the Civil Aviation Authority of the Philippines (CAAP) reported. The crash occurred in Upper Barak, Barangay Quisao, Pililia near a residential area where high-tension wires pose a risk to low-flying aircraft. One victim was declared dead on the scene, while the second was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital. “The aircraft (with registry RP-C3138) was en route from Manila to Quezon Province when the incident occurred,” the aviation regulator said. CAAP added that its Aircraft Accident Investigation and Inquiry Board (AAIIB) was currently investigating the cause of the crash. The crash site is known for zero visibility and thick fog-conditions that previously forced an emergency landing for Senator Bong Go’s helicopter in December 2024. The senator was en route to Mabitac, Laguna to attend an official event at the time. The Bell 505 Jet Ranger X is a modern five-seat, single-engine light turbine helicopter featuring a fully integrated glass cockpit and a Safran Arrius 2R engine.

- Marcos assures sufficient oil supply amid Middle East conflict (2026-03-03 04:17)

MANILA, Philippines — President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. on Tuesday assured Filipinos that the country has enough oil supplies amid the ongoing conflict in the Middle East. In a press conference at Malacañang, Marcos said the Philippines has enough stocks of gasoline, diesel, jet fuel, and kerosene to last over a month. He said the government would also provide targeted fuel subsidies to affected sectors, such as agriculture and transport, if oil prices reach $80 per barrel. "We have sufficient supply of oil. We have a stockpile of 50-60 days in terms of gasoline, fuel oil, kerosene," Marcos said.

- Govt prepares fuel subsidy for public transport drivers if oil hits \$80 per barrel (2026-03-03 02:29)

MANILA, Philippines — The Department of Transportation (DOTr) and the Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board (LTFRB) are preparing the necessary documentation for the possible release of fuel subsidies to public utility vehicle (PUV) operators and drivers once global oil prices reach $80 per barrel, Transportation Secretary Giovanni Lopez said. Lopez said the agency had instructed the road transport sector to begin processing the requirements so the assistance could be distributed immediately once the price threshold is met. The preparation follows the directive of President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. to ensure that government aid for PUV operators and drivers was ready amid tensions in the Middle East that could drive up global oil prices. "What is more interesting right now is we have a fuel subsidy. I instructed the road sector to start the documentation, the processing of the fuel subsidy so that if we meet the threshold of $80 per barrel, what we will basically do is to give the subsidy," Lopez said. The transportation chief said the government had earmarked about P2.5 billion for the fuel subsidy program intended to cushion the impact of rising fuel costs on the public transport sector. Lopez also said the LTFRB was currently evaluating pending petitions seeking fare increases for public utility vehicles. "Even without the problem now in the Middle East, the LTFRB has already been studying the possibility of a fare hike. They have a pending petition with that," he said.

- Foreigner, accomplices in 5 illegal recruitment cases in Batangas faces 2 more (2026-03-03 01:54)

MANILA, Philippines — Two Filipino event coordinators filed a joint complaint-affidavit before the Department of Justice (DOJ)-Office of the City Prosecutor in Tagaytay City accusing several foreigners, including a London-based Italian, of illegal recruitment and estafa. The complaint, filed by Sheryl Lopez and John Michael Umali, named Italian Adel En Nouri and several others as respondents. It came just days after similar charges were leveled against En Nouri in Batangas, bringing to seven the total number of criminal complaints lodged against him. In their seven-page affidavit dated Feb. 27, 2026, Lopez and Umali alleged that they were recruited by respondents with promises of high-paying jobs in Singapore, only to be detained, intimidated, and defrauded of significant amounts of money. The complainants said they first met the local respondents—Clarence Co Quilop, Brian James De Jesus So, Micheangelo Tang Co, Jacqueline Sio, and Krizzria Ann Geronda Loyang—at an event at Balay Dako in Tagaytay City. The group allegedly represented themselves as personnel of Tamber International Placement Agency and offered overseas employment. The complainants stated that on Dec. 1, 2024, and again on Dec. 7, 2024, the respondents assured them of jobs in Singapore with a monthly salary of SGD 2,000. During a meeting on Dec. 12, the suspects allegedly demanded P100,000 from each complainant as placement fee, which they paid and were issued acknowledgment receipts. On Dec. 14, the complainants were instructed to proceed to a coffee shop in Tagaytay and were told to bring personal belongings for a five-day orientation. Upon arrival, their mobile phones were confiscated and they were allegedly prohibited from leaving the premises. They were subjected to an orientation via video call by En Nouri and Narwani Ricky Ravin. The complainants further claimed that Ravin, acting under En Nouri's instructions, threatened them with document destruction and blacklisting if they failed to comply. They were also allegedly pressured by two other foreigners—Prerna Giani and Nisha Deepak Khelmani—to sign blank employment forms. On the morning of Dec. 20, the complainants escaped when they noticed the main door unguarded and immediately sought assistance from authorities.

Previous Cases Mounting The complaint against En Nouri and his alleged cohorts is the latest in a series of criminal cases filed against the Italian. Last week, two female victims from Batangas—Samantha Corpuz and Fatima de Vera—filed a separate complaint before the Office of the City Prosecutor in Santo Tomas City, accusing En Nouri and seven others of large-scale illegal recruitment and estafa over bogus caregiver jobs in Canada and the United Arab Emirates. In that complaint, Corpuz and de Vera alleged they were persuaded to pay P120,000 each for supposed immediate processing and deployment, only to discover that the respondents were not licensed to recruit workers for overseas employment. The Manila Times reported that En Nouri has been the subject of multiple criminal complaints for his alleged involvement in fraudulent recruitment schemes. As of November 2025, he reportedly faced at least five criminal cases in various Philippine courts, including in Bacoor City and Tanauan City. With the addition of the Batangas and Tagaytay complaints, the Italian now faces a total of seven criminal complaints filed by Filipino jobseekers accusing him and his associates of illegal recruitment, serious illegal detention, and estafa. A verification with the Department of Migrant Workers (DMW) attached to the Tagaytay complaint confirmed that Tamber International Placement Agency was not licensed or authorized to recruit workers for overseas employment. The complainants are now seeking the filing of criminal charges for Illegal Recruitment in Large Scale under Sections 5 and 6 of Republic Act 8042 (as amended by RA 10022), and for Estafa under Article 315 of the Revised Penal Code. The case is undergoing preliminary investigation before the Office of the City Prosecutor in Tagaytay City.

- Cool weather from ‘amihan’ returns to extreme Northern Luzon (2026-03-02 23:01)

MANILA, Philippines—As expected, the northeast monsoon, locally known as ‘amihan’ , has resurfaced, affecting extreme Northern Luzon, particularly Batanes and Babuyan Islands, the state weather bureau said on Tuesday. Weather specialist Chenel Dominguez of the Philippine Atmospheric Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (Pagasa) said in a 5 a.m. briefing that the cool winds brought by amihaan would no longer be as strong as in previous months. She said that the weather bureau Pagasa has not monitored any low-pressure area forming within or outside the Philippine Area of Responsibility over the next 24 hours. Meanwhile, Metro Manila and the rest of the country would have partly cloudy to cloudy skies with isolated rain showers or thunderstorms due to the easterlies—winds that pass through the Pacific Ocean and carry warm, humid weather, according to the Pagasa forecaster. “Hot and humid temperatures would be expected, especially during late morning until mid-afternoon in most parts of the archipelago due to the effects of the easterlies,” she said.

- PH maintains crisis alert levels in 8 Mideast countries amid escalating conflict (2026-03-02 18:38)

MANILA, Philippines -- The Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) said it was maintaining existing crisis alert levels in at least eight countries in the Middle East affected by the armed conflict involving Iran, and Israel and the United States. In a statement on Monday, the DFA said it had coordinated with Philippine embassies and consulates over the past 72 hours, which remain “on the ground and vigilant” in their respective jurisdictions. The department said concerned officials continued to monitor security developments and assess the condition of thousands of Filipinos living and working in the region. The DFA urged Filipinos to heed local authorities and comply with travel advisories as instability persists in several areas. It urged Filipinos in affected areas to follow the advisories of their host governments, remain vigilant, and observe all relevant travel advisories. Under the current framework, the highest alert — Level 4, or mandatory evacuation — remains in effect for Syria and Yemen, as well as in Gaza. At this level, Filipinos are urged to evacuate and join government-led repatriation efforts, and travel to those areas is prohibited. Alert Level 3, which calls for voluntary repatriation, remains in place for Iraq and Lebanon. The designation reflects significant unrest or the threat of imminent external attack. Filipinos in these countries are advised to consider relocation or returning to the Philippines, and nonessential travel is strongly discouraged. Several other areas are under Alert Level 2, or the restriction phase, including Iran, the Kurdish region of Iraq, the State of Israel and the West Bank. Under this level, Filipinos are urged to shelter in place, avoid high-risk areas and limit nonessential movement, as embassies activate contingency plans. Jordan remains under Alert Level 1, the precautionary phase, indicating limited or localized threats. Filipinos there are advised to exercise normal caution and avoid affected areas. The department said crisis management teams and contingency plans had been activated as required under each alert level.

- Pinay caregiver killed in airstrike in Israel found running to shelter 'tiring' but stayed with ward (2026-03-02 18:01)

MANILA, Philippines — Mary Anne Velasquez De Vera, the Filipina killed in the Iranian airstrike in Tel Aviv, Israel over the weekend, posted on her Facebook page that it was exhausting to seek safety in a shelter. It was to be her final post before de Vera, a caregiver, died from injuries caused by a shrapnel after an Iranian missile struck her apartment in Tel Aviv while she was assisting her ward to safety on Saturday. In a now expired Facebook story, the 32-year-old from Basista, Pangasinan said in Filipino: “Every minute. It’s tiring to run to the shelter.” “She reportedly refused to leave her patient behind and was “injured while selflessly assisting her patient to safety during Operation Roaring Lion on March 1, 2026,” according to the statement released by the Israeli embassy in the Philippines. Her identity was confirmed through biometric records at the Abu Kabir Forensic Institute, where her husband, also a migrant worker in Israel, positively identified her remains, the embassy added. It said the Filipina caregiver “exemplified resilience, compassion, and quiet strength” and joined De Vera’s family and the Filipino people in “profound sorrow” over her death. “We mourn together and honor Mary Ann’s memory with dignity and respect,” the embassy said. The Philippine Embassy in Israel said de Vera had been working in Israel since 2019. Meanwhile, Department of Migrant Workers (DMW) Secretary Hand Leo Cacdac disclosed he has spoken to De Vera’s husband and the agency was now making necessary arrangements to bring her remains back to the Philippines. “We will wait for the right time to do this. The family also understands that. As I said the husband is also in Israel. So, we will wait for the appropriate time for the remains of OFW Mary Ann to be brought home,” Cacdac said in Filipino in a briefing in Malacañang. “But we’re in good hands because, as I said, the Israeli government is fully backing us in these endeavors. So, in due time, the remains of OFW Mary Ann will be home safely,” he added. Personnel from the DMW and Overseas Workers Welfare Administration (OWWA) have also been deployed to be with De Vera’s family in Pangasinan and her husband in Tel Aviv, Cacdac said. Philippine Ambassador to Israel Aileen Mendiola called the husband to convey the embassy’s condolences and assured him of the Philippine government’s full assistance.

- Iran war spreads across Middle East, US embassy in Kuwait burns (2026-03-02 16:17)

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates — Iran and Iranian-backed militias fired missiles at Israel and Arab states, apparently hitting the US Embassy compound in Kuwait, while Israel and the United States pounded targets in Iran as the war expanded on Monday with statements of defiance and increasing casualties. Fire and smoke rose from inside the embassy compound in Kuwait City and an alarm wailed after the Iranian attack, which came not long after the US issued a warning to Americans there to take cover and for others to stay away. There were no immediate reports on damage or casualties. Meantime, as the American and Israeli airstrikes continued, top Iranian security official Ali Larijani vowed defiantly on X that “we will not negotiate with the United States.” In Iraq, a pro-Iranian militia claimed responsibility for a drone attack targeting US troops at the Baghdad airport, the day after it said it fired at a US base in the city of Irbil in the north, and Cyprus said a drone attack targeted a British base on the Mediterranean island nation. Israel and the US bombed Iranian missile sites and targeted its navy, claiming to have destroyed its headquarters and multiple warships. More than 200 people have been killed since the start of the strikes, according to Iranian leaders. Also on Monday, Israel bombarded Lebanon, expanding conflict across the region after the massive Israel-US attack on Iran that President Donald Trump launched to topple Tehran's ruling clerics. Israeli forces pounded targets across Lebanon including Beirut, after Hezbollah, the Tehran-backed armed Shiite Muslim movement, fired rockets towards Israel in retaliation for the killing of Iran's supreme leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei. The Israeli strikes in Lebanon killed at least 31 people and wounded 149 others, Lebanon's Health Ministry said. About two-thirds of the dead were in the country's south. Following its initial strikes on Beirut, Israel urged civilians in nearly 50 villages in eastern and southern Lebanon to evacuate ahead of more possible attacks, sending people fleeing. Lebanon's government said it was holding an emergency meeting after Hezbollah's attack on Israel triggered the Israeli airstrikes. "Large-scale strikes" were also ongoing in the heart of Tehran, Israeli forces said, as the US military widened its targets across Iran on Sunday. Retaliating against the heavy strikes that Washington said destroyed the headquarters of the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps (IRGC), Iranian forces fired missiles and drones across the Middle East, claiming lives in Israel and the United Arab Emirates. Fresh explosions were heard across Doha, Dubai and Manama on Monday morning. Trump vowed to avenge the first US deaths, telling the New York Times that the United States and Israel could keep up the same level of attacks for four to five weeks. "It won't be difficult. We have tremendous amounts of ammunition," he said, adding he had a shortlist of three unnamed people he favored to lead Iran after the war. But Ali Larjani, the powerful head of Tehran's Supreme National Security Council, voiced defiance. Iran "will not negotiate with the United States," he wrote on X, adding that "Trump plunged the region into chaos with his 'delusional fantasies' and now fears more American troop casualties." Iranian response Iran has been firing missiles at Israel and Arab states in a counteroffensive since the joint America-Israeli attack Saturday that killed Khamenei and many top Iranian officials. Gulf Arab states have warned that they could retaliate against Iran after strikes that hit key sites and killed at least five civilians. Trump has urged Iranians to "take over" their government and, while he has also signaled he would be open to dialogue with new leadership there following the death of Khamenei, suggested Sunday there was no end in sight to the military operations. "Combat operations continue at this time in full-force, and they will continue until all of our objectives are achieved," he said in a video message. "We have very strong objectives," he added, without elaborating. The US military said B-2 stealth bombers struck Iran's ballistic missile facilities with 2,000-pound bombs. Trump said on social media that nine Iranian warships had been sunk and that the Iranian navy's headquarters had been "largely destroyed." In an indication the conflict could draw in other nations, Britain, France and Germany said they were ready to work with the US to help stop Iran's attacks, and a group of Gulf Arab countries said it reserved the right to respond to Iranian strikes. The weekend attacks were the second combined strikes in eight months from the US and Israel against Iran. In the 12-day war last June, Israeli and American strikes greatly weakened Iran's air defenses, military leadership and nuclear program. But the killing of Khamenei, who ruled Iran for more than three decades, creates a leadership vacuum, increasing the risk of regional instability. Also Monday, the World Health Organization called for sparing civilians and health care facilities in the Middle East amid the escalating conflict. "The protection of civilians and health care must be absolute,” Hanan Balkhy, regional dietitian at WHO wrote on social media. “All parties must ... ensure medical facilities remain protected.” Trump and Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu have urged Iranians to overthrow the government in Iran, the sworn foe of Israel and the United States since the 1979 Islamic revolution toppled the pro-Western shah. In a video address, Trump urged Iranian security forces “to lay down your arms and receive full immunity or face certain death.” “It will be certain death,” he repeated. “It won’t be pretty.” The Pentagon said that three US service members were killed in the operation and five seriously wounded in the operation it has called “Epic Fury.” “Sadly, there will likely be more before it ends,” Trump said. “That’s the way it is.” “But America will avenge their deaths and deliver the most punishing blow to the terrorists who have waged war against, basically, civilization.” Trump, who campaigned denouncing foreign interventions, has done little to explain the case for war to the US public. Attacks across Middle East Explosions rocked Beirut before dawn and southern Lebanon residents fled, according to Agence France-Presse (AFP) journalists, after the Israeli military announced it was striking both parts of the country. In the city of Sidon, cars of families escaping from further south packed roads. Hezbollah, which was weakened by an earlier Israeli offensive, said it had fired rockets and drones at Israel “in retaliation for the pure blood” of Khamenei — the first time it has claimed such an attack since a November 2024 ceasefire agreement following a year of war between them. Lebanese Prime Minister Nawaf Salam, whose government has pushed for Hezbollah’s disarmament, called Monday’s rocket fire “irresponsible.” Such action “endangers Lebanon’s security and safety, and gives Israel pretexts to continue its attacks on it,” Salam said on X. In Israel, an Iranian missile attack killed at least nine people and injured dozens more in the central city of Beit Shemesh, after a death the previous day near Tel Aviv. Three people were also injured on one of the main roads of Jerusalem. Iran’s President Masoud Pezeshkian, whose elected role is subordinate to that of the supreme leader, called Khamenei’s killing a “declaration of war against Muslims.” “Iran considers it its legitimate duty and right to avenge the perpetrators,” Pezeshkian said. Rise up Israel and the United States attacked Iran weeks after authorities ruthlessly crushed mass protests, killing thousands. The demonstrations, initially sparked by economic anxiety but also including calls for greater social freedoms, were considered one of the most serious threats to the religious state. Trump called on Iranians to rise up and said, “America is with you.” Reza Pahlavi, the son of the late shah, cautioned Iranians to stay vigilant in the face of air strikes and await the right moment to return to the streets. But he also urged “nightly chants” against the Islamic republic. Cheers were heard as some Iranians celebrated reports of the death of Khamenei, but after state media confirmed his killing, pro-government demonstrations also formed, chanting “Death to America!” Iran named Ayatollah Alireza Arafai to join Pezeshkian on an interim leadership council to lead the country while a permanent successor is found for the supreme leader. Mixed support While many in the Iranian diaspora cheered Khamenei’s death, anger was seen on the streets of Iran’s neighbor Pakistan where officials said 17 people were killed and protesters tried to storm the US consulate in Karachi. World leaders have given a mixed reaction to the attack, which came two days after Iran and the United States held talks on Tehran’s nuclear program. British Prime Minister Keir Starmer said Sunday that he would let the United States use UK bases for “defensive” strikes but that his country — a steadfast partner in the US-led wars in Iraq and Afghanistan — “will not join offensive action now.” Iran’s first retaliatory strikes on Saturday hit all the Gulf states apart from mediator Oman. On Sunday, Oman’s commercial port of Duqm was hit by two drones, injuring a foreign worker, the Oman News Agency said. Three ships were also attacked in the Strait of Hormuz on Sunday after Iran had previously declared the strategic waterway was closed, sending global oil prices spiking. The Revolutionary Guards claimed to strike the aircraft carrier USS Abraham Lincoln, but the Pentagon said the “missiles launched didn’t even come close.” Trump said that US military strikes had sunk nine Iranian naval vessels and partially destroyed its navy headquarters. Iran’s retaliatory strikes in the Gulf have killed at least four people and wounded dozens of others. Inside Iran, the Red Crescent in its last toll issued on Saturday evening said that strikes had killed 201 people and injured hundreds more. Iran’s judiciary confirmed that Ali Shamkhani, a top adviser to Khamenei, and Gen. Mohammad Pakpour, the head of Revolutionary Guards, were among those killed.

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates — Iran and Iranian-backed militias fired missiles at Israel and Arab states, apparently hitting the US Embassy compound in Kuwait, while Israel and the United States pounded targets in Iran as the war expanded on Monday with statements of defiance and increasing casualties. Fire and smoke rose from inside the embassy compound in Kuwait City and an alarm wailed after the Iranian attack, which came not long after the US issued a warning to Americans there to take cover and for others to stay away. There were no immediate reports on damage or casualties. Meantime, as the American and Israeli airstrikes continued, top Iranian security official Ali Larijani vowed defiantly on X that “we will not negotiate with the United States.” In Iraq, a pro-Iranian militia claimed responsibility for a drone attack targeting US troops at the Baghdad airport, the day after it said it fired at a US base in the city of Irbil in the north, and Cyprus said a drone attack targeted a British base on the Mediterranean island nation. Israel and the US bombed Iranian missile sites and targeted its navy, claiming to have destroyed its headquarters and multiple warships. More than 200 people have been killed since the start of the strikes, according to Iranian leaders. Also on Monday, Israel bombarded Lebanon, expanding conflict across the region after the massive Israel-US attack on Iran that President Donald Trump launched to topple Tehran’s ruling clerics. Israeli forces pounded targets across Lebanon including Beirut, after Hezbollah, the Tehran-backed armed Shiite Muslim movement, fired rockets towards Israel in retaliation for the killing of Iran’s supreme leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei. The Israeli strikes in Lebanon killed at least 31 people and wounded 149 others, Lebanon’s Health Ministry said. About two-thirds of the dead were in the country’s south. Following its initial strikes on Beirut, Israel urged civilians in nearly 50 villages in eastern and southern Lebanon to evacuate ahead of more possible attacks, sending people fleeing. Lebanon’s government said it was holding an emergency meeting after Hezbollah’s attack on Israel triggered the Israeli airstrikes. “Large-scale strikes” were also ongoing in the heart of Tehran, Israeli forces said, as the US military widened its targets across Iran on Sunday. Retaliating against the heavy strikes that Washington said destroyed the headquarters of the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps (IRGC), Iranian forces fired missiles and drones across the Middle East, claiming lives in Israel and the United Arab Emirates. Fresh explosions were heard across Doha, Dubai and Manama on Monday morning. Trump vowed to avenge the first US deaths, telling the New York Times that the United States and Israel could keep up the same level of attacks for four to five weeks. “It won’t be difficult. We have tremendous amounts of ammunition,” he said, adding he had a shortlist of three unnamed people he favored to lead Iran after the war. But Ali Larijani, the powerful head of Tehran’s Supreme National Security Council, voiced defiance. Iran “will not negotiate with the United States,” he wrote on X, adding that “Trump plunged the region into chaos with his ‘delusional fantasies’ and now fears more American troop casualties.” Iranian response Iran has been firing missiles at Israel and Arab states in a counteroffensive since the joint America-Israeli attack Saturday that killed Khamenei and many top Iranian officials. Gulf Arab states have warned that they could retaliate against Iran after strikes that hit key sites and killed at least five civilians. Trump has urged Iranians to “take over” their government and, while he has also signaled he would be open to dialogue with new leadership there following the death of Khamenei, suggested Sunday there was no end in sight to the military operations. “Combat operations continue at this time in full-force, and they will continue until all of our objectives are achieved,” he said in a video message. “We have very strong objectives,” he added, without elaborating. The US military said B-2 stealth bombers struck Iran’s ballistic missile facilities with 2,000-pound bombs. Trump said on social media that nine Iranian warships had been sunk and that the Iranian navy’s headquarters had been “largely destroyed.” In an indication the conflict could draw in other nations, Britain, France and Germany said they were ready to work with the US to help stop Iran’s attacks, and a group of Gulf Arab countries said it reserved the right to respond to Iranian strikes. The weekend attacks were the second combined strikes in eight months from the US and Israel against Iran. In the 12-day war last June, Israeli and American strikes greatly weakened Iran’s air defenses, military leadership and nuclear program. But the killing of Khamenei, who ruled Iran for more than three decades, creates a leadership vacuum, increasing the risk of regional instability. Also Monday, the World Health Organization called for sparing civilians and health care facilities in the Middle East amid the escalating conflict. “The protection of civilians and health care must be absolute,” Hanan Balkhy, regional dietitian at WHO wrote on social media. “All parties must ... ensure medical facilities remain protected.” Trump and Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu have urged Iranians to overthrow the government in Iran, the sworn foe of Israel and the United States since the 1979 Islamic revolution toppled the pro-Western shah. In a video address, Trump urged Iranian security forces “to lay down your arms and receive full immunity or face certain death.” “It will be certain death,” he repeated. “It won’t be pretty.” The Pentagon said that three US service members were killed in the operation and five seriously wounded in the operation it has called “Epic Fury.” “Sadly, there will likely be more before it ends,” Trump said. “That’s the way it is.” “But America will avenge their deaths and deliver the most punishing blow to the terrorists who have waged war against, basically, civilization.” Trump, who campaigned denouncing foreign interventions, has done little to explain the case for war to the US public. Attacks across Middle East Explosions rocked Beirut before dawn and southern Lebanon residents fled, according to Agence France-Presse (AFP) journalists, after the Israeli military announced it was striking both parts of the country. In the city of Sidon, cars of families escaping from further south packed roads. Hezbollah, which was weakened by an earlier Israeli offensive, said it had fired rockets and drones at Israel “in retaliation for the pure blood” of Khamenei — the first time it has claimed such an attack since a November 2024 ceasefire agreement following a year of war between them. - 80 Filipinos ask to fly home amid airstrikes (2026-03-02 16:16)

(UPDATE) AT least 80 Filipinos in Dubai have requested to be repatriated to the Philippines as Iranian missile attacks damaged a luxury hotel and the airport, the Department of Migrant Workers (DMW) said on Monday. In a briefing in Malacañang, DMW Secretary Hans Leo Cacdac said they are now preparing for repatriation assistance but this could take a while as the United Arab Emirates (UAE) airspace remains closed. “The airspace in Dubai and the airports are closed, we know that there was an attack in Dubai. So, we have preparations in terms of giving the 80 who need repatriation assistance — temporary basic needs assistance and shelters are available. And, then, at an appropriate time they will be evacuated,” Cacdac said in Filipino. The official said the UAE is under Alert Level 2. Mandatory repatriation would only be in effect should the alert level be raised to 4. For now, the government is giving priority to in-country assistance to Filipinos, mostly overseas workers, including basic needs such as food, water, and shelter. “We have the necessary funds, an action fund, and the OWWA (Overseas Workers Welfare Administration) funds are ready to provide the necessary basic needs assistance, especially to those who have lost their jobs, stopped working or are in a distressed situation,” Cacdac said. “We have transport services available onsite for those who want to — we think they are in a vulnerable area and want to move to another place, we have shelters. Now, the shelters are a combination of the host country-provided shelters, that’s also specific to some of the countries mentioned and we have our own Migrant Workers Office or OWWA shelters onsite,” he added. Although there is no order yet for a mass repatriation of the 2.5 million Filipinos in the Middle East amid the ongoing crisis there, Cacdac said the Philippine government is “ready for such an eventuality, with the proper public and private resources.” “We have coordination with the Department of National Defense and Secretary Gibo (Teodoro) in terms of the possibility to use the proper military assets at the proper time,” he said. “We are also in touch with private companies that will provide land, sea and air options for repatriation. Everything is waiting and ready,” he added. Meanwhile, President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. continues to closely monitor developments in the Middle East following the series of airstrikes over the weekend. Presidential Communications Office (PCO) Undersecretary Claire Castro reiterated the president’s directive to concerned government agencies to provide all necessary assistance to Filipinos affected by the hostilities. Marcos also ordered an inter-agency mobilization to guarantee that Filipinos in the Middle East are properly assisted and supported. Apart from the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA), DMW, and OWWA, the Department of Health (DOH) and Department of Information Communications and Technology (DICT) were also tapped to assist Filipinos in need. The DOH would consolidate medical responses, including online medical consultations and psychosocial support services, while the DICT would ensure all telecommunications companies remain online. “Secretary Henry Aguda gave a directive to ensure that all telcos will do everything to make sure connectivity with OFWs in the Middle East is maintained and instructed the regional offices to provide free connections to anyone who would like to reach out to their family members and loved ones in affected areas,” Cacdac said. On the other hand, the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD), Department of Labor and Employment (DOLE), Department of Trade and Industry (DTI), and Technical Education and Skills Development Authority (Tesda) are also onboard to provide aid to returning Filipinos. Flight disruptions and airspace restrictions in the Middle East due to the war continued to cause flight disruptions for local and foreign airlines operating to and from Ninoy Aquino International Airport. As of Monday, the Civil Aviation Authority of the Philippines (CAAP) reported that at least 45 flights have been disrupted since Feb. 28 due to the ongoing conflict. Cebu Pacific (CEB) has extended its Manila-Dubai flight cancellations through March 3. The airline said it will continue to assess operations to and from the Middle East, noting that “further schedule adjustments may be necessary” as the situation develops. Philippine Airlines (PAL) has already canceled or diverted over 10 flights — including routes to Doha, Riyadh, and Dubai — saying that safety remains their highest priority. Several foreign carriers, including Emirates, Etihad, Kuwait Airways, and Qatar Airways, have also suspended multiple Manila services. The New NAIA Infra Corp. (NNIC) announced over the weekend that passengers with scheduled flights to or from Middle East destinations are advised to check their flight status before proceeding to the airport. Travelers are encouraged to contact their airlines directly for the latest updates, confirm bookings before travel, and ensure their contact details are updated to receive notifications. NNIC said it continues to coordinate closely with airlines and aviation authorities to ensure safe and orderly operations.

Emergency response measures Given the volatility and unpredictability of the situation in the Middle East, the labor sector called on President Marcos to activate all emergency response measures to ensure the safety and security of overseas Filipino workers in the Middle East. The Trade Union Congress of the Philippines (TUCP), the largest national trade union center in the country, on Monday issued the call amid repeated threats from US President Donald Trump that they will strike with a force that has never been seen before “if Tehran retaliates very hard against the US.” The largest concentration of overseas workers is in the Middle East with an estimated population ranging from 2 million to 3 million. Roughly 90 percent of OFWs are in Saudi Arabia (898,000 to 1 million), United Arab Emirates (650,000 to 700,000), Qatar (250,000 to 264,000) and Kuwait (200,000 to 250,000). Others are Bahrain (50,000 to 55,000) and Oman (45,000 to 48,000). There are an estimated 4,000-6,000 OFWs working inside several US bases in the Middle East, located in Bahrain, UAE, Qatar, Kuwait, Iraq, Saudi Arabia and Jordan. These bases have been attacked by Iran with ballistic missiles and drones in retaliation to the US-Israel bombing of Tehran which killed Iran’s Supreme Leader Ali Khamenei and members of his family. There are seven large US bases in the Middle East situated Bahrain, UAE, Qatar, Kuwait, Iraq, Saudi Arabia and Jordan which have been attacked by Iran. The TUCP called on the government to immediately heighten and activate all emergency response measures that would keep OFWs in the Middle East safe if the war further escalates. “We urge all relevant authorities to work triple-time and activate 24/7 rapid response systems. Clear, consistent, and real-time communication must be established with our kababayan on the ground, especially on critical matters such as their right to refuse unsafe work, access to emergency shelters, updated travel advisories, and verified hotline numbers,” the group said in a statement. In other developments:— The Commission on Filipinos Overseas (CFO) on Monday said that all Philippine Schools Overseas (PSOs) in the Middle East affected by the escalating conflict in the region remain safe and operational. The CFO said PSOs are duly registered educational institutions operating outside the Philippines. A total of 27 PSOs are located in the Gulf region. Some schools have shifted to online classes following directives from their respective host countries, the CFO said in a statement. “We’re closely monitoring the situation of our PSOs and we have advised them to heed the advisories of the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) and the Department of Migrant Workers (DMW), especially those concerning safety and security,” CFO Secretary Dante Ang II said.— The Department of Education (DepEd) on Monday affirmed that it is ready to support Filipino teachers who may return to the Philippines from the Middle East. The DepEd said that it, in coordination with the Department of Migrant Workers, “provides a reintegration pathway for licensed Filipino teachers employed overseas to transition into the public school system.” Qualified applicants may be hired and appointed as Teacher I under permanent status, subject to compliance with established qualification standards and existing hiring guidelines, the department said.— Manila Archbishop Cardinal Jose Advincula implored the faithful to pray for those who face adversity due to the conflict. The statement echoed an appeal from Bishop Paolo Martinelli, Apostolic Vicar of Southern Arabia, who urged Catholics to remain united in prayer and to pray the rosary daily for peace and reconciliation. Martinelli also appealed for prayers for the safety and security of all people affected by the war in the region.

- 2 impeachment complaints vs VP Sara sufficient in form (2026-03-02 16:15)

THE House Committee on Justice on Monday declared the third and fourth impeachment complaints filed against Vice President Sara Duterte to be sufficient in form, setting the stage for a debate on their sufficiency in substance on March 3. The third impeachment complaint, endorsed by Mamamayang Liberal Rep. Leila de Lima, was filed on Feb. 9, 2026. The complainants, which included priests and lawyers, alleged, among others, that Duterte committed culpable violation of the Constitution and betrayed public trust in connection with confidential funds allocated to the Office of the Vice President (OVP) for 2022 and 2023 and confidential funds allocated for 2023 to the Department of Education (DepEd), which Duterte led as secretary before she resigned in 2024 from that post. At the start of the panel’s review of the impeachment complaints, Batangas 2nd District Rep. Gerville Luistro on Monday corrected claims that the Supreme Court already dismissed the accusations filed earlier this year against the vice president. “The Supreme Court did not rule on the merits of the allegations. It did not conduct a trial. [...] It did not absolve anyone of wrongdoing,” Luistro, chairman of the House Committee on Justice, said. “The court itself clarified that its ruling was limited to the constitutional one-year bar rule. It emphasized that it did not absolve the vice president from any of the charges. Those are not my words. Those are the Supreme Court’s own clarifications. To suggest, therefore, that the allegations have already been resolved on the merits is legally incorrect,” she said. The fourth complaint was filed on Feb. 18, 2026 by lawyer Nathaniel Cabrera and was endorsed by Manila 6th District Rep. Bienvenido Abante Jr., chairman of the House Committee on Human Rights, and Deputy Speaker and La Union 1st District Rep. Francisco Paolo Ortega V.Cabrera said Article II of the complaint alleged that Duterte “betrayed the public trust and committed acts of graft and corruption by grossly abusing discretionary authority over confidential funds appropriated to the” OVP and DepEd. The complainant also alleged culpable violation of the Constitution and other high crimes. Earlier in the day, the panel set aside the first of four impeachment complaints filed earlier this year against Duterte, saying it violated the constitutional ban on more than one complaint filed against an official within a year. The Makabayan bloc — composed of ACT Teachers Rep. Antonio Tinio, Gabriela Women’s Party Rep. Sarah Elago, and Kabataan Rep. Renee Co — endorsed the complaint, which was filed on Feb. 2, 2026, by former lawmakers France Castro and Arlene Brosas, who alleged betrayal of public trust in connection with confidential funds. That was less than a year from the day the House impeached Duterte for the misuse of confidential funds. But the Supreme Court declared the articles of impeachment to be in violation of the one-year ban. Meanwhile, concerned citizens who had filed the second impeachment complaint against the vice president withdrew it. Akbayan Rep. Percival Cendaña and de Lima, who endorsed the complaint, told the committee they would withdraw it “in the interest of procedural expediency and to obviate any needless delay.”

New impeachment bid

The daughter of former president Rodrigo Duterte, Sara Duterte recently announced her candidacy for the 2028 presidential election. She was impeached by the country’s House of Representatives last year only to see the Supreme Court toss the case out over procedural issues. The revived impeachment bid leans heavily on allegations that the vice president misused public funds while in office. Duterte also stands accused of making a death threat against her former ally and current President Ferdinand Marcos Jr., with whom she is engaged in an explosive political feud. Under the Constitution, an impeachment triggers a Senate trial. A guilty verdict would result in Duterte being barred from politics and sidelined from the 2028 presidential race. The latest impeachment bid faces a changed environment with the vice president ahead in recent polls, analysts said. “The political context will be very different, especially now that Sara declared her candidacy,” University of the Philippines political science professor Jean Franco said. “It’s definitely going to weigh on the minds of the members of the House of Representatives,” Franco said, adding that a vote for impeachment would effectively see a lawmaker’s career “marked for death.” Anthony Lawrence Borja, an associate professor of political science at De La Salle University agreed, saying: “It is ultimately a question of whether the patronage of the current administration outweighs their fear of Duterte’s condemnation.” The same committee hearing the case against Duterte last month tossed out a pair of impeachment complaints against Marcos, ruling that allegations of corruption over a scandal involving bogus flood control projects lacked substance. Michael Wesley Poa, spokesman for Duterte’s defense team, said they were closely monitoring deliberations and trusted “the same standards” used in the Marcos hearing would be applied.

- QCGH among Newsweek's top PH hospitals (2026-03-02 16:14)

THE Quezon City General Hospital (QCGH) has been recognized as one of the country's top hospitals by the New York City-based weekly news magazine Newsweek, Mayor Joy Belmonte said Monday. The QCGH has been ranked 24th nationwide and standing out as the only Level 3 local government unit (LGU) hospital with 10 fully accredited departments and a fellowship training program included in the Top 33 hospitals in the Philippines, Belmonte said. "This is a testament to our commitment to providing our residents with quality health care services. We continue to improve our facilities and upgrade our services to address health concerns effectively and to ensure that QCitizens receive the exceptional medical care they deserve," Belmonte said. Conducted in partnership with global data-as-a-service company Statista, the ranking evaluated 2,500 hospitals across 32 countries, according to the city's Public Affairs and Information Services Department (PAISD). Hospitals were assessed based on recommendations from medical experts — including doctors, hospital managers, and other health care professionals — along with hospital quality metrics, existing patient experience data, and Statista's Patient-Reported Outcome Measures Implementation Survey. With a 250-bed capacity, the tertiary hospital located in Barangay Bahay Toro has been delivering modern health care services since its establishment in 1968. The PAISD said that QCGH currently offers 10 fully accredited training programs in Internal Medicine, Surgery, Obstetrics-Gynecology, Pediatrics, Family Medicine, Anesthesiology, Pathology, Radiology, Otolaryngology, and Ophthalmology — ensuring high-quality, safe, and standardized patient care. The hospital is also the first LGU-run hospital in the Philippines to offer a fellowship training program in geriatric medicine, highlighting its commitment to providing specialized care for senior citizens. It is also the pioneer hospital in North Metro Manila to offer fellowship training in ultrasound and CT-MRI through its Radiology Department. In 2025, the hospital was granted its first unqualified opinion by the Commission on Audit, reflecting sound fiscal management and ethical hospital governance. Meanwhile, QCGH's Human Milk Bank and the Quezon City Protection Center were recognized by the Philippine Commission on Women as Gender and Development Local Learning Hubs for their innovations in promoting women's rights and eliminating gender discrimination, it added. QCGH Medical Director Josephine Sabando said the recognition would surely inspire them to continue improving their programs and further enhance the quality of medical care they provide. In Newsweek's top 10 were St. Luke's Medical Center-Global City, Makati Medical Center, Asian Hospital and Medical Center, St. Luke's Medical Center-Quezon City, The Medical City, UP General Hospital, Cebu Doctor's University Hospital, Cardinal Santos Medical Center, and Chong Hua Hospital.

THE Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean) remains committed to strengthening inter-regional cooperation in ensuring the safety of nationals from region caught in the conflict in the Middle East. Social Welfare and Development Secretary Irene Dumlao made the remark when asked whether the Asean Socio-Cultural Community (ASCC) will tackle the situation in the Mideast. The Philippines, through the ASCC Pillar, is hosting this week the 40th Senior Officials Committee for the Asean Socio-Cultural Meeting and the 35th ASCC Council Meeting. "The Asean Socio-Cultural Community is actually closely monitoring the evolving situation in the Middle East,” Dumlao said in briefing on Monday. “We will be coordinating closely with relevant partners to ensure that Asean nationals, even [non] member states who would be affected by the current turmoil will receive the appropriate support and assistance,” Dumlao said. “Again, for the ASCC, the family is an important factor that we need to protect. So, yes, it will be one of the discussions or it will be one of the priority areas in the discussions of the age,” she added. Dumlao said the Philippines, through the Department of Social Welfare and Development as chairman of the ASCC Pillar, is championing “people empowerment” guided by the theme “RISE Asean.” She said RISE stands for “R - Resilient and Empowered Families, I - Inclusive Development, S - Smart Youth and Innovation, and E - Environmentally Sustainable and Food Secure Future.” Dumlao said the RISE Asean agenda aligns with the Asean Community Vision 2045, adding that this agenda “reinforces our shared aspiration for a people-oriented and people-centered Asean.” “It is guided by three core priorities: peace and security, prosperity, and people empowerment. These are pillars that affirm that our collective future rests on the strength and resilience of the communities we nurture today,” Dumlao said.

THE Philippines, in hosting the 2026 Asean Socio-Cultural Community (ASCC) Pillar, will highlight the country’s “RISE Asean” agenda, which supports “a truly ‘One Asean, One Response’ region” or unity in addressing common concerns. The Philippines, as the 2026 Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean) chairman, is taking an active role in engaging in high-level dialogues that are shaping cooperation in security, economic integration, and social development. The meetings aim to strengthen family resilience, empower young people, and advance inclusive development for marginalized and vulnerable communities across the region. “The forum affirms that empowering individuals, families, and communities is both the means and the measure of Asean’s success,” said Social Welfare and Development Assistant Secretary Irene Dumlao. She said RISE stands for “R - Resilient and Empowered Families, I - Inclusive Development, S - Smart Youth and Innovation, and E - Environmentally Sustainable and Food Secure Future.” The Philippines, through the ASCC Pillar, is hosting this week the 40th Senior Officials Committee for the Asean Socio-Cultural Meeting and the 35th ASCC Council Meeting. “Beyond these high-level meetings, the richness of the Filipino culture will also be highlighted through our curated gastronomic and heritage tours, and performances of traditional music and dance,” Dumlao said in a briefing. In the 40th SOCA Meeting, she said senior officials will review and harmonize key frameworks in support of the Philippines’ people empowerment agenda. The high-level ASCC Council Forum will bring together ministers, senior officials, experts, youth leaders, and development partners to place people empowerment at the forefront of Asean’s forward trajectory. Dumlao said at the 35th ASCC Council Meeting regional ministers will adopt key frameworks and finalize priority social policies for Southeast Asia. “The Philippines welcomes our Asean family not only with a strong pro-people agenda, but with the spirit of unity and partnership. As we navigate our future together, may we continue shaping a resilient, dynamic, and truly people-centered Asean,” she added.

- Overseas voter registration continues in Middle East (2026-03-02 16:11)

AMID the escalating tension in the Middle East, overseas voter registration in the region continues, according to the Commission on Elections (Comelec). Comelec Chairman George Erwin Garcia said on Monday that Philippine embassies and consulates, which serve as registration centers in the Middle East, remain open for consular services, including overseas voter registration. At the same time, Garcia advised Filipino workers to stay alert and keep updated on the situation in their areas. "Be vigilant against misinformation/disinformation and trust only reliable sources of information, take heed of the notice and adviser from the Department of Foreign Affairs as well as the Philippine Embassy or Consulate, and contact help lines if in distress," he said. The overseas voters registration is part of the Comelec's preparations for the 2028 presidential election. Registration started last Dec. 1 and will end on Sept. 30, 2027. Garcia said the Comelec is looking forward to signing up more overseas voters. There are only 1.67 million registered overseas voters out of 10 million Filipinos abroad, he said. "With our internet voting, we are looking forward to increasing the number of our overseas Filipino voters by 3 to 4 million," he said. All Filipino citizens abroad, including dual citizens, can register as overseas voters, provided they are not disqualified by law and are at least 18 years old on election day, which is May 8, 2028. The following are qualified to register:— First-time voters based overseas— Registered voters in the Philippines who have moved overseas— Registered voters in the Philippines who will be overseas during the voting period— Registered overseas voters who have changes to their personal details— Overseas voters whose registrations were deactivated, transferred, or with multiple registrations. Local and overseas absentee voters can only vote for candidates running for national positions — president, vice president, 12 senators, and one party-list group.

SEN. Francis Pangilinan wants to prohibit members of political dynasties from becoming or substituting as a party-list representative or nominee. Pangilinan filed Senate Bill 1907 which aims to amend Republic Act (RA) 7941 or the Party-List System Act. Pangilinan said his proposal "strengthens the statutory framework of the party-list system to align its implementation with its constitutional purpose of sectoral representation." Under SB 1907, "no person may become or substitute for a party-list nominee or otherwise become a party-list representative" if they are a spouse or relative within the fourth degree of consanguinity or affinity of an incumbent president, vice president, senator, district or party-list representative, governor, vice governor, mayor, or vice mayor. The bill also states that the spouse or relative within the fourth degree of consanguinity or affinity of a nominee of any party-list organization in the same election should be included in the prohibition. Pangilinan said he recognizes the role of party-lists in proportional representation. But he raised the need for "legislative clarification" in the implementation of the law, particularly in standards of sectoral representation, safeguards against conflicts of interest, voter clarity, and accountability mechanisms. It bans a party-list nominee or representative, or party-list organization from directly or indirectly holding contracts or subcontracts to supply the government or any of its divisions, subdivisions, or instrumentalities with goods, services, construction, and other works. Nominees or representatives and their spouse or relative within the second degree of consanguinity or affinity cannot serve as a partner, director, officer, member, or stockholder of any corporation or partnership that holds such contracts. Under the proposed measure, the Commission on Elections may motu proprio or upon verified petition, remove or disqualify the party-list nominee if they do not have any of the qualifications of a party-list nominee, or that they possess any of the prohibitions.

- Guidelines out on night court duty for judges (2026-03-02 16:09)

THE Supreme Court has approved new guidelines on assigning judges for night court duty in judicial regions outside the National Capital Region (NCR). In a resolution dated Feb. 27, the court en banc adopted the Guidelines on the Assignment of Branches and Presiding Judges for Night Court Duty. Night courts are tasked with handling urgent matters, including bail petitions arising from nighttime arrests, and facilitating the swift disposition of criminal cases involving tourists. Under the guidelines, all branches of multi-sala courts designated as night courts must render duty on a weekly rotation. The presiding judge and two court personnel assigned by rotation must be physically present from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. for one night each week, preferably on Fridays. For the remainder of the week, the designated branch will operate on an on-call basis and maintain a hotline number where personnel can be reached immediately. If the presiding judge of the assigned branch is unavailable, the paired court must assume night court duties. The paired court's own scheduled night duty will then be taken over by the branch it substituted. If the assigned judge and the paired court judge are unavailable, the executive judge will appoint another branch to handle the duty. For single-sala courts, the designated courts will likewise operate on an on-call basis except for one night each week when the presiding judge and two court personnel must report for duty from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. If the presiding judge of the designated court is unavailable, the judge of its paired court must substitute. If both judges are unavailable, the executive judge of the Regional Trial Court with territorial jurisdiction over the area must designate a first-level judge within the administrative supervision area, taking into account geographic and logistical proximity. Judges assigned to night court duty will receive an incentive allowance of P1,000 for every night of service rendered. Court personnel assigned to night court duty will receive overtime pay under applicable rules. Designated branches must perform functions required under guidelines issued by the Office of the Court Administrator, including assigning a cash clerk who will be on call to receive payments for court fees, fines and cash bail deposits. Judges are also required to ensure security during night court operations and coordinate with local law enforcement agencies. The branch clerk of court or officer-in-charge must inform the Philippine National Police (PNP), the city or provincial prosecutor's office, and other relevant offices of the night court schedules. In the same resolution, the Supreme Court designated several courts as night courts, including municipal trial courts in cities of Baguio, Tuguegarao, Angeles, Tagaytay, Batangas, Puerto Princesa, Legazpi, Iloilo, Bacolod, Cebu, Tagbilaran, Tacloban, Zamboanga, Surigao, Davao, and General Santos. The court retained the designation of the municipal circuit trial courts in San Juan-San Gabriel, La Union, and Malay-Buruanga, Aklan, as night courts. It revoked the designation of several branches previously assigned as night courts, including courts in the cities of Angeles, Cavite, Lipa, Legazpi, Iloilo, Bacolod, Cebu, Cagayan de Oro, and Surigao. The Office of the Court Administrator will implement the guidelines.

- Warning against ATM scam that targets elderly (2026-03-02 16:08)

THE Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) has reinforced the warning of the National Commission of Senior Citizens (NCSC) against false claims involving ATM card distribution and illegal deductions from cash gifts intended for senior citizens. The NCSC, a supervised agency of the DSWD, is mandated to promote and safeguard the rights and welfare of elderly Filipinos, including the implementation of centenarian cash gifts. The advisory was issued following the circulation of an online video claiming that ATM cards had been approved for indigent senior citizens nationwide. Authorities said the NCSC has not issued any ATM or bank cards to senior citizens for the purpose of claiming assistance, pension, or cash gifts. The commission also debunked claims that a pilot bank transfer system would involve the distribution of bank cards to beneficiaries. DSWD Assistant Secretary Irene Dumlao echoed the NCSC's call for vigilance, stressing the importance of protecting elderly beneficiaries from misinformation and financial exploitation. "We stand with the NCSC in this reminder, and it is crucial that information regarding the benefits of our senior citizens is clear because many of them rely on these programs for their needs, and we must not allow them to be deceived by false news or baseless collections," Dumlao said. The commission clarified that the bank transfer system currently being implemented in selected regions is only an optional mode of claiming the P10,000 or P100,000 cash gift under the Expanded Centenarians Act for milestone ages 80, 85, 90, 95, and 100. It emphasized that the P10,000 cash gift must be received in full without any deduction, and that any form of collection or request for payment in exchange for the benefit is illegal and punishable by law.

- Co-ownership by same-sex partners ruling lauded (2026-03-02 16:07)

THE Commission on Human Rights (CHR) welcomed the decision of the Supreme Court recognizing co-ownership of property in same-sex cohabitation. CHR Chairman Richard Palpal-latoc said in a statement emailed to The Manila Times that while development strengthens the visibility of LGBTQIA (Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer/Questioning, Intersex and Asexual/Aromantic/Agender) relationships, fuller legal protection remains necessary to achieve substantive equality. "This decision of the high court affirms that diverse forms of intimate relationships exist and cannot be rendered legally invisible," said Palpal-latoc. He said that by recognizing that same-sex partners may be considered co-owners under Article 148 of the Family Code, the court acknowledged "lived realities often disregarded in formal legal discourse and moves away from treating same-sex partners as legal strangers." Palpal-latoc said the ruling aligns with constitutional guarantees of equal protection and the Philippines' obligations under international human rights law. "Recognizing property relations affirms the dignity, agency, and family life of LGBTQIA individuals and upholds the State's duty to prevent discrimination and recognize the equal dignity of all, regardless of sexual orientation and gender identity and expression (Sogie)," Palpal-latoc pointed out. The CHR called for a sustained legislative and policy action to close the remaining protection gaps. Moving from visibility to full equality requires comprehensive reform grounded in the Constitution's promise of equal protection of the laws, it added. Under the Magna Carta of Women, the CHR acts as the Gender and Development Ombudsman that promotes and protects women's rights. ARLIE O. CALALO

- Manila OKs ordinance cutting fuel use by 50% (2026-03-02 16:06)

(UPDATE) MANILA Mayor Isko Moreno signed Executive Order (EO) 7 on Monday, mandating the city government to reduce fuel consumption by 50 percent. In a Facebook live address, Moreno said this move was to anticipate the reduction of fuel supply due to the ongoing conflict in the Middle East, particularly the reported blockade of the Strait of Hormuz following attacks by the United States and Israel on Iran. The Strait of Hormuz is one of the world's most critical oil trade routes, and its blockade would disrupt the flow of 20 percent of the world's oil, triggering higher fuel prices. "The ongoing armed conflict in the Middle East with the Operation Epic Fury in full effect is the joint US-Israel strike against Iran, which will eventually contribute in the significant global oil market volatility, supply disruption, upward pressures, and fuel prices with adverse effects on the national and local economy, and the fiscal position of the city of Manila, very particular position of the City of Manila," Moreno said. Under the EO 7, city departments and offices are mandated to reduce fuel use for vehicles, generators, heavy equipment, and other fuel-powered machines. The move is said to maintain essential public services and limit the city's exposure to fuel supply and price increases. Under Section 5 of the said EO, all non-essential travel by city officials and staff will be prohibited. "All Lakbay Aral (educational trip) activities and foreign trips will likewise be suspended unless deemed essential and of critical importance to the city government's operation," Moreno said. He added that all offices, except health care facilities, are directed to conserve electricity by switching off lights by 5 p.m. daily. The mayor added that meetings with village officials and health workers will be conducted online when feasible. He further noted the shifts and work arrangements will be recalibrated, urging employers to "implement staggered shifts, compress workweeks, or remove work arrangements where feasible to reduce commuting and official travel." Exempted from the order are police, fire and ambulance services; public health and disaster risk reduction operations; garbage collection and hauling; and traffic management, among others. Violations of the travel and fuel-use provisions will be subject to administrative investigation and penalties. Moreno said the order takes effect immediately and will remain in effect until emergency fuel conditions stabilize. "This is our own little way to join the National Government in its effort, advice and directives to save as many as we can concerning fuel consumption or dependency on fuel," Moreno concluded.

- Fuel prices spike for 7th straight week (2026-03-02 16:05)

(UPDATE) LOCAL oil companies on Tuesday hiked all fuel prices again this week due to the recent conflict in the Middle East. Shell, Seaoil, PetroGazz, Cleanfuel, Caltex, Unioil, Jetti Petroleum, PTT Philippines, and Flying V raised their gasoline prices by P1.90 per liter and their diesel prices by P1.20. Also, the price of kerosene has gone up by P1.50 per liter. This was the seventh consecutive week of fuel price increases. Local oil industry sources said the recent conflict in the Middle East was the main driver of the increases, following attacks on Iran by the United States and Israel. They added that local fuel prices are expected to be volatile in the next few weeks as the market monitors developments. They warned that if this conflict does not settle soon, it could push global oil prices to $100 per barrel. “We have yet to see any clarity on where the latest developments in the Middle East will lead or for how long. Given the current situation, we expect high volatility in oil prices in the near term. In terms of supply, I also believe most oil companies are compliant with the minimum 15-day inventory requirement, and are actually probably closer to 30 days’ worth of stocks,” Jetti Petroleum President Leo Bellas said in an online message. “But if disruption is prolonged, crude oil prices could reach and breach the $100 mark, despite the possibility that countries like China would draw from their reserves to support supply in Asia,” he added. Meanwhile, the Department of Energy also announced that starting next week, it is considering staggering the increase in local fuel prices similar to last year, if they reach a P3-per-liter spike in a single price adjustment. “We have been meeting with local oil companies, and one of the things being considered is staggering the increase in local fuel prices again, just like last year, if the conflict does not de-escalate and price adjustments reach that level, or around P3 per liter. We hope it will not go that far,” Department of Energy-Oil Industry Management Bureau Director Rino Abad said in an online message. Last week, local oil companies increased gasoline prices by P0.60 per liter and diesel prices by P1.20. On a year-to-date basis, gasoline now has a net increase of P6.70 per liter, diesel has a net increase of P9.50, and kerosene has a net increase of P7.50.

- BOC seizes P112M worth of illegal drugs at NAIA (2026-03-02 16:04)

THE Bureau of Customs (BOC) intercepted over P112 million worth of illegal drugs from Malaysia at Ninoy Aquino International Airport (NAIA) Terminal 1. The methamphetamine hydrochloride, or shabu, was concealed inside checked-in luggage brought by a Malaysian on Feb. 28, 2026. According to BOC-NAIA, BOC personnel flagged the passenger for inspection, which led to the discovery of approximately 16.5 kilograms of a white crystalline substance suspected to be shabu. The illegal drugs have an estimated standard price of P112,376,800. Port of NAIA District Collector Yasmin Mapa said the operation was spearheaded by the BOC through its Customs Anti-Illegal Drugs Task Force, in close coordination with the NAIA Inter-Agency Drug Interdiction Task Group (NAIA-IADITG). The suspect was subjected to inquest proceedings for violating Section 4, Article II of Republic Act 9165, otherwise known as the Comprehensive Dangerous Drugs Act of 2002. Customs Commissioner Ariel Nepomuceno said the bureau is tightening its watch over all airports and seaports. He noted that recent successful operations prove the agency is working hard to stop illegal goods from entering the country. “Alinsunod sa malinaw na direktiba ni Pangulong Ferdinand R. Marcos Jr. na paigtingin ang kampanya laban sa ilegal na droga, patuloy nating pinatitibay ang ating pagbabantay sa mga paliparan at pantalan (In line with the clear directive of President Ferdinand R. Marcos Jr. to intensify the campaign against illegal drugs, we continue to strengthen our vigilance at airports and seaports),” Nepomuceno said.

- Muntinlupa inaugurates road safety park (2026-03-02 16:03)

THE Muntinlupa City government has inaugurated its Road Safety Park in Tunasan village as part of the city’s 31st Cityhood Anniversary celebration, marking what officials described as a long-term investment in safer and more disciplined road use. Established in partnership with the Department of Transportation, the facility is a learning space where children can learn proper road use through simulations and traffic signage. The park features a mini road network, pedestrian lanes, cycleways, training areas, and road sign installations designed to teach students and young road users the fundamentals of traffic discipline in a controlled environment. “Together with our 31st Cityhood Anniversary, we inaugurated the Muntinlupa Road Safety Park in partnership with the DOTr. This is a dedicated learning space where children can learn the proper use of the road through actual road simulations and traffic signage,” Mayor Ruffy Biazon said. The mayor described the project as personal, recalling that while he was still in Congress in 2019, he filed a proposal to integrate road safety into the basic education curriculum. “I believed then, and I believe even more now, that discipline on the road does not start when getting a driver’s license — it starts while one is still young,” he said. He added that teaching children at an early age about proper road use, respect for traffic laws, and understanding of road signs would help prevent future accidents and tragedies. “Roads are a shared responsibility — whether you are a motorist or a pedestrian,” he said. Biazon said the city immediately proposed the project when funding from the DOTr became available, emphasizing that the park allows children to learn through experience — not only from books but also through actual simulation. Acting Transportation Secretary Giovanni Lopez and Metropolitan Manila Development Authority General Manager Nicolas Torre III attended the inauguration along with other transport and local officials. Mayor Biazon also thanked advocacy partners AltMobility PH, Commuters 4 Change Convenor, and the Barangay Organization of Persons with Disabilities for their support.

- Senior citizens get nod as Intramuros guides (2026-03-02 16:02)

THE Department of Tourism (DOT), in partnership with the National Commission of Senior Citizens (NCSC), has implemented the Tourism Legacy and Livelihood Program to train and accredit senior citizens as community tour guides in Intramuros, Manila. The initiative aligns with the government’s inclusive tourism agenda by creating opportunities for senior citizens to join community-based, elderly-friendly tourism programs. Under the program, qualified senior citizens undergo interviews and complete a week-long training, lectures and mock tours before receiving DOT accreditation. As of Feb. 23, the DOT has accredited 15 senior citizen tour guides, including four former overseas Filipino workers who have found renewed purpose in guiding after retirement. Among them is 68-year-old Edgardo “Tatay Ed” Satira, a retired broadcaster who now shares his passion for history and storytelling with visitors exploring the historic walled city. Tourism Secretary Christina Garcia Frasco personally met with the newly accredited guides to hear their experiences and gather insights to enhance the training program. “I’m so impressed by the variety of professions and backgrounds of those that have successfully passed our senior citizens community tour guide training, but even more impressed by the overarching purpose that drives you to be here, not just for leisure, not to address boredom perhaps, but more importantly, to serve our country,” Frasco said. She emphasized that the department’s priority is to create more livelihood and advancement opportunities while recognizing the vital role of tourism workers as keepers of the nation’s stories. “Our priority has been to provide opportunity for advancement, opportunity for livelihood, and to imprint in both our stakeholders as well as our tourists and the Filipino populace in general that our tourism workers matter, for you are the ones who are the repositories of our stories,” she added. The program is part of the DOT’s broader effort to professionalize tour guiding nationwide through accreditation standards and continuous training under the Filipino Brand of Service Excellence initiative.

- DFA maintains alert levels in some parts of the Middle East (2026-03-02 15:04)

MANILA, Philippines — The Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) on Monday said it is maintaining existing crisis alert levels in at least eight Middle Eastern countries affected by the armed conflict involving Iran, Israel, and the United States. In a statement, the DFA said it has coordinated with Philippine embassies and consulates over the past 72 hours, noting that these posts remain “on the ground and vigilant” in their respective jurisdictions. The department said concerned officials continue to monitor security developments and assess the condition of thousands of Filipinos living and working in the region. The DFA urged Filipinos to heed local authorities and comply with travel advisories as instability persists in several areas. Under the current framework, the highest alert level — Alert Level 4, or mandatory evacuation — remains in effect for Syria, Yemen, and Gaza. At this level, Filipinos are urged to evacuate and join government-led repatriation efforts. Travel to these areas is prohibited. Alert Level 3, which calls for voluntary repatriation, remains in place for Iraq and Lebanon. This designation reflects significant unrest or the threat of imminent external attack. Filipinos in these countries are advised to consider relocating or returning to the Philippines, and nonessential travel is strongly discouraged. Several other areas are under Alert Level 2, or the restriction phase, including Iran, the Kurdish region of Iraq, Israel, and the West Bank. Under this level, Filipinos are advised to shelter in place, avoid high-risk areas, and limit nonessential movement, as embassies activate contingency plans. Jordan remains under Alert Level 1, the precautionary phase, indicating limited or localized threats. Filipinos there are advised to exercise normal caution and avoid affected areas. The department said crisis management teams and contingency plans have been activated as required under each alert level.

- Marcos continues to monitor Mideast situation; 80 Filipinos from Dubai seek repatriation (2026-03-02 08:01)

MANILA, Philippines — President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. continues to closely monitor developments in the Middle East following the series of airstrikes which occurred over the weekend, Malacañang said on Monday. The Palace gave the assurance as 80 Filipinos in Dubai have requested to be repatriated to the Philippines, the Department of Migrant Workers (DMW) said on the same day. In a press conference, Presidential Communications Office (PCO) Claire Castro likewise reiterated the president's directive to concerned government agencies to provide all necessary assistance to Filipinos affected by the hostilities which erupted on Feb. 28, 2026. "President Marcos Jr. directed agencies to continue and intensify monitoring of the situation of Filipinos in affected areas," she said in Filipino. Marcos also ordered an interagency mobilization to guarantee that Filipinos in the Middle East were properly assisted and supported. Apart from the DMW, the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) and the Overseas Workers Welfare Administration (OWWA), the Department of Health (DOH) and Department of Information Communications and Technology (DICT) were also tapped to assist Filipinos in need. The DOH would consolidate medical responses, including online medical consultations and psychosocial support services, while the DICT would ensure all telecommunications companies remain online. "Sec[retary]. Henry Aguda gave a directive to ensure that all telcos will do everything to make sure connectivity with OFWs in the Middle East is maintained and instructed the regional offices to provide free connections to anyone who would like to reach out to their family members and loved ones in affected areas," DMW Secretary Hans Leo Cacdac said in the same briefing. 80 Filipinos for repatriation Cacdac said that the DMW was preparing for the repatriation of at least 80 Filipinos from Dubai but that this could take a while as the United Arab Emirates (UAE) airspace remained closed. "The airspace in Dubai and the airports are closed, we know that there was an attack in Dubai. So, we have preparations in terms of giving the 80 who need repatriation assistance — temporary basic needs assistance and shelters are available. And, then, at an appropriate time they will be evacuated to the country," Cacdac said in Filipino. The official added to date, the UAE is under Alert Level 2. A mandatory repatriation would only be in place should the alert level is raised to 4. For now, in-country assistance to Filipinos, mostly overseas workers, is being prioritized. They include basic needs such as food, water, and shelter. "We have the necessary funds, an action fund, and the OWWA (Overseas Workers Welfare Administration) funds are ready to provide the necessary basic needs assistance especially to those who have lost their jobs, stopped working or are in a distressful situation," Cacdac said. "We have transport services available onsite for those who want to—we think they are in a vulnerable area and want to move to another place, we have shelters. Now, the shelters are a combination of the host country-provided shelters, that's also specific to some of the countries mentioned and we have our own Migrant Workers Office or OWWA shelters onsite," he added.

- Venezuela opposition leader Machado to return in coming weeks (2026-03-02 01:28)

CARACAS, Venezuela — Venezuelan opposition leader and winner of the 2025 Nobel Peace Prize María Corina Machado said on Sunday that she will return to Venezuela in the coming weeks and that elections will be held in the South American country. Machado did not set a date for her return but said that one of the objectives will be to prepare “for a new and gigantic electoral victory.” In a message shared on social media, the politician called on her supporters to “strengthen the unity of Venezuelans that began with the primaries,” a reference to the 2023 process in which she won the vote aimed at establishing a single candidate to compete at the polls against former President Nicolás Maduro. Acting President Delcy Rodríguez – in power since Maduro and his wife were captured in a U.S. military operation in January — has warned that Machado “will have to answer” if she returns to the country. U.S. Secretary of State Marco Rubio has said that change in Venezuela must go through phases of stabilization, economic recovery and transition. He has not indicated that elections could be held in the short term. The 58-year-old politician, a key figure in the Venezuelan opposition, was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize last year for her fight for democratic transition in Venezuela. She controversially later presented her medal to US President Donald Trump after the military intervention that deposited Maduro, who now faces drug-trafficking-related charges in US courts. He has pleaded not guilty. After Maduro was declared the victor of the July 2024 elections, protests erupted which sparked widespread repression. The opposition claimed it had credible evidence that the real winner was Edmundo González, who replaced Machado after she was barred from participating.

MANILA, Philippines – The entire archipelago would be experiencing hot and humid weather due to the effects of the easterlies over the next 24 hours, the state-run weather agency said on Monday. Weather specialist Aldczar Aurelio of the Philippine Atmospheric Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (Pagasa) said it has not monitored any low-pressure area forming inside or outside the country's area of responsibility in the coming days. In particular, Aurelio said in a 5 a.m. briefing that Metro Manila and the rest of the country would likely have partly cloudy to cloudy skies with isolated rain showers or thunderstorms due to easterly winds passing through the Pacific Ocean. Flash floods or landslides during severe thunderstorms could be possible in these areas, the Pagasa forecaster warned. Meanwhile, Pagasa cited data and analysis indicating that the northeast monsoon, locally known as 'amihan,' would resurface possibly on Wednesday and affect most parts of Luzon. According to Pagasa, this weather system brings cool, dry wind from Siberia and China and flows over Southeast Asia normally from October to March.

"To ensure efficiency, accountability, and transparency in distribution, this bill mandates that the subsidy be directly deposited into the beneficiaries' bank accounts," de Lima said. priority shall be granted to the indigent and high-risk population."Also, the bill required that health facilities conducting screening have "a referral mechanism to higher-level facilities for confirmatory diagnosis and treatment." It stated that referral "shall include linkage to the Philippine Health Insurance Corp. (PhilHealth) benefits and other financial or logistical support services."Initially, the measure shall focus on breast cancer, cervical cancer, colorectal (colon) cancer, and prostate cancer.Under the bill, the DOH must review the types of cancer covered every three years, upon the recommendation of the National Integrated Cancer Control Council (NICCC), to expand the list based on emerging evidence and the national burden of disease.Moreover, the DOH, in coordination with LGUs, provincial, city, and town health offices, village health centers, "academic institutions, and other concerned agencies, shall establish a comprehensive cancer risk profiling system nationwide." "Subsequently, a Municipality- or City-Wide Cancer Risk Registry shall be created to record prevalence trends, screening results, and follow-up care," it read. It read, "Campaigns shall be evaluated periodically to assess effectiveness and reach, especially among vulnerable and rural communities." Moreover, the proponents also said that the bill "aims to strengthen the role of BHWs, by providing capacity development and training, enabling them to effectively assist in cancer prevention, screening promotion, health navigation, and patient support." The bill required the promulgation of "capacity development among BHWs, including training on cancer prevention and health promotion; screening assistance and navigation; psychosocial support; and referral pathways and linkage to financial assistance programs." If the bill is passed into law, the DOH, Philippine Cancer Center, NICCC, LGUs, and other relevant stakeholders, must promulgate the implementing rules and regulations. Under the bill, the money needed for its initial implementation shall be sourced from the DOH's current appropriations. Funding shall thereafter be included in the yearly national budget law.

- Agriculture group calls for pork import cuts (2026-03-01 16:10)

OVER the week, the Samahang Industriya ng Agrikultura (Sinag) urged government agencies to reduce pork imports to help local hog farmers rebuild their herds and strengthen domestic production. Sinag chairman Rosendo So said cutting imports would create an economic incentive for farmers, drawing a parallel to government policies in the rice sector, where import restrictions were imposed after cheap foreign rice caused losses for local producers. "The government saw that situation with rice, so the same approach should be applied to pork," So said. He proposed lowering this year's pork import quota from 850,000 metric tons to 550,000 metric tons, citing a substantial oversupply from carryover stock. He warned that cold-storage facilities are filled with imported pork being pushed quickly into the domestic market, depressing prices for locally produced pork. According to Sinag, imported dressed pork sells between P80 and P100 per kilo, with premium cuts like kasim (pork shoulder) priced at P120 per kilo. Locally produced pork, in contrast, costs about P165 per kilo live weight — equivalent to roughly P206 per kilo after slaughter. “If dressed imported pork can be bought at P120 per kilo and resold at P150, traders and food outlets will naturally choose the cheaper imported product,” So said. “Who will have the courage to repopulate their swine herds if they cannot earn a living?” Sinag also called for a reinstatement of higher tariffs on imported pork. The group wants a return to the previous structure of 30-percent in-quota and 40-percent out-quota tariffs, reversing the preferential rates introduced in 2021 (15-percent in-quota and 25-percent out-quota). Industry data show the Philippines consumed about 1,580,000 metric tons of pork in 2025, with local production at roughly 1,060,000 metric tons, leaving an estimated shortfall of 520,000 metric tons. However, imports hit 851,760 metric tons, creating a carryover surplus that undermines local prices and recovery efforts. Sinag emphasized that reducing import volumes immediately, even before any tariff adjustments, would provide relief for hog raisers and help restore the country’s pork self-sufficiency. The group also urged the Department of Agriculture and other agencies to review import quotas and tariff policies to safeguard local livelihoods.

- Filipinos moved to safe areas in middle east (2026-03-01 16:07)

(UPDATE) FILIPINOS in the Middle East have been moved to safe locations, with many taking shelter in bomb shelters, following the exchange of air strikes between the United States, Israel and Iran, President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. said on Sunday. The US and Israel launched a “preemptive strike” on Iran, prompting Iran to conduct missile attacks on Qatar, the United Arab Emirates (UAE), Bahrain and Kuwait, hosts to US military bases. In a video message released by Malacañang, the president assured that the government is monitoring the Middle East situation round-the-clock. He said that as of 9 a.m. on Sunday, “we have not received any reports of Filipino casualties. No Filipinos have died. No Filipinos have been injured.” All Philippine embassies and labor attachés have been placed on heightened alert starting late Saturday afternoon to ensure the safety and welfare of Filipinos in the region, he said. “In our latest report, our countrymen are in a safe place. And they have gone to the bomb shelters where they are. They were moved away from the American bases so that they do not come close to danger. We will continue to give updates as the report reaches me,” Marcos said. More than 2 million Filipinos work and live in the Middle East, based on the latest data from the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA). Most of them are in Israel, Saudi Arabia, the UAE, Qatar and Bahrain. Marcos has already directed the DFA and Department of Migrant Workers (DMW) to secure Filipinos, most of which are overseas workers, shortly after receiving confirmed reports of the air strikes. Philippine embassies in the Middle East have advised Filipinos in the region to refrain from unnecessary travel. Based on DFA figures, there are 973,000 in the UAE; 813,000 in Saudi Arabia; 250,000 in Qatar; 211,000 in Kuwait; 56,000 in Bahrain; 49,000 in Oman; 41,600 in Jordan (including Palestine); 31,000 in Israel; 14,000 in Lebanon; 1,600 in Iraq; 800 in Iran; and 700 in Syria. The embassy in Iran said on Facebook that “depending on prevailing conditions, Filipinos may consider to voluntarily depart, through any available commercial or safe means should the situation warrant.” The embassy in Iraq urged Filipinos to “prepare adequate food, water, medicine and other necessary supplies sufficient for their needs while sheltering in place.” Philippine Ambassador to Israel Aileen Mendiola convened the embassy’s crisis management team. To ensure continuity of services, the embassy has “transferred its operations to its underground shelter and remains operational.” The embassy in Lebanon urged Filipinos “to remain at home and limit movement unless absolutely necessary and avoid crowded areas.” The embassy in the UAE said “in the event of any unusual incident, Filipinos are cautioned to shelter in their homes and refrain from making unnecessary movements.” The Philippine mission in Bahrain advised Filipinos to avoid the Juffair area, which hosts a US military facility amid the possibility that it may be targeted by Iran. “Those with nonemergency consular requirements, or those who can put off their scheduled passport appointments to a later date, are strongly encouraged to remain indoors for their safety,” the embassy in Qatar said. Sen. Sherwin Gatchalian on Sunday urged the DMW to prepare for the repatriation of overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) who might want to return home amid the escalating conflict in the region. Gatchalian, Senate Finance Committee chairman, said the P2-billion Aksyon Fund under the DMW is allotted for the repatriation of OFWs and other forms of emergency assistance for those in distress. He said the priority “is the safety of our OFWs. The government must be ready to repatriate those affected.” He also urged the Land Transportation Regulatory and Franchising Board to immediately prepare to implement the Pantawid-Pasada program amid expectations of further oil price hikes. The senator said about P2.5 billion is available for disbursement under the Pantawid Pasada program. Sen. Erwin Tulfo, chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, appealed to the DMW and the Overseas Workers Welfare Administration to help aspiring Filipino workers in the Middle East who have to postpone their travel for their safety. Tulfo cited news reports that first-time OFWs from the provinces narrated the inconvenience and the effect of the conflict to their impending employment abroad. “Most of these Filipinos come from the provinces. They have already spent money on requirements in the hope of securing decent opportunities in the Middle East,” said Tulfo. The OFWs lamented that concerned government agencies have yet to issue any notice to address their situation. Their recruitment agencies have yet to provide a clear plan on their deployment. “We should exhaust all the remedies available for them not only on the financial aspect, but also for their mental health,” said Tulfo, Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman. The Department of National Defense (DND) on Sunday assured that there is “no credible direct threat” to the Philippines amid ongoing tensions in the Middle East. In a statement, the DND also said the military is ready to assist in evacuating OFWs at risk. “At the moment, the conflict is contained within the Middle East and there is no credible direct threat to our territory, and Filipino and foreign citizens in the country. We urge vigilance against disinformation and condemn those who unnecessarily rouse panic during these circumstances,” the DND said.

- Expert weighs ICC hearing arguments (2026-03-01 16:06)

INTERNATIONAL law expert Melissa Loja said the prosecution faced hurdles in establishing a clear legal nexus in the confirmation of charges hearings against former president Rodrigo Duterte before the International Criminal Court (ICC). In an interview with The Manila Times on Sunday, Loja described the prosecution's theory of liability as "tenuous," particularly on the element of indirect co-perpetration. She said that to meet the threshold of substantial grounds to believe, prosecutors must identify the person or organized power structure through which an accused allegedly conveyed the intent to commit murder and allowed extrajudicial killings to be carried out. "To establish substantial evidence of indirect co-perpetration, the person or power structure through whom or which the indirect co-perpetrator conveyed the intent to commit murder and caused the act of murder to be committed have to be identified," Loja said. She noted uncertainty over whether the names of such individuals or entities were among those redacted in the public record. Loja said the prosecution's evidence on criminal intent appeared to have been weakened during the hearings after the defense presented written policies directing police officers to comply with operational procedures and limiting the use of lethal force to self-defense. She pointed out that the defense was able to cite speeches in which Duterte reminded law enforcers to observe procedural due process. According to Loja, these materials "hollowed out" the prosecution's assertions of intent, at least at the level presented during the oral arguments. The prosecution could still regain lost ground if its written submissions demonstrate that such policies were routinely ignored and that Duterte failed to revise them despite repeated breaches. There must be irrefutable evidence showing officers who violated procedures were not retrained or disciplined could bolster the prosecution's position. On the defense side, Loja observed that redactions in the case record limited its ability to mount a per-incident challenge to the prosecution's evidence. "I had expected a granular attack," she said, adding that the defense's written filings might yet contain a more detailed rebuttal. Loja noted that the appeals chamber may have been monitoring the proceedings, placing an added burden on the defense. "Defense bore the double burden of convincing the pretrial chamber and the appeals chamber in one hearing," she said. The confirmation of charges hearings determine whether the case against Duterte will go to trial.

- House starts review of Sara impeach cases (2026-03-01 16:05)

(UPDATE) THE House Committee on Justice will start reviewing on Monday the four impeachment complaints filed against Vice President Sara Duterte. Batangas 2nd District Rep. Gerville Luistro, the committee chairman, issued a Feb. 24 notice on the meetings which are set for March 2, 3 and 4. Luistro told the media last week that if the committee finishes the deliberation on form sufficiency on March 2, it will take up substance sufficiency the next day. If the panel does not finish the deliberation on March 2, it can continue the next day. During plenary session on Feb. 23, the House referred the four impeachment complaints to the committee. The last complaint was filed last Feb. 18 by lawyer Nathaniel Cabrera and was endorsed by Manila 6th District Rep. Bienvenido Abante Jr., chairman of the House Committee on Human Rights, and Deputy Speaker and La Union 1st District Rep. Francisco Paolo Ortega V. Cabrera said Article II of the complaint alleges that Duterte "betrayed the public trust and committed acts of graft and corruption by grossly abusing discretionary authority over confidential funds appropriated to the” Office of the Vice President and Department of Education (DepEd) which she led as secretary before she resigned in 2024 from that post. It also alleged culpable violation of the Constitution and other high crimes. The Makabayan bloc of ACT Teachers Rep. Antonio Tinio, Gabriela Women’s Party Rep. Sarah Elago and Kabataan Rep. Renee Co endorsed the complaint filed by former lawmakers France Castro and Arlene Brosas, among other complainants, who alleged betrayal of public trust in connection with confidential funds. Earlier this month, concerned citizens filed their own complaint, which Mamamayang Liberal Rep. Leila de Lima endorsed. The complaint accused Duterte of misusing confidential funds as vice president and also during her time as DepEd secretary. “We are prepared to confront these allegations squarely through the proper constitutional processes, confident that a fair and impartial review will demonstrate that the accusations are devoid of both factual and legal basis,” Michael Poa, speaking for Duterte’s defense team, said in a statement on the first two complaints. The third complaint, endorsed by de Lima, was filed on Feb. 9. The complainants, which included priests and lawyers, alleged that Duterte violated the Constitution and betrayed public trust in connection with the confidential funds. “We have nothing further to add beyond the statement we issued last week. The filing of additional complaints was anticipated by the Defense Team,” Poa said. “For now, we will continue to closely monitor developments and address these complaints through the appropriate constitutional processes.” The Constitution gives the House the sole authority to initiate impeachment cases and the Senate to try them. Luistro has said that in deliberating the complaints against Duterte, the committee will apply the same procedure and parameters it used in tackling the two impeachment complaints against President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. The committee dismissed the impeachment complaints against Marcos — a decision the House upheld at the plenary level.

- Sotto files measure to overhaul DPWH (2026-03-01 16:04)

SENATE President Vicente Sotto III has filed a bill reorganizing the Department of Public Works and Highways (DPWH) to strengthen accountability in public infrastructure projects. Sotto said Senate Bill (SB) 1835 aims to rationalize the powers and functions of DPWH’s regional and district offices to achieve transparency and efficiency in public infrastructure governance. Under the measure, an infrastructure inspectorate team will “livestream” on official social media channels its inspection of public works projects for transparency. Sotto said public infrastructure plays a vital role in nation-building by generating employment and addressing essential needs such as safe roads, bridges, flood control systems and other critical public works. “As one of the departments receiving the largest budget allocations, Filipinos rightfully expect that every peso entrusted to the DPWH translates into safe, resilient and responsive infrastructure,” he said. The DPWH organization must be reviewed to identify where the gaps are and where opportunities for corruption may lie, Sotto said. SB 1835 was one of the legislative measures recommended arising from the results of the Senate Blue Ribbon Committee investigation on ghost flood control projects wherein some lawmakers, in collusion with DPWH personnel, allegedly pocketed some funds for flood mitigation. “This measure is about restoring public trust by rationalizing functions, strengthening monitoring mechanisms and institutionalizing transparency to ensure that the people's taxes are spent efficiently, honestly and for the public good," Sotto said. The bill calls for a close look at the DPWH's mandate, powers, organizational structure and operational framework, including the functions of its undersecretaries and assistant secretaries. The department proper will be reorganized according to the key infrastructure projects under its mandate to decentralize project preparation and implementation, and reduce opportunities for irregularities and delays. An Infrastructure Maintenance Services Unit will be responsible for inspecting, monitoring and evaluating completed projects and maintaining a centralized and publicly accessible infrastructure database to enhance transparency and allow citizens to track DPWH projects. Regional offices will assume key functions previously handled at the district level, including project identification and bidding processes. District offices will focus on supervision, monitoring and recommendatory functions to strengthen oversight on the ground.

- China aims to shift power balance in region (2026-03-01 16:03)

A NATIONAL security expert believes China's actions in the West Philippine Sea are not mere diplomatic reactions, but a deliberate strategy to shift the regional balance of power in its favor. "China's expansionism is not reactive diplomacy. It is deliberate strategic revisionism, executed through incremental encroachment, sustained maritime pressure and calculated ambiguity," said Jose Antonio Goitia, chairman emeritus of several civil society groups. He said these patterns — routine patrols, regulatory changes and consistent messaging — signal intent even in the absence of formal declarations. "Strategic ambition is rarely proclaimed. It is revealed through sustained and consistent action," Goitia said. Philippine sovereignty in the West Philippine Sea was affirmed in 2016 when the Permanent Court of Arbitration ruled against China's sweeping nine-dash line claim. The decision, Goitia said, is legally binding, but pressure from Beijing has persisted, testing the nation's resolve. He warned that strategic pressure is not limited to maritime areas. Last February, authorities arrested pilot trainee Bold-Erdene Boldbaatar in Zambales for allegedly violating visa conditions and misrepresenting prior military training. Officials said Boldbaatar's flew training flights near Bajo de Masinloc included aerial surveys of sensitive locations, raising national security concerns. "A Republic that respects itself does not ignore warning signs. Vigilance is not aggression. It is the discipline of sovereignty," Goitia said. He highlighted the risk of weakening sovereignty through words. Downplaying legal rulings or framing expansionist claims as inevitable sends a signal that the nation's rights can be questioned. "When a nation begins to speak timidly about its own rights, it sends a signal. And signals matter," Goitia said. He added that engagement with China is acceptable, but cooperation must never come at the cost of national dignity. Goitia said the government's approach combines legal affirmation, strengthened alliances and consistent diplomatic protest. "It is not enough to win a ruling. A nation must defend itself with unity, discipline and moral courage," he said.

- US threatens more strikes against Iran (2026-03-01 16:00)

UNITED States President Donald Trump said Sunday the US would hit Iran with “force that has never been seen before” if the country retaliated against US and Israeli strikes that killed supreme leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei. Iran indicated it was “going to hit very hard today, harder than they have ever hit before,” wrote Trump, who has vowed to seek regime change in the Islamic republic, on his Truth Social platform early Sunday. “THEY BETTER NOT DO THAT, HOWEVER, BECAUSE IF THEY DO, WE WILL HIT THEM WITH A FORCE THAT HAS NEVER BEEN SEEN BEFORE!” he said. The bombing campaign by the US and Israel — which followed a massive military buildup in the Middle East unseen since the 2003 invasion of Iraq — killed Khamenei, Iranian state television confirmed on Sunday. Iran has since retaliated, with reported Iranian strikes across the Gulf, including in the Emirati capital Abu Dhabi and near regional US military bases. Trump has said the US bombing will continue “as long as necessary” and noted Khamenei’s killing gives Iranians their “greatest chance” for taking power from the current regime. Iran’s security chief Ali Larijani said the transition process following the killing of supreme leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei will begin from Sunday. “An interim leadership council will soon be formed. The president, the head of the judiciary and a jurist from the Guardian Council will assume responsibility until the election of the next leader,” said Larijani, the head of Iran’s top security body, the Supreme National Security Council, who was an adviser to Khamenei. “This council will be established as soon as possible. We are working to form it as early as today,” he said in an interview broadcast by state TV. In Baghdad, hundreds of Iraqis attempted Sunday to storm the fortified Green Zone, where the US Embassy is located, after the death of Ali Khamenei, an Agence France-Presse (AFP) journalist reported. “Their attempts had been thwarted so far, but they keep trying,” a security source told AFP. AFP’s journalist said protesters, some holding flags of pro-Iran armed groups, threw stones at security forces, who responded with tear gas. Local media reported protests in other provinces in southern Iraq. Several Iran-backed Iraqi armed groups said Saturday they will not remain “neutral” and will defend the Islamic republic. The powerful group Kataeb Hezbollah said it will attack US bases after two of its fighters were killed in air strikes in southern Iraq. On Saturday, across the UAE, Iran fired 137 missiles and 209 drones at the country, the UAE defense ministry said, with fires and smoke seen at landmarks The Palm and Burj Al Arab. At Abu Dhabi’s airport, at least one person was killed and seven wounded during what authorities called an “incident.” Dubai airport, the world’s busiest for international traffic, and Kuwait’s airport, were also hit. In Qatar, officials said Iran had launched 65 missiles and 12 drones toward the Gulf state, most of which were intercepted, but eight people were injured, with one in critical condition. On the first day of the strikes on Saturday, smoke poured from US bases in Abu Dhabi and Bahrain’s capital Manama, home of the American navy’s Fifth Fleet, witnesses said, with US bases also targeted in Kuwait. The oil-and-gas-rich Arab monarchies, lying just across the Gulf from Iran, are long-term American allies and host a clutch of US military bases. In Manama, the Iranian attacks saw drones and shrapnel slam into residential buildings, with video on social media showing smoke and fire from high-rises. Saturday’s unprecedented barrage also targeted Qatar’s Al Udeid base, the region’s biggest US military base, as well as Riyadh and eastern Saudi Arabia. Thousands of flights have been delayed or canceled in the biggest disruption to global air transport since the Covid pandemic as airlines suspend services to the Middle East following the US and Israeli attacks on Iran. Iran, Iraq, Israel, Syria, Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates all announced at least partial closures of their skies after Saturday’s strikes and Iran launching missiles at capital cities around the wealthy Gulf region. Major carriers from the Middle East, Europe, Asia-Pacific and the United States announced widespread cancellations, leaving thousands of passengers stranded. Notable airlines that canceled services included Emirates, Etihad, Air France, British Airways, Air India, Turkish Airlines and Lufthansa. According to aviation analytics company Cirium, of around 4,218 flights scheduled to land in Middle Eastern countries on Saturday, 966 (22.9 percent) were canceled, with the figure rising above 1,800 if also including outbound flights. For Sunday, 716 flights out of 4,329 scheduled to the Middle East have been canceled, Cirium said. Flight tracking website FlightAware, meanwhile, said more than 19,000 flights had been delayed globally and more than 2,600 were canceled as of early Sunday morning. The airport closures have rippled far beyond the Middle East. Dubai and neighboring Doha sit at the crossroads of east-west air travel, funneling long-haul traffic between Europe and Asia through tightly scheduled networks of connecting flights. With those hubs idle, aircraft and crews remained stranded out of position, disrupting airline schedules worldwide. Airlines across Europe, Asia and the Middle East canceled or rerouted flights to avoid closed or restricted airspace, lengthening journeys and driving up fuel costs. The disruption has been intensified by the loss of Iranian and Iraqi overflight routes, which had grown more important since the Russia-Ukraine war forced airlines to avoid both countries’ airspace.

- Israel-based Filipina caregiver first confirmed fatality from airstrikes — Marcos (2026-03-01 15:27)

MANILA, Philippines — President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. confirmed that a Filipina caregiver based in Israel was the first fatality recorded following the airstrikes which occurred across the Middle East. In a video update released by Malacañang Sunday night, Marcos identified the victim as Mary Anne Velasquez De Vera, a native of Pangasinan. “She has been identified by her husband who is also an OFW (overseas Filipino worker) working in Israel,” he said in Filipino. Citing reports sent to him, the president disclosed that De Vera was en route to a bomb shelter with her patient but unfortunately was hit by a shrapnel. “All the assistance her family will need will be provided by our government. We will continue to monitor the situation of our countrymen who are in the midst of this war still ongoing in the Middle East,” Marcos said. “Please expect that if we have anything to report, I will report it to you immediately,” he added. The chief executive directed the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) and Department of Migrant Workers (DMW) to secure Filipinos, most of which are overseas workers, shortly after receiving confirmed reports of the airstrikes.

- Bigger irrigation funding sought (2026-03-01 14:02)

SEN. Sherwin Gatchalian has called for additional irrigation funding to boost agricultural productivity and achieve long-term food supply. Gatchalian issued the statement after inspecting the Balog-Balog Multi-Purpose Project Phase II in Tarlac, a flagship initiative of the National Irrigation Administration (NIA). The P18-billion infrastructure project is designed to irrigate approximately 34,000 hectares of farmland and directly benefit an estimated 21,000 farmers in Central Luzon. In addition to irrigation, the project includes flood control and a power generation component, ensuring a stable water supply even during prolonged dry spells. Despite its scale and expected long-term benefits, only P641.67 million has been allocated for the project this year under the General Appropriations Act — an amount that NIA and stakeholders consider insufficient to sustain its progress toward its target completion date in March 2029. “In site visits, we see the importance of these projects. Now that we hear the people’s complaints, I will ensure that the budget for the irrigation project will not be cut, but rather, it will be increased,” he said. The senator stressed that irrigation infrastructure is vital to stabilizing crop yields, reducing farmers’ vulnerability to climate variability and enhancing overall food security. “We want a win-win solution. Farmers win, communities win, our food security wins,” he added. The Philippines continues to face challenges in agricultural productivity due to climate risks, rising input costs and supply chain disruptions. Policymakers have identified irrigation modernization as a key strategy to improve farm output, reduce dependence on imports and promote rural economic growth.

MANILA, Philippines — The Department of National Defense (DND) on Sunday assured the public that the ongoing tension in the Middle East had “no credible direct threat” to the Philippines. In a statement, the DND said it was closely monitoring the situation in the region in close coordination with relevant agencies such as the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) and Department of Migrant Workers (DMW), noting that the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) is ready to assist in humanitarian, even evacuation purposes, if necessary. “At the moment, the conflict is contained within the Middle East and there is no credible direct threat to our territory and Filipino and foreign citizens in the country. We urge vigilance against disinformation and condemn those who unnecessarily rouse panic during these circumstances,” the DND said.

“Nonetheless, the DND and the AFP are ready to respond to probable contingencies, including possible repatriation support and crisis response coordination of Filipinos in affected countries should conditions warrant further action,” the DND said. Meanwhile the Philippines has placed all of its embassies in the Middle East on full alert and activated contingency measures to protect overseas Filipinos as tensions in the region escalate. President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. on Sunday reported to the nation that there no Filipino was reported to have died or injured in the Middle East conflict.

- China’ s moves in West Philippine Sea show deliberate strategic revisionism — expert (2026-03-01 05:38)

MANILA, Philippines — China’ s actions in the West Philippine Sea are not mere diplomatic reactions but a deliberate strategy aimed at reshaping the regional balance of power, according to Dr. Jose Antonio Goitia, national security expert. “China’ s expansionism is not reactive diplomacy. It is deliberate strategic revisionism, executed through incremental encroachment, sustained maritime pressure, and calculated ambiguity,” Goitia said, describing the repeated incidents of harassment and foreign presence in Philippine-claimed waters. He stressed that these patterns—routine patrols, regulatory changes, and consistent messaging—signal intent even in the absence of formal declarations. “Strategic ambition is rarely proclaimed. It is revealed through sustained and consistent action,” said Goitia, also Chairman Emeritus of several civil society groups. The Philippines’ sovereignty in the West Philippine Sea was affirmed in 2016 when the Permanent Court of Arbitration ruled against China’ s sweeping nine-dash line claim. The decision, Goitia said, was legally binding, but pressure from Beijing has persisted, testing the nation’ s resolve. Goitia warned that strategic pressure was not limited to maritime areas. Last February, authorities arrested pilot trainee Bold-Erdene Boldbaatar in Zambales for allegedly violating visa conditions and misrepresenting prior military training. Officials said his training flights near Bajo de Masinloc included aerial surveys of sensitive locations, raising national security concerns. “A Republic that respects itself does not ignore warning signs. Vigilance is not aggression. It is the discipline of sovereignty,” Goitia said. He also highlighted the risk of weakening sovereignty through words. Downplaying legal rulings or framing expansionist claims as inevitable sends a signal that the nation’s rights can be questioned. “When a nation begins to speak timidly about its own rights, it sends a signal. And signals matter,” Goitia said. He added that engagement with China was acceptable, but cooperation must never come at the cost of national dignity. Goitia said the government’s approach combined legal affirmation, strengthened alliances, and consistent diplomatic protest. “It is not enough to win a ruling. A nation must defend itself with unity, discipline, and moral courage,” he said.

MANILA, Philippines — Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) Secretary Rexlon Gatchalian on Sunday announced that the agency was set to host the 35th Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) Socio-Cultural Community (ASCC) Council meetings on March 2-5 in Makati City. As the Philippine’s representative, the DSWD serves as the ASCC chairman, and will be championing four thematic priorities under the acronym RISE during the council meetings, Gatchalian said. Encapsulating the DSWD’s vision for its 2026 ASCC chairmanship, RISE stands for: Resilient and empowered families; Inclusive development; Smart youth and innovation; and, Environmentally-sustainable and food secure future, according to the DSWD chief. DSWD Assistant Secretary Irene Dumlao, meanwhile, told The Manila Times that the country’s chairmanship would have three priorities – peace and security, prosperity and people empowerment – under the theme ‘Navigating our Future, Together.’ As Philippine representative, Dumlao said the DSWD would head one of the Asean pillars - Asean Socio-Cultural Community – hence, its hosting of the 35th ASCC meetings. The DSWD spokesman said the department would focus on promoting family resiliency, youth empowerment, and inclusive development of marginalized and vulnerable sectors for a ‘One Asean, One-Response’ region. “More than chairing and hosting the 35th ASCC, the DSWD seeks to ensure that policy discussions will result in regional initiatives that will be felt by the ASEAN people,” she said. The DSWD officials said that aside from hosting high-level meetings, the agency would also take the opportunity to showcase Filipino culture to the other Asean member nations through the presentation of the rich gastronomical heritage and the performance of traditional dances and songs. “We take this ASCC chair[man]ship as an opportunity to introduce the Filipino society, the culture, through experiential programs and activities. Under the leadership of Secretary Rex Gatchalian, the department has prepared simple yet meaningful activities for the ASCC meeting aside from policy discussions,” Dumlao said.

- Child labor cases in PH drop by 45% in 2024 — DOLE (2026-03-01 04:34)

MANILA, Philippines — Child labor cases in the country has dropped by 45 percent from 935,000 to 509,000 as a result of steady support provided by the Marcos administration for anti-child labor initiatives, according to the Department of Labor and Employment (DOLE). The Philippine's successful anti-child labor campaign experience took center stage at the recent Sixth Global Conference on the Elimination of Child Labor in Morocco to assess the progress and define the next steps toward ending child labor. Regional Director Roy L. Buenafe, who represented the DOLE in the conference, attributed the department's successful anti-child labor campaign to the government's clear policy direction, disciplined management of funds down to the local level, and interventions guided by reliable data. "Steady funding for anti-child labor initiatives, closer coordination among agencies, and data-based actions under the Philippine Program Against Child Labor of the Marcos Jr. administration contributed to the improvement of the lives of child laborers and their families," Buenafe said. Buenafe cited a 45 percent drop in child labor cases from 935,000 in 2021 to 509,000 in 2024 under the Philippine Program Against Child Labor (PPACL) as he highlighted how targeted programs, coordinated enforcement, and community-based monitoring help bring children out of hazardous work and back into school. "These initiatives align with UN Sustainable Development Goal Target 8.7 on the eradication of forced labor, modern slavery, human trafficking, and the worst forms of child labor," added Buenafe. At the side event on ending child labor in fisheries and aquaculture, the Philippines noted ongoing efforts to identify affected children and provide them with support to remove them from labor, as it reported that agriculture, including fisheries and aquaculture, accounted for 64.4 percent of child labor cases in 2024.

- Sotto files bill to overhaul DPWH (2026-03-01 04:27)

MANILA, Philippines — Senate President Vicente Sotto III filed Senate Bill (SB) 1835 reorganizing the Department of Public Works and Highways (DPWH) to strengthen accountability in public infrastructure projects. The senator said SB 1835 aims to rationalize the powers and functions of the DPWH regional and district offices to achieve transparency and efficiency in public infrastructure governance. The bill creates an infrastructure inspectorate team which will "livestream" on official social media channels its inspection of public works projects for transparency. Sotto said public infrastructure plays a vital role in nation-building by generating employment and addressing essential needs such as safe roads, bridges, flood control systems, and other critical public works. "As one of the departments receiving the largest budget allocations, Filipinos rightfully expect that every peso entrusted to the DPWH translates into safe, resilient, and responsive infrastructure," he said. "It is imperative to revisit the organization of DPWH to identify where the gaps are and where opportunities for corruption may lie," Sotto said in filing the measure. He said SB 1835 was one of the legislative measures recommended arising from the results of the Senate Blue Ribbon Committee investigation on "ghost" flood control projects wherein some lawmakers, in collusion with DPWH personnel, allegedly pocketed some funds for flood mitigation.

In a video message released by Malacañang, Marcos gave assurance that the Philippine government was doing a round-the-clock monitoring of the situation. “I think you’ve already heard that Israel and America bombed Iran, and Iran responded by bombing American bases in the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain, Oman and of course Israel. We know that there are a lot of Filipinos in the Middle East. I’m sure you’re worried about your friends and relatives there,” he said in Filipino. “I would like to report to our countrymen that as of 9 a.m. Sunday, we have not received any reports of Filipino casualties. No Filipinos have died. No Filipinos have been injured,” he added. The chief executive further noted all Philippine embassies and labor attachés have been placed on heightened alert starting late Saturday afternoon to ensure the safety and welfare of Filipinos in the region. “In our latest report, our countrymen are in a safe place. And they have gone to the bomb shelters where they are. They were moved away from the American bases so that they do not come close to danger. We will continue to give updates as the report reaches me,” Marcos said. There are more than two million Filipinos scattered across the Middle East, per the latest data of the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA). High concentrations of them are in Israel, Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates (UAE), Qatar, and Bahrain.
